METLAR, leader of the INHUMANOIDS

D.COMPOSE, a living eating machine!

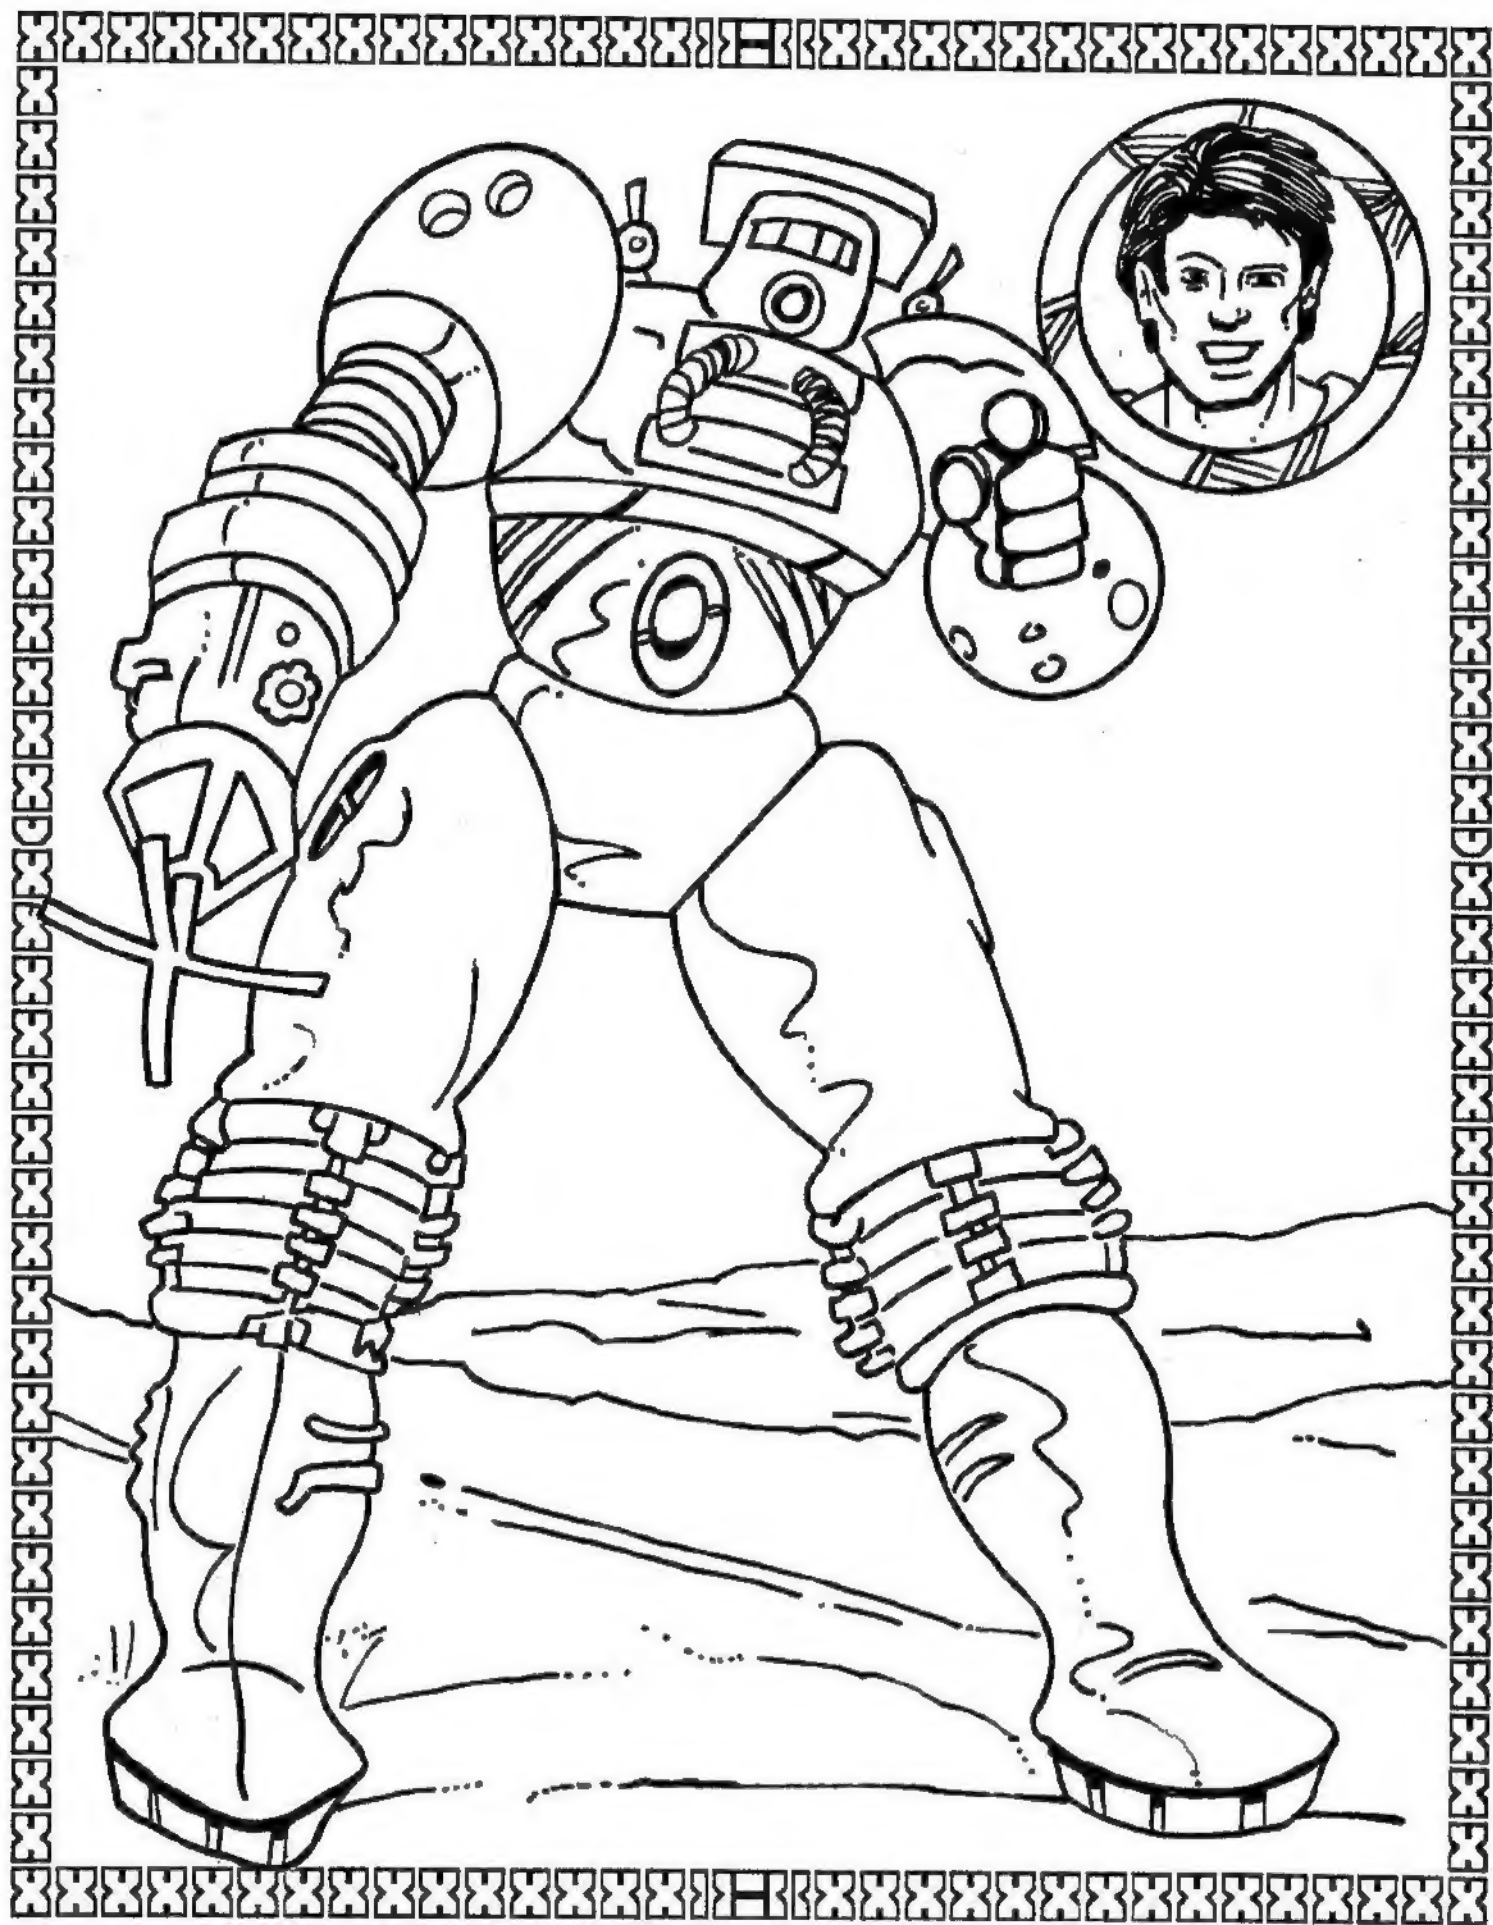

TENDRIL, the cruelest of the INHUMANOIDS

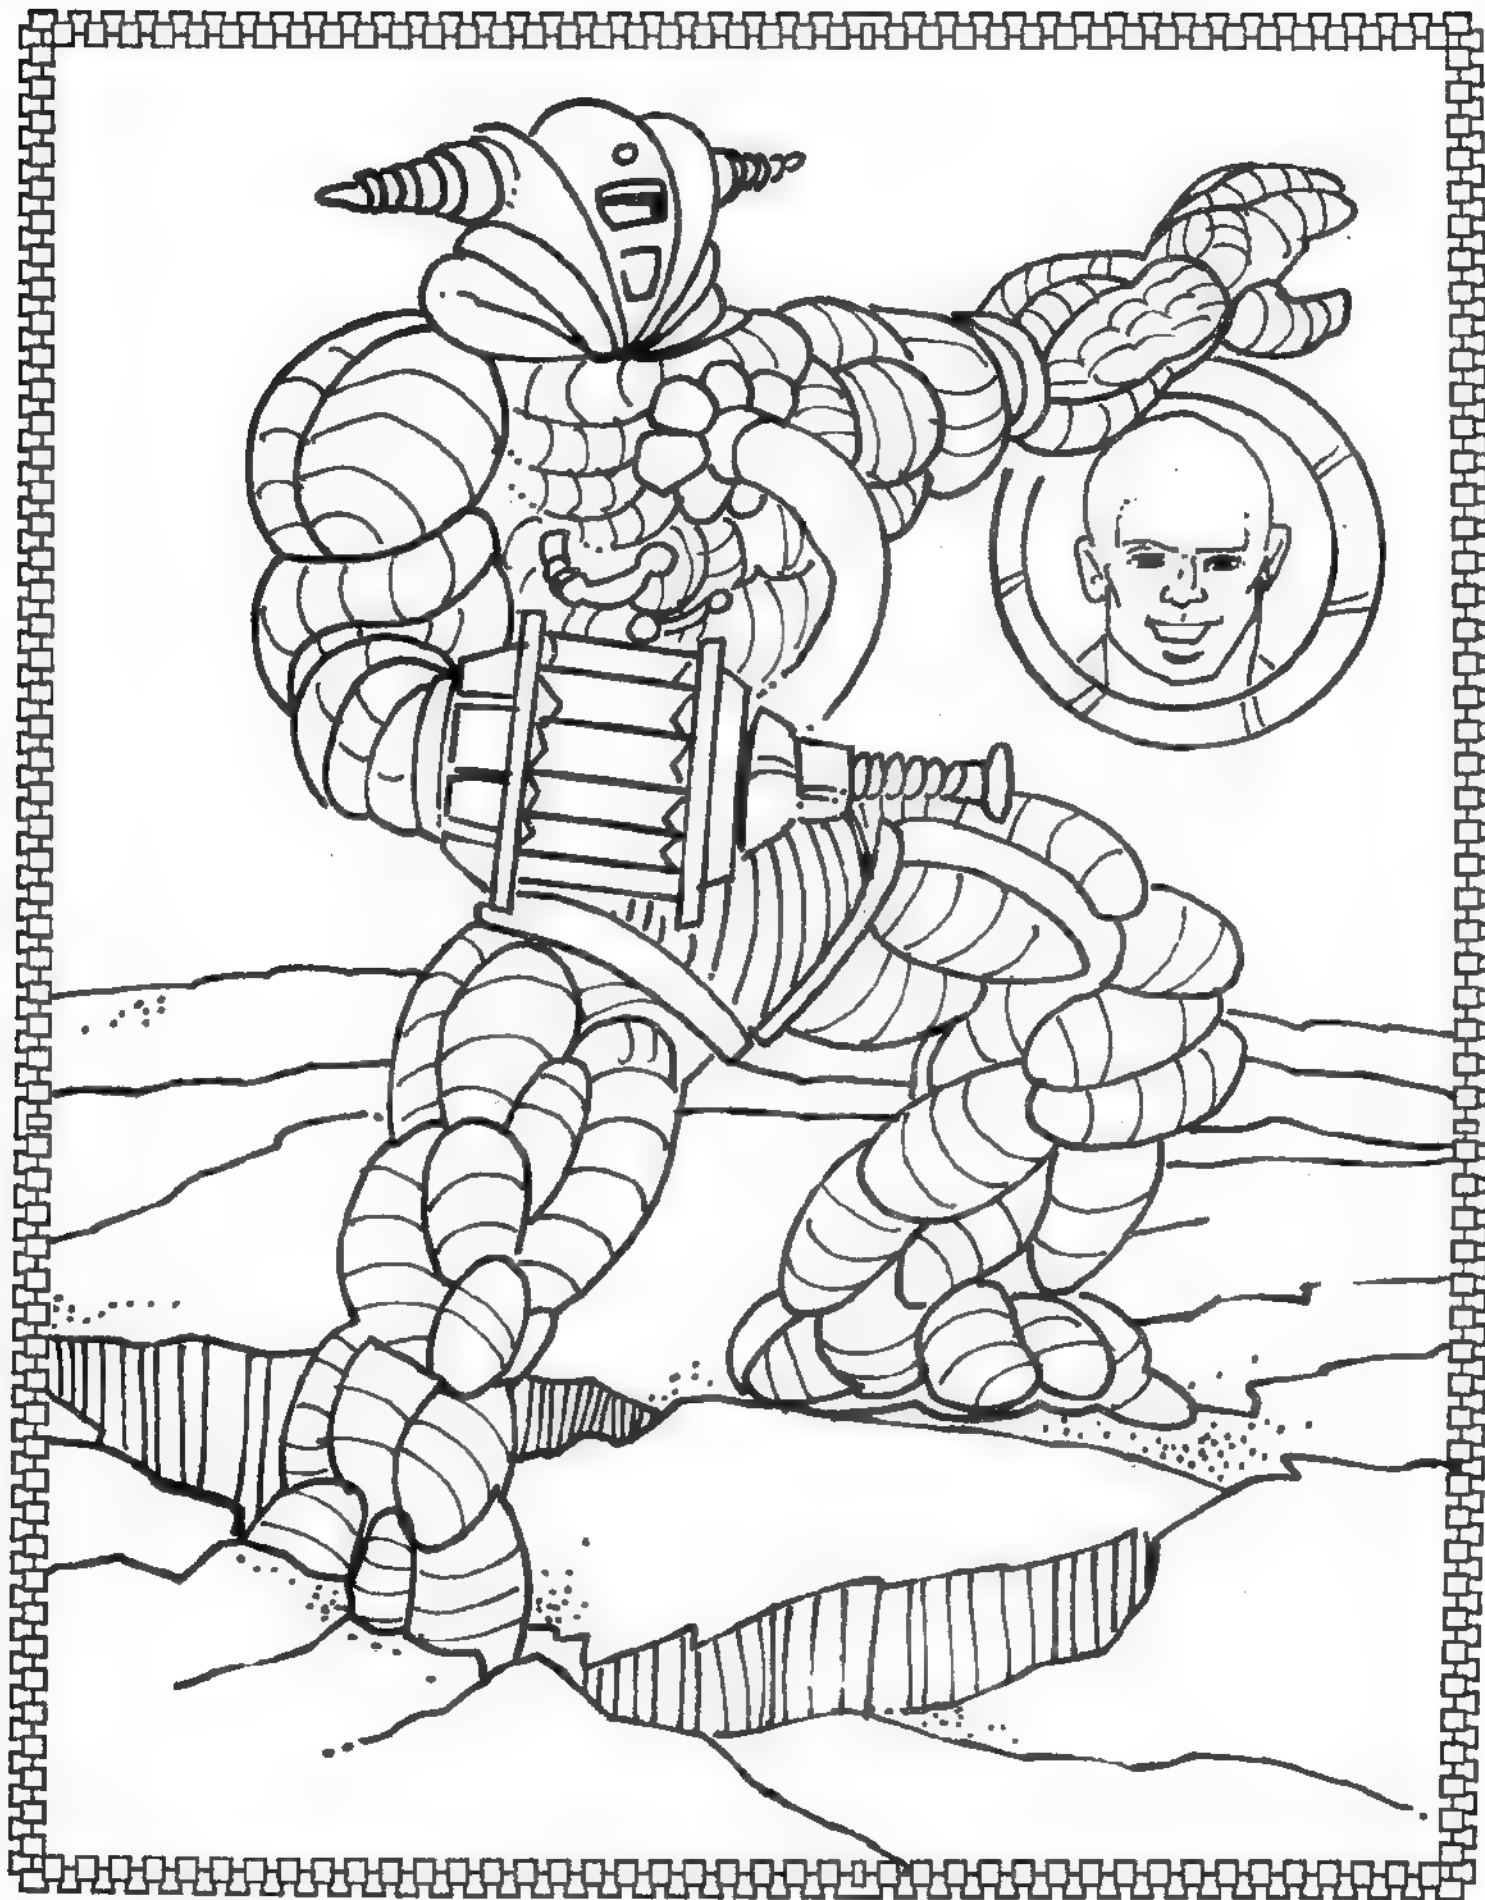

Inside this room the Earth Corps, a courageous team of scientists, tries to form a plan that will stop the power of the INHUMANOIDS.

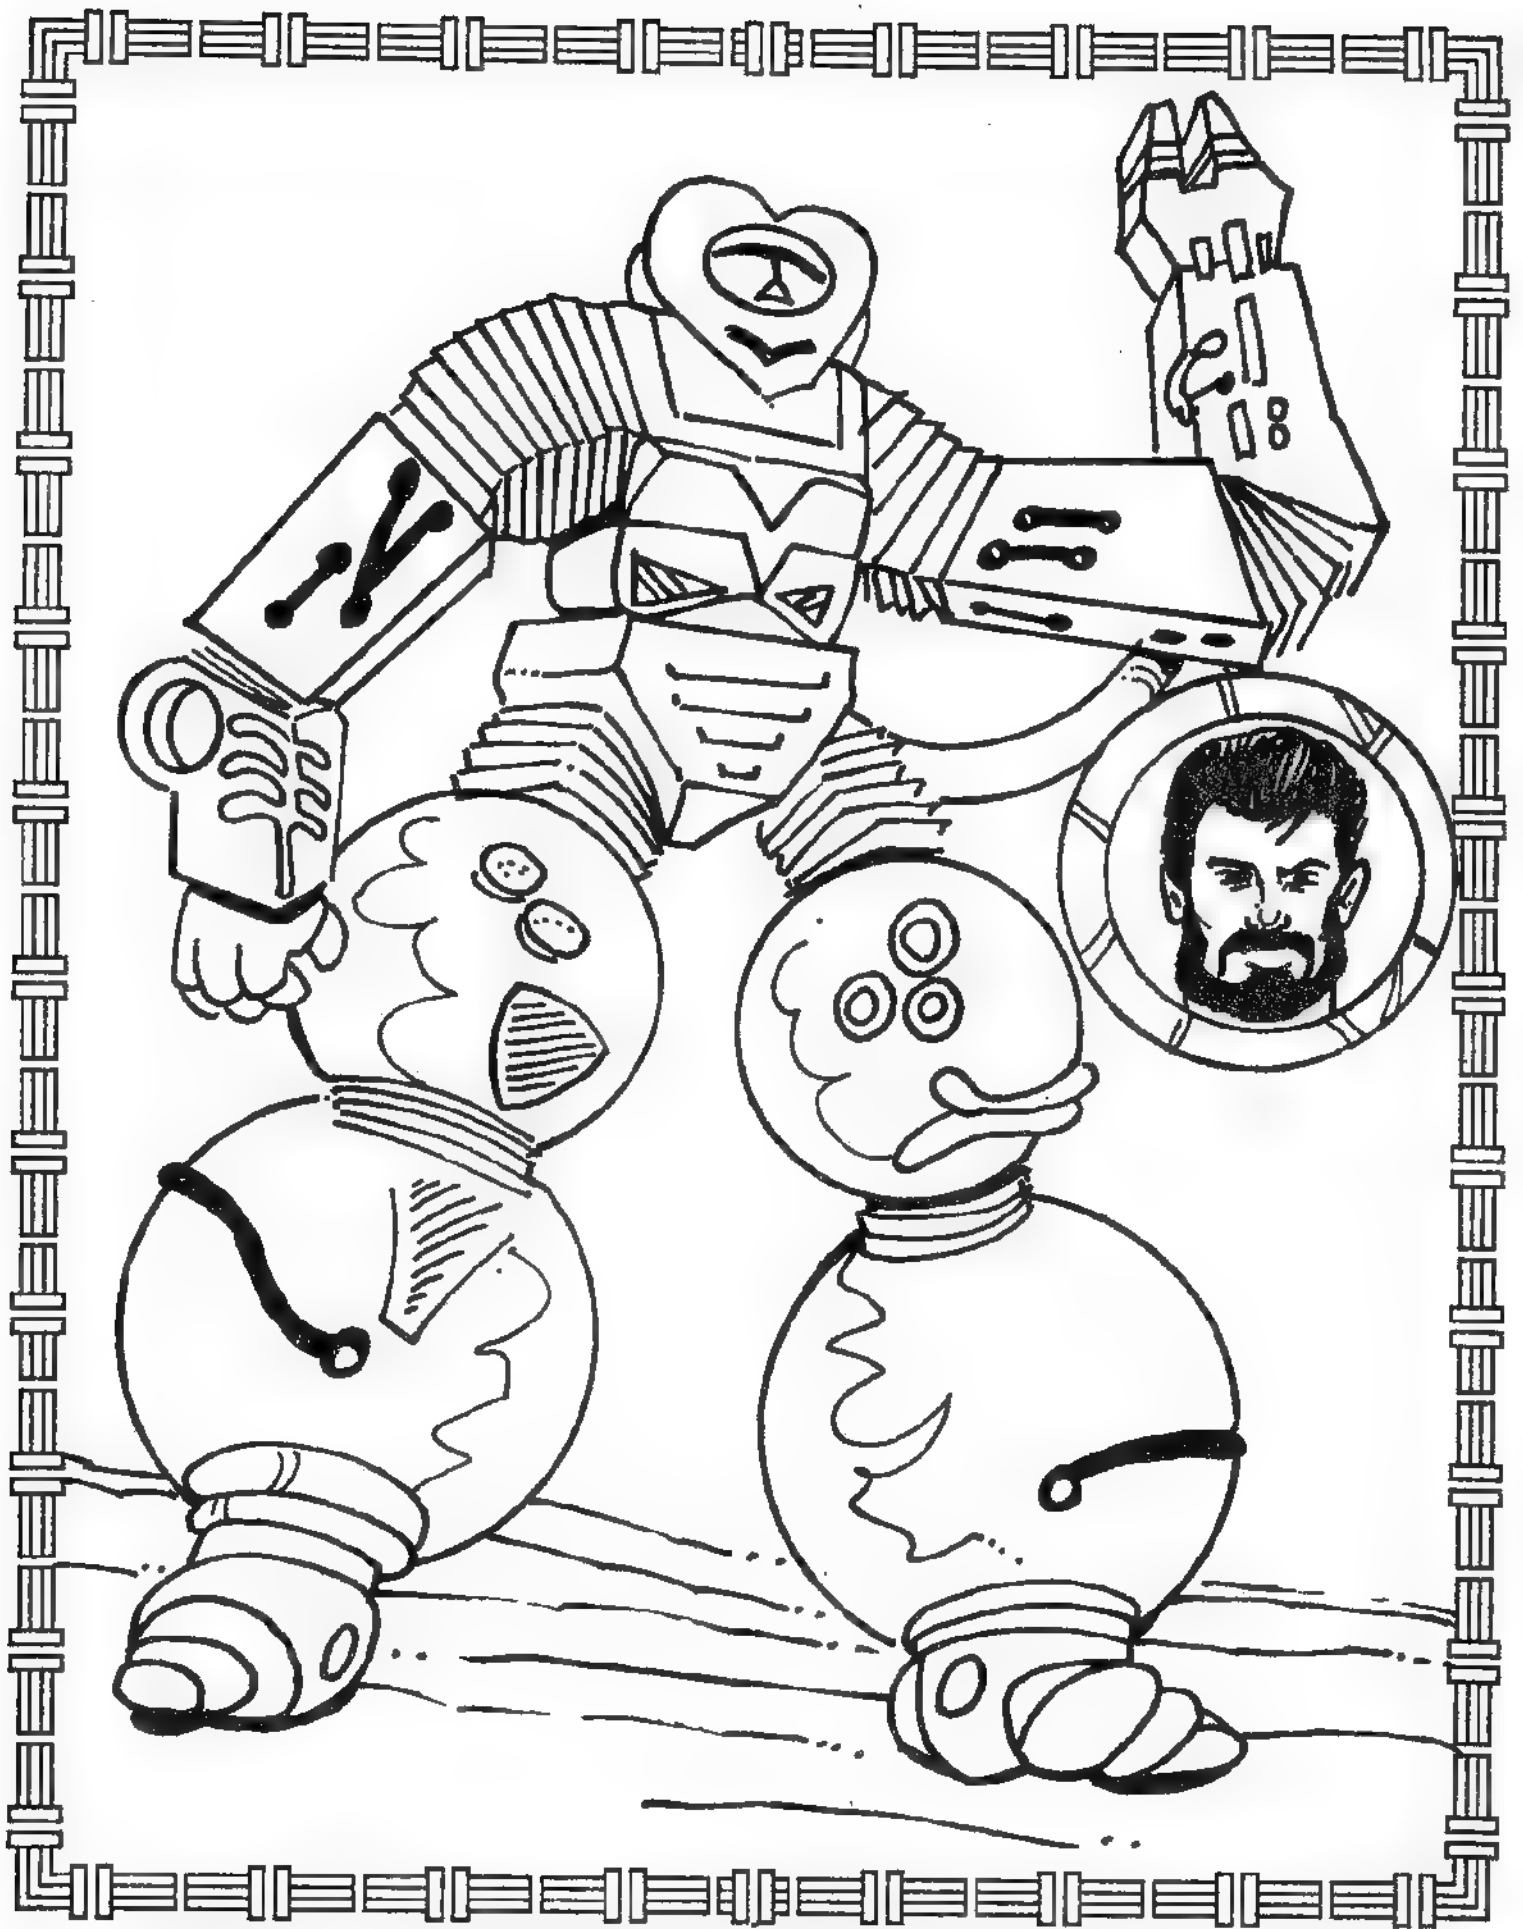

They use environmental suits for protection as they attempt to battle the vicious monsters.

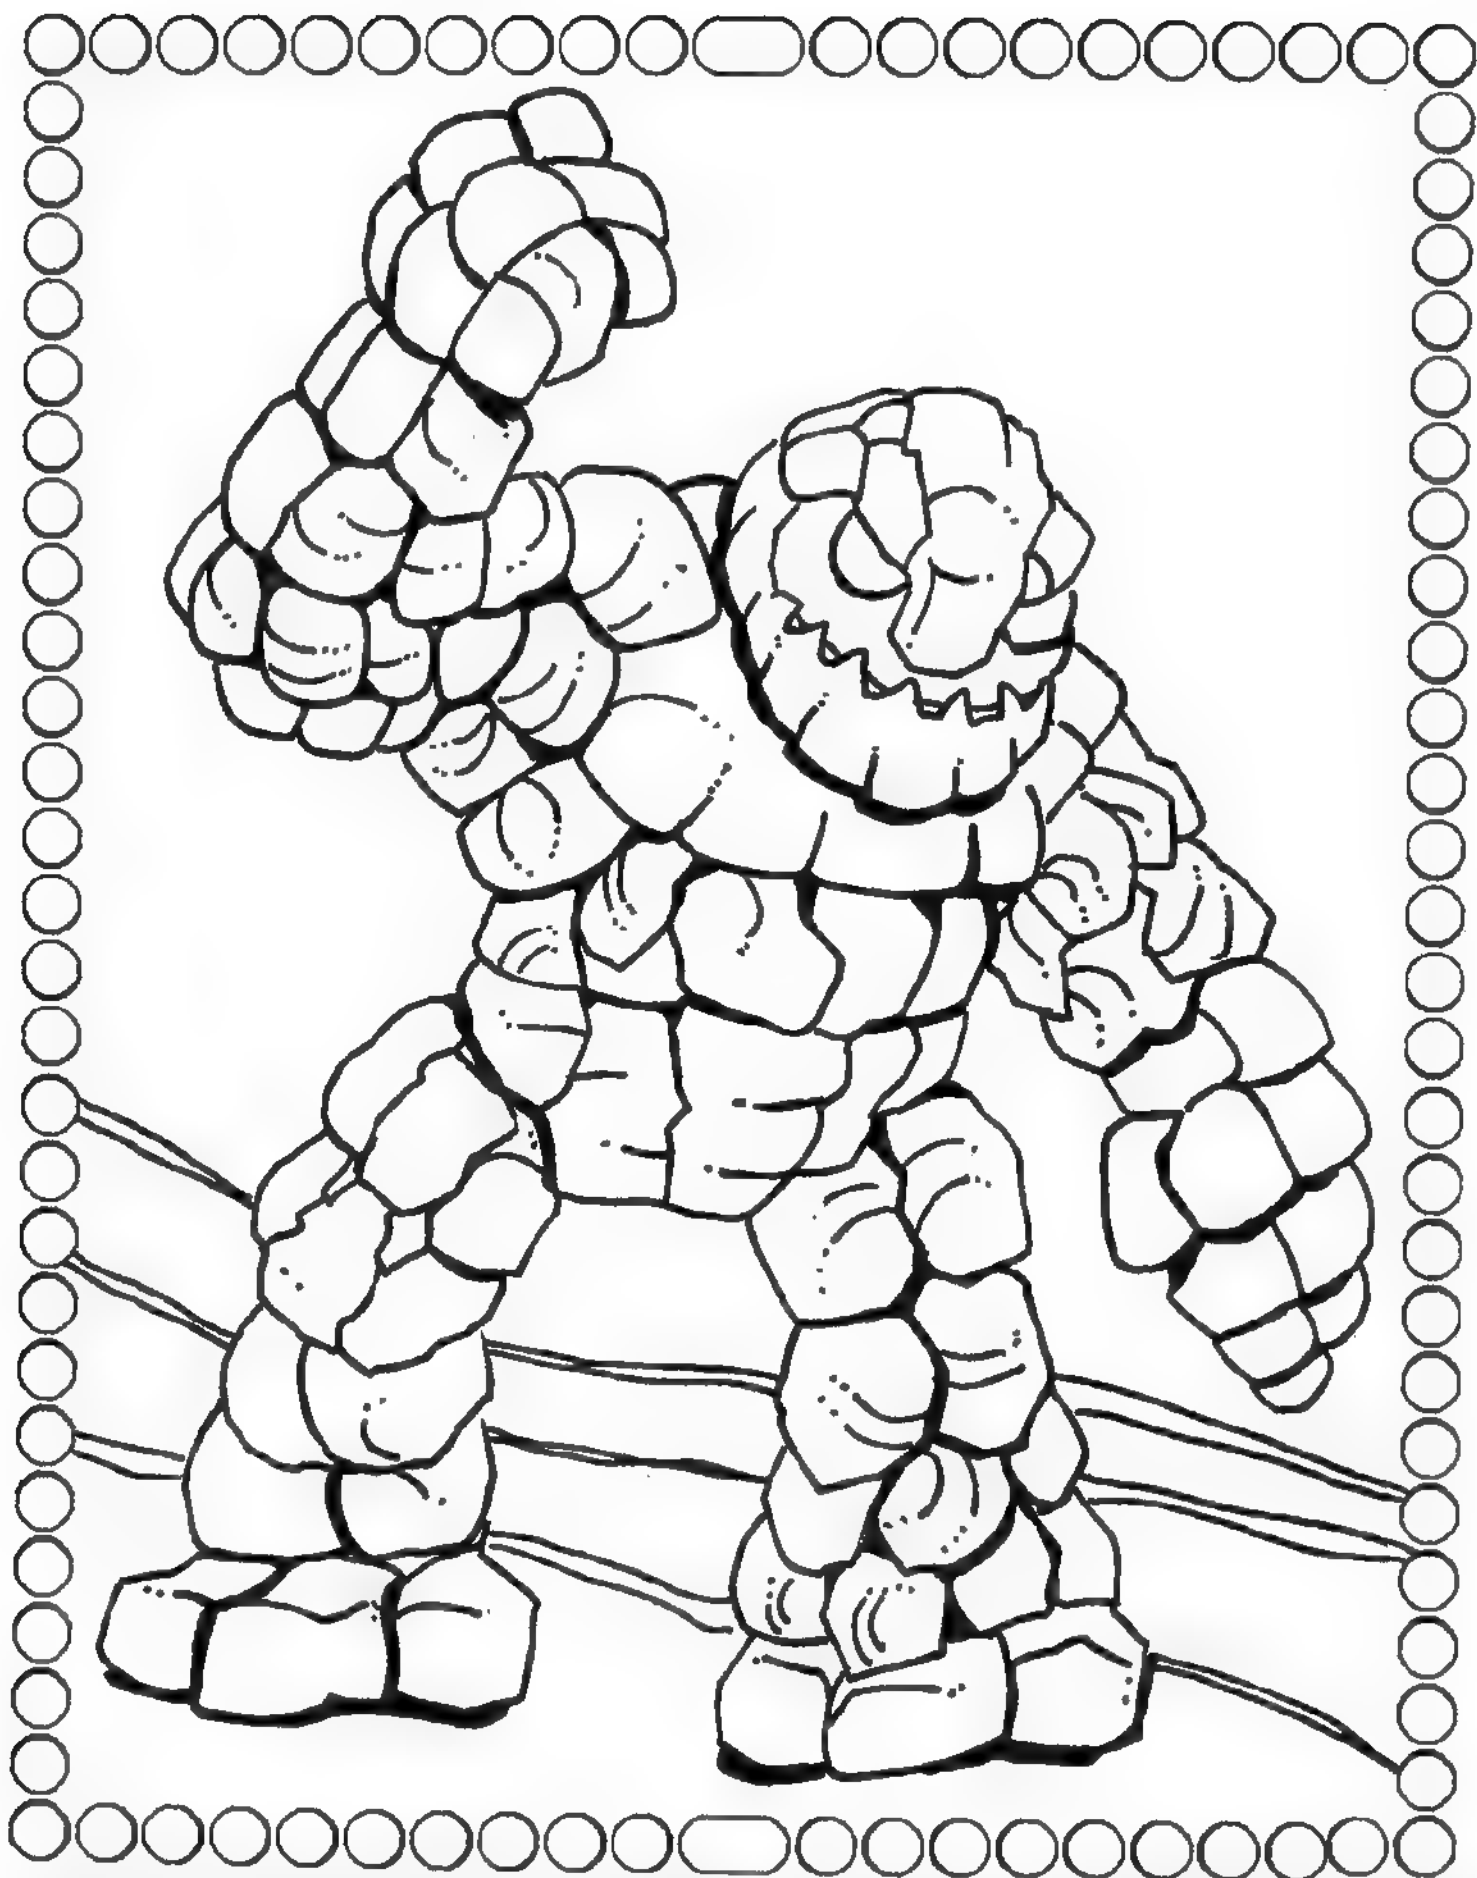

HERC ARMSTRONG, leader of the Earth Corps

AUGER, most physical member of the Earth Corps

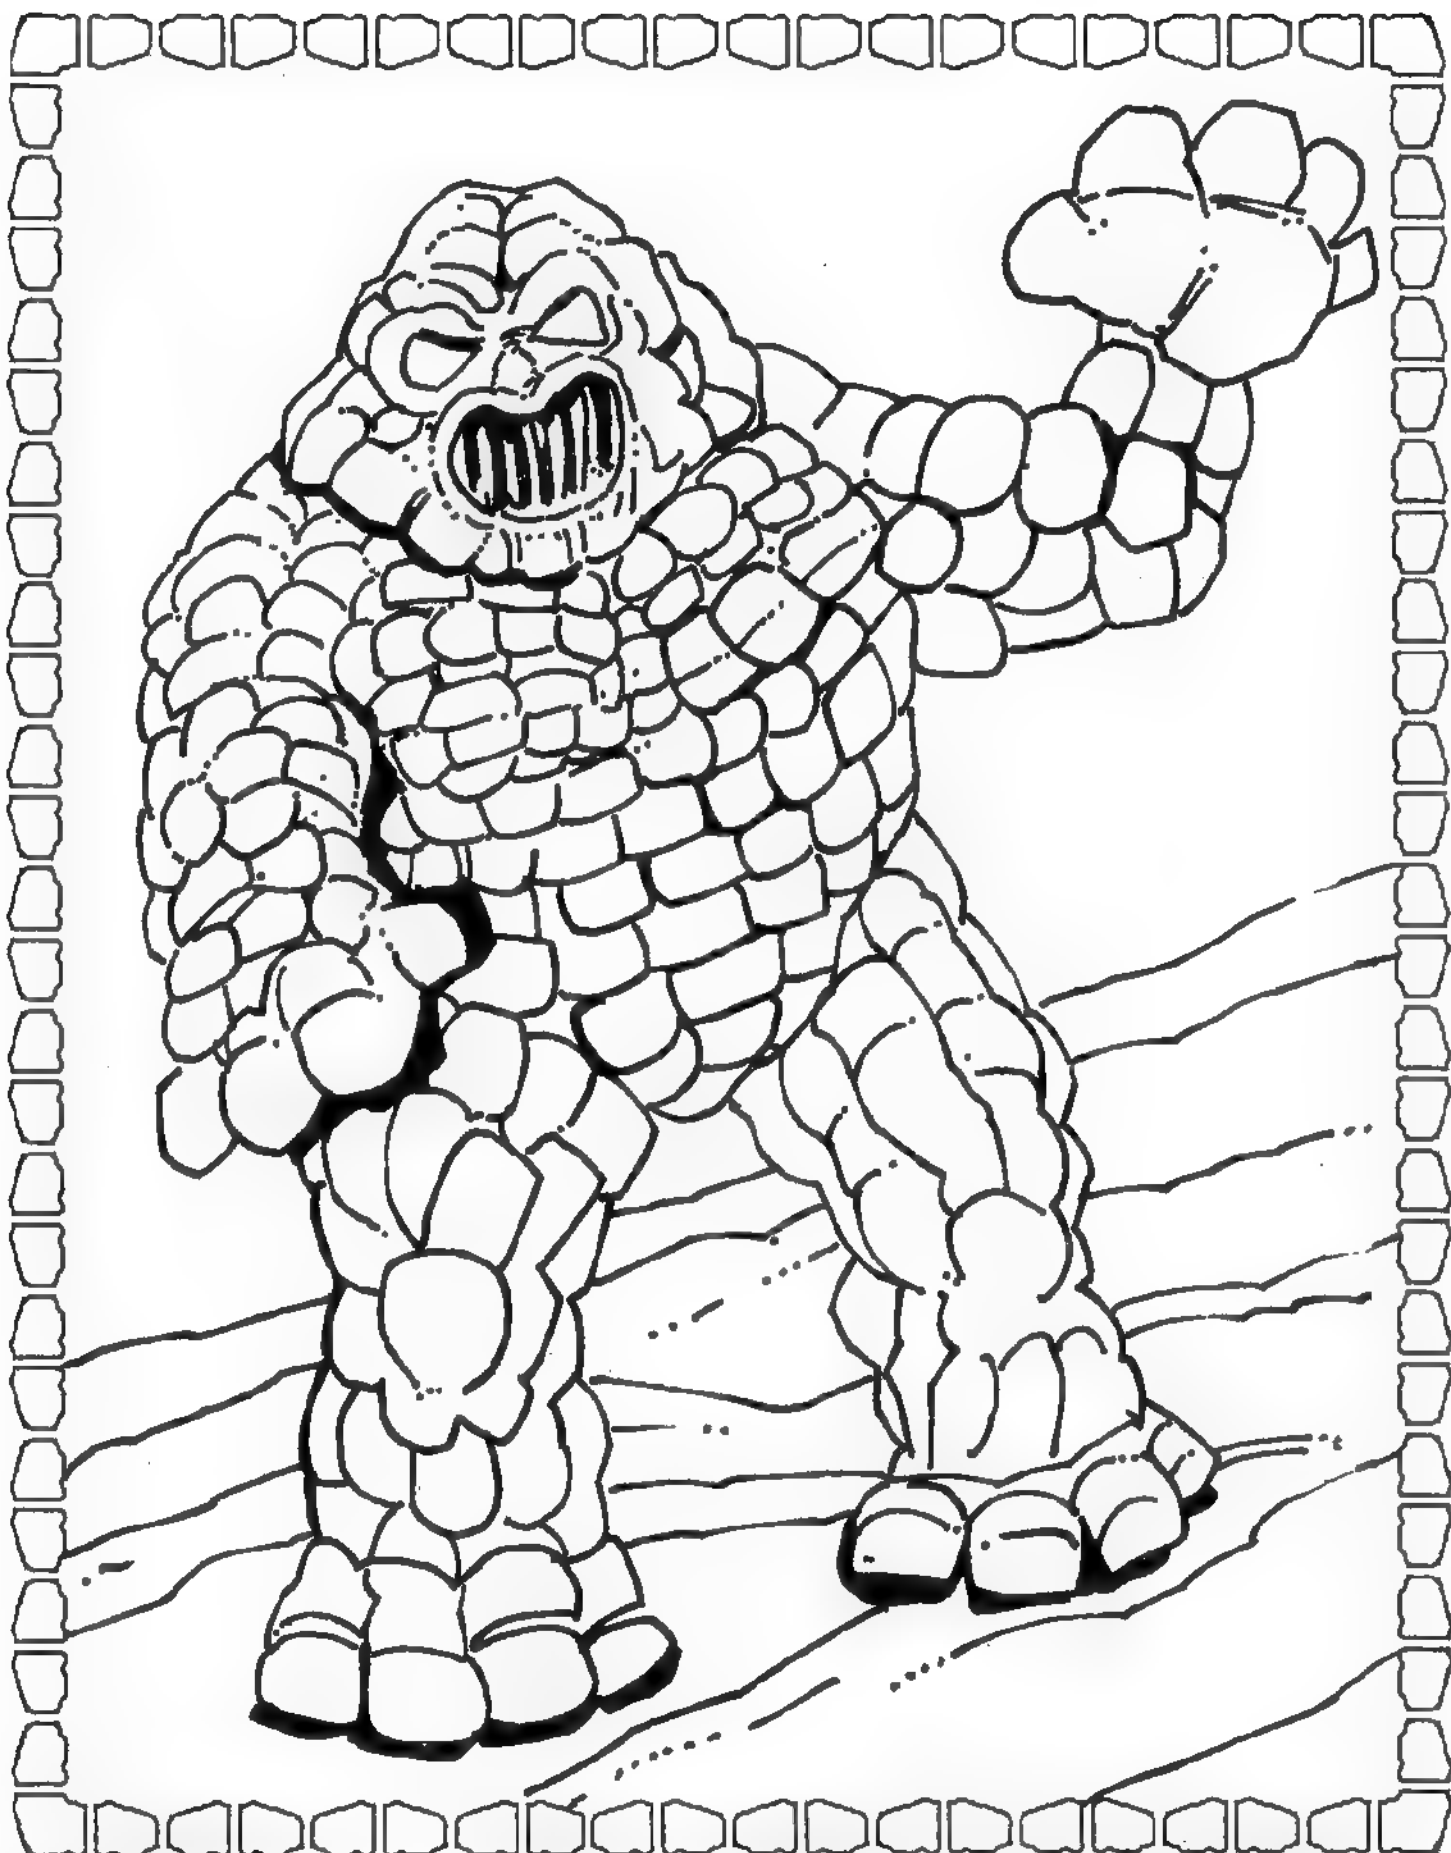

LIQUIDATOR, demolitions expert of the Earth Corps

GRANOK, leader of the Granites lords of the Middle Kingdom

REDLEN, leader of the Redwoods mystical surface dwellers

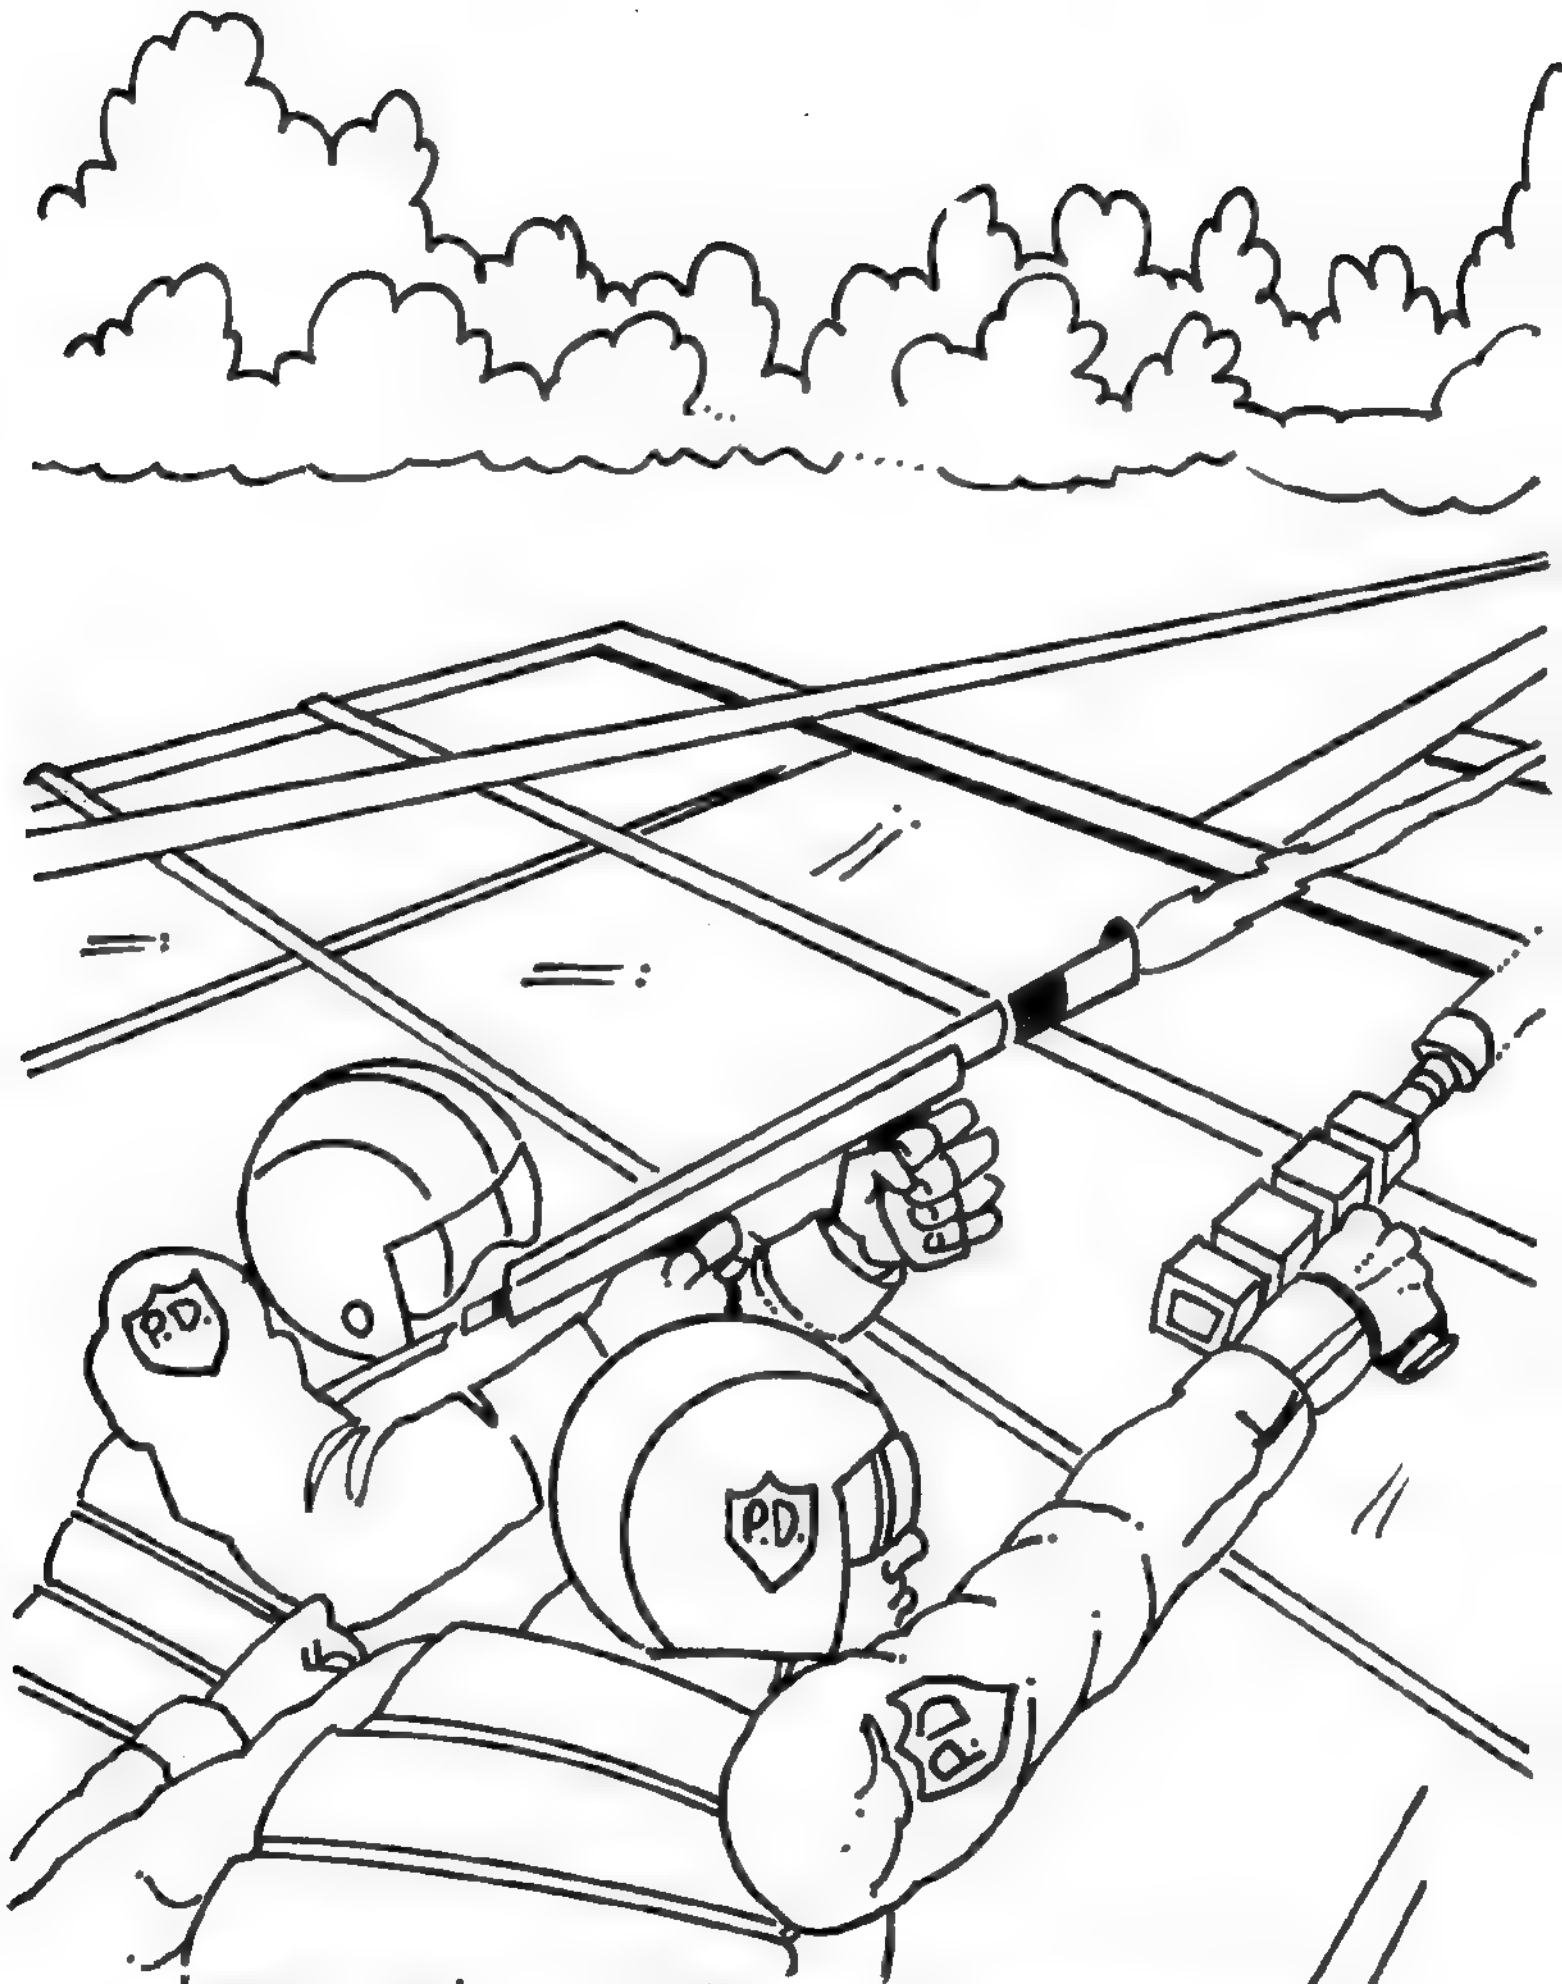

MAGNOKOR, most complex of the Mutores, can split into two parts.

TENDRIL crashes through the ground...

...and smashes everything in his way.

Laser guns have no effect on this angry monster.

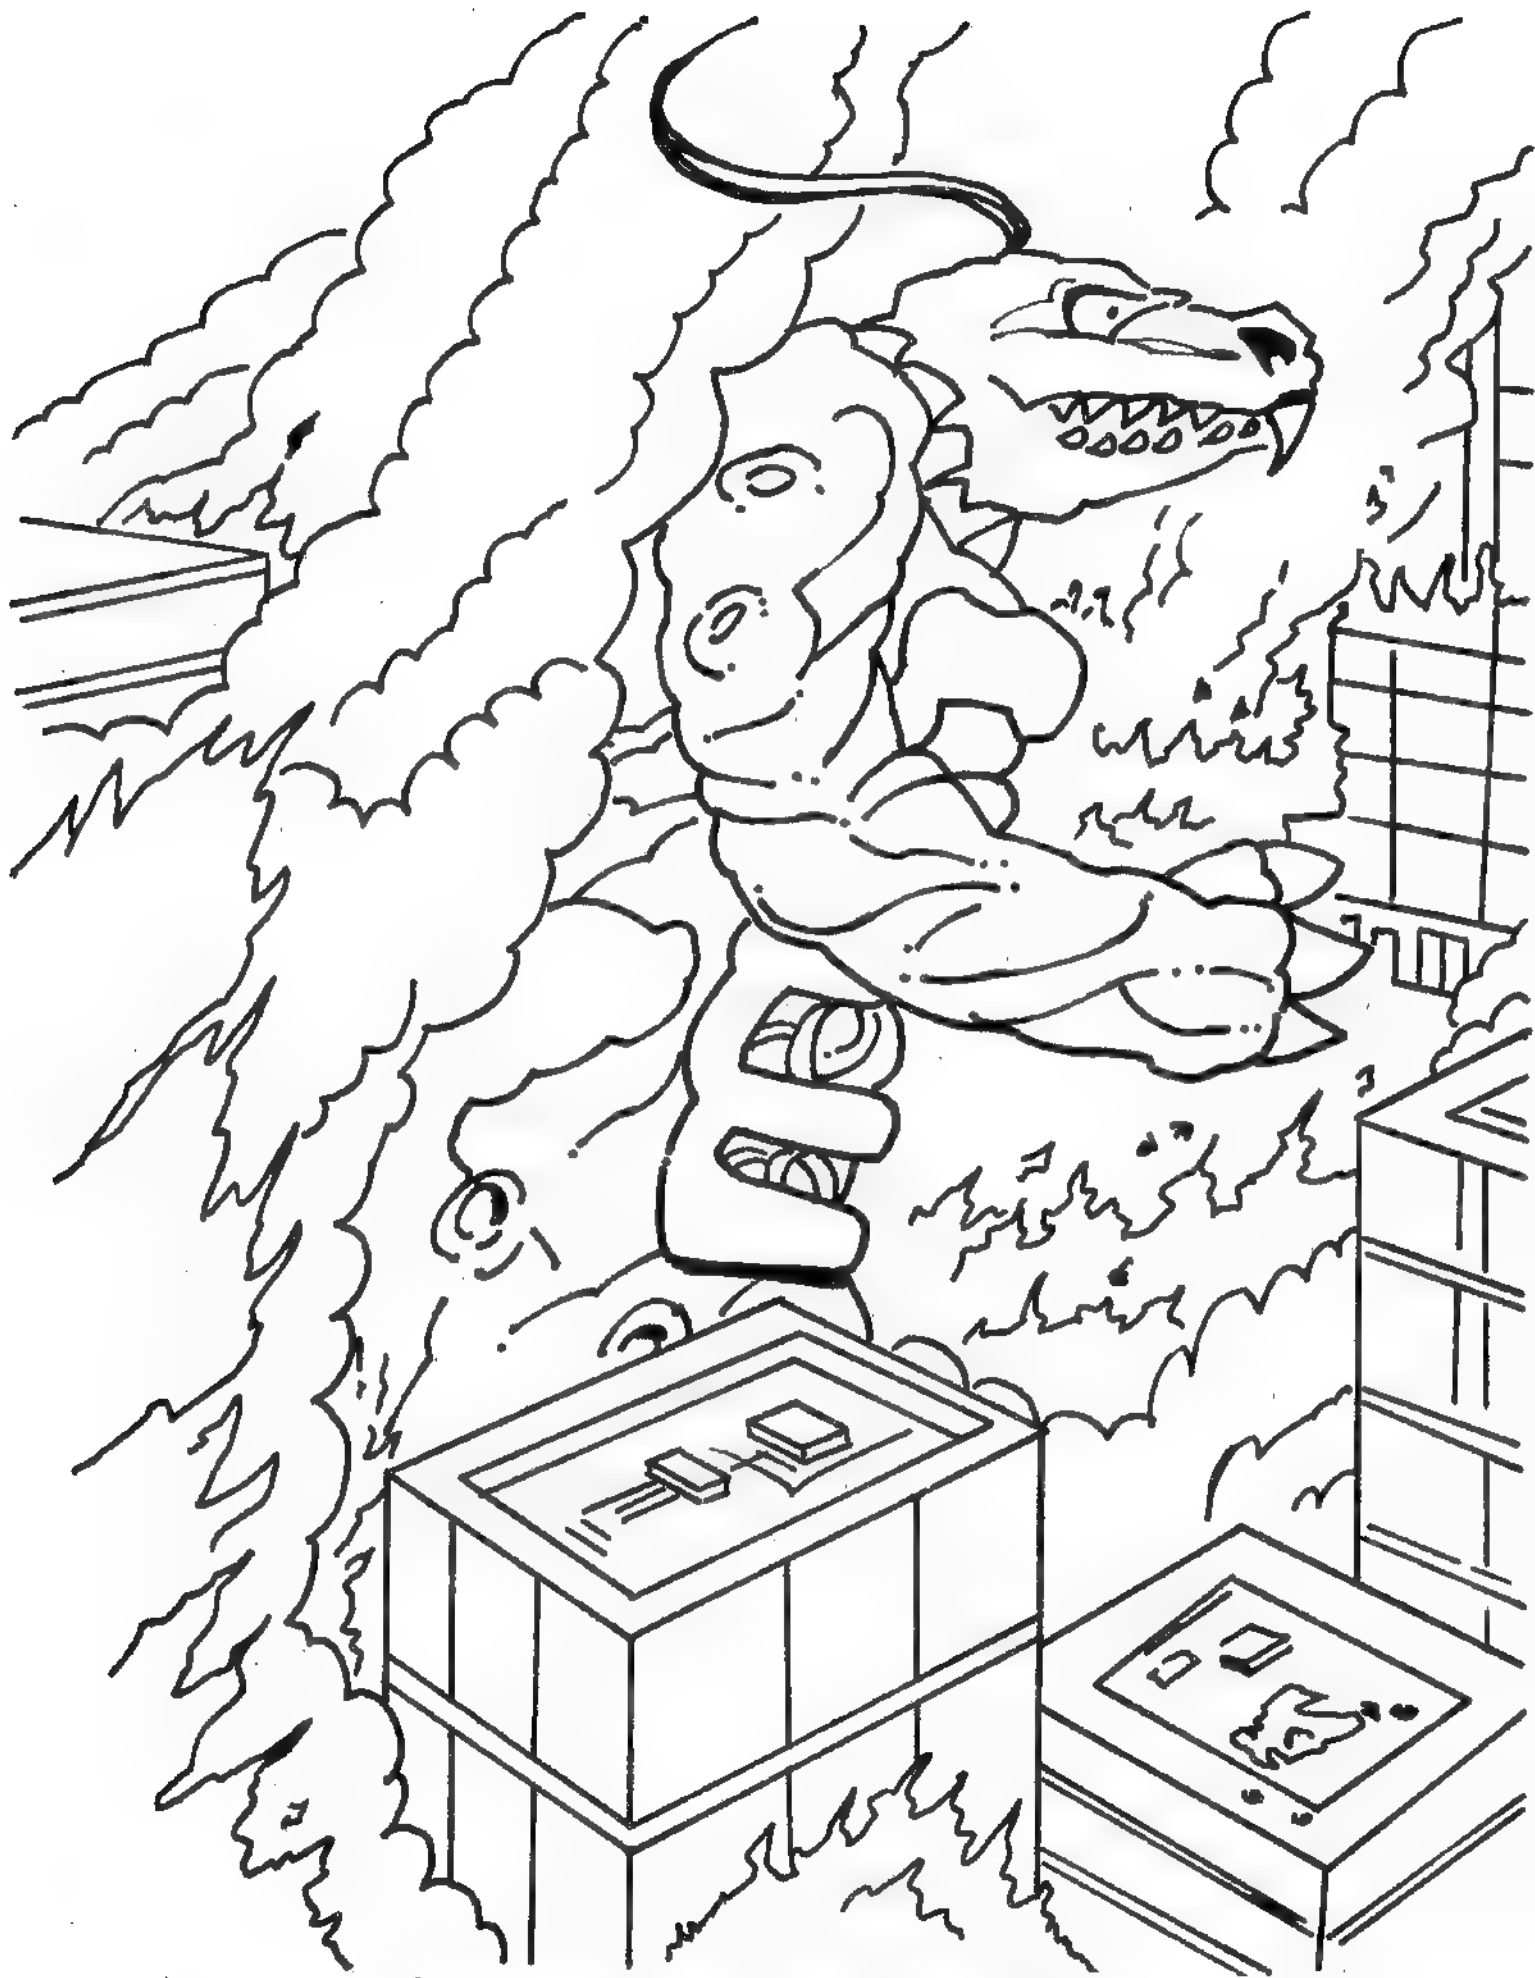

He lashes out his fury on his attackers.

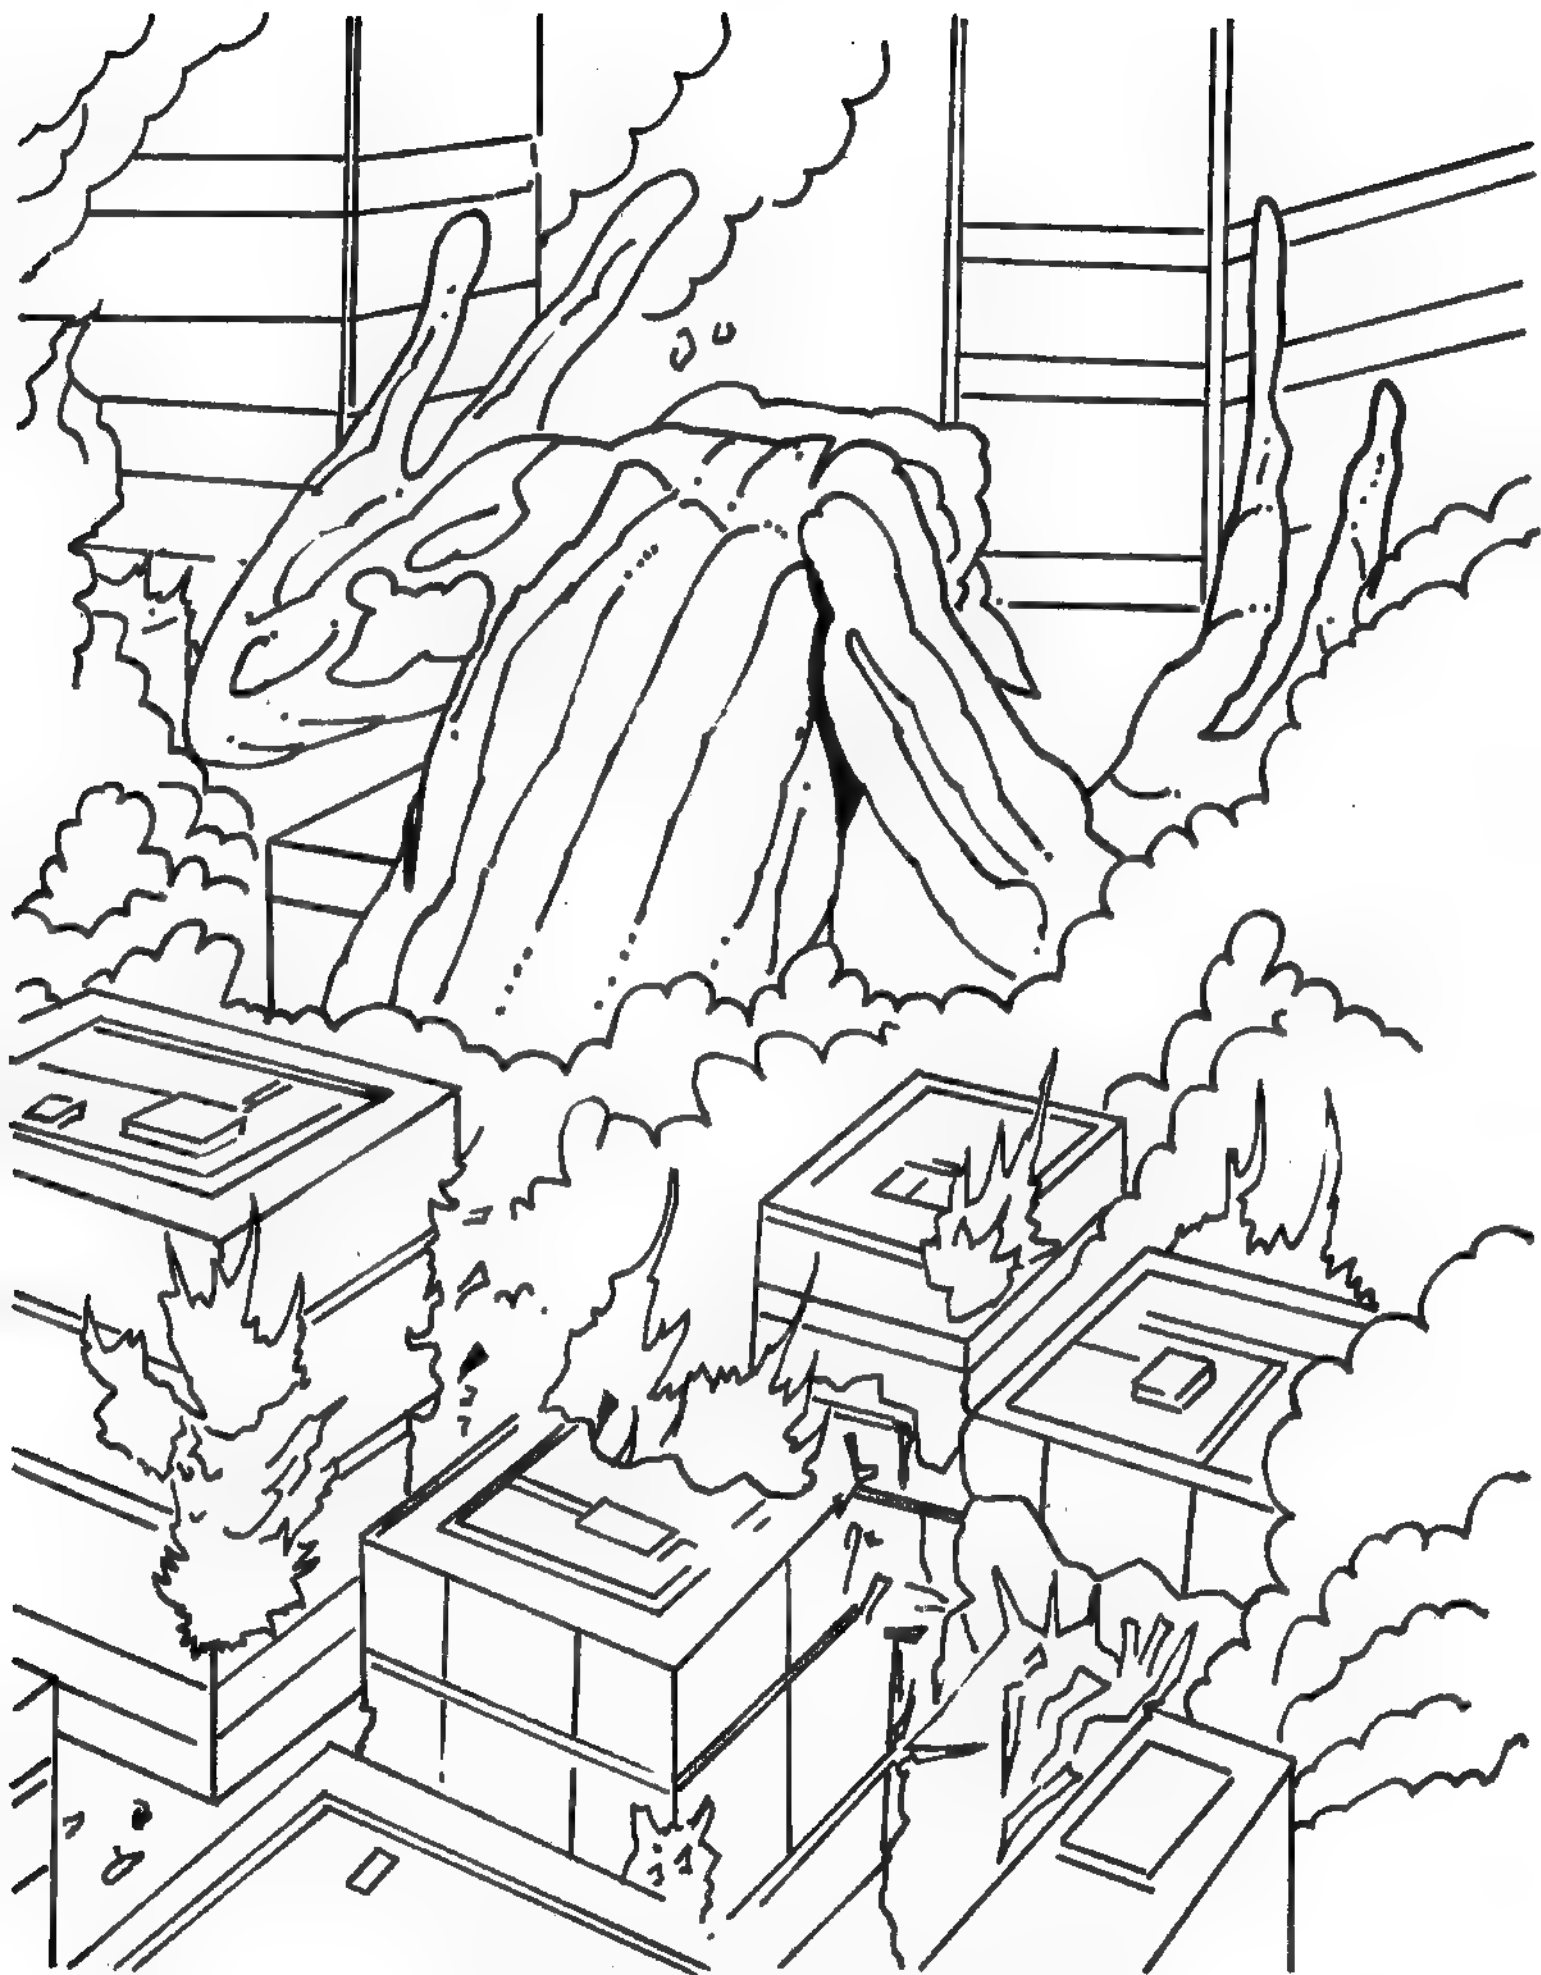

It's as if TENDRIL knows that an alien ally is inside.

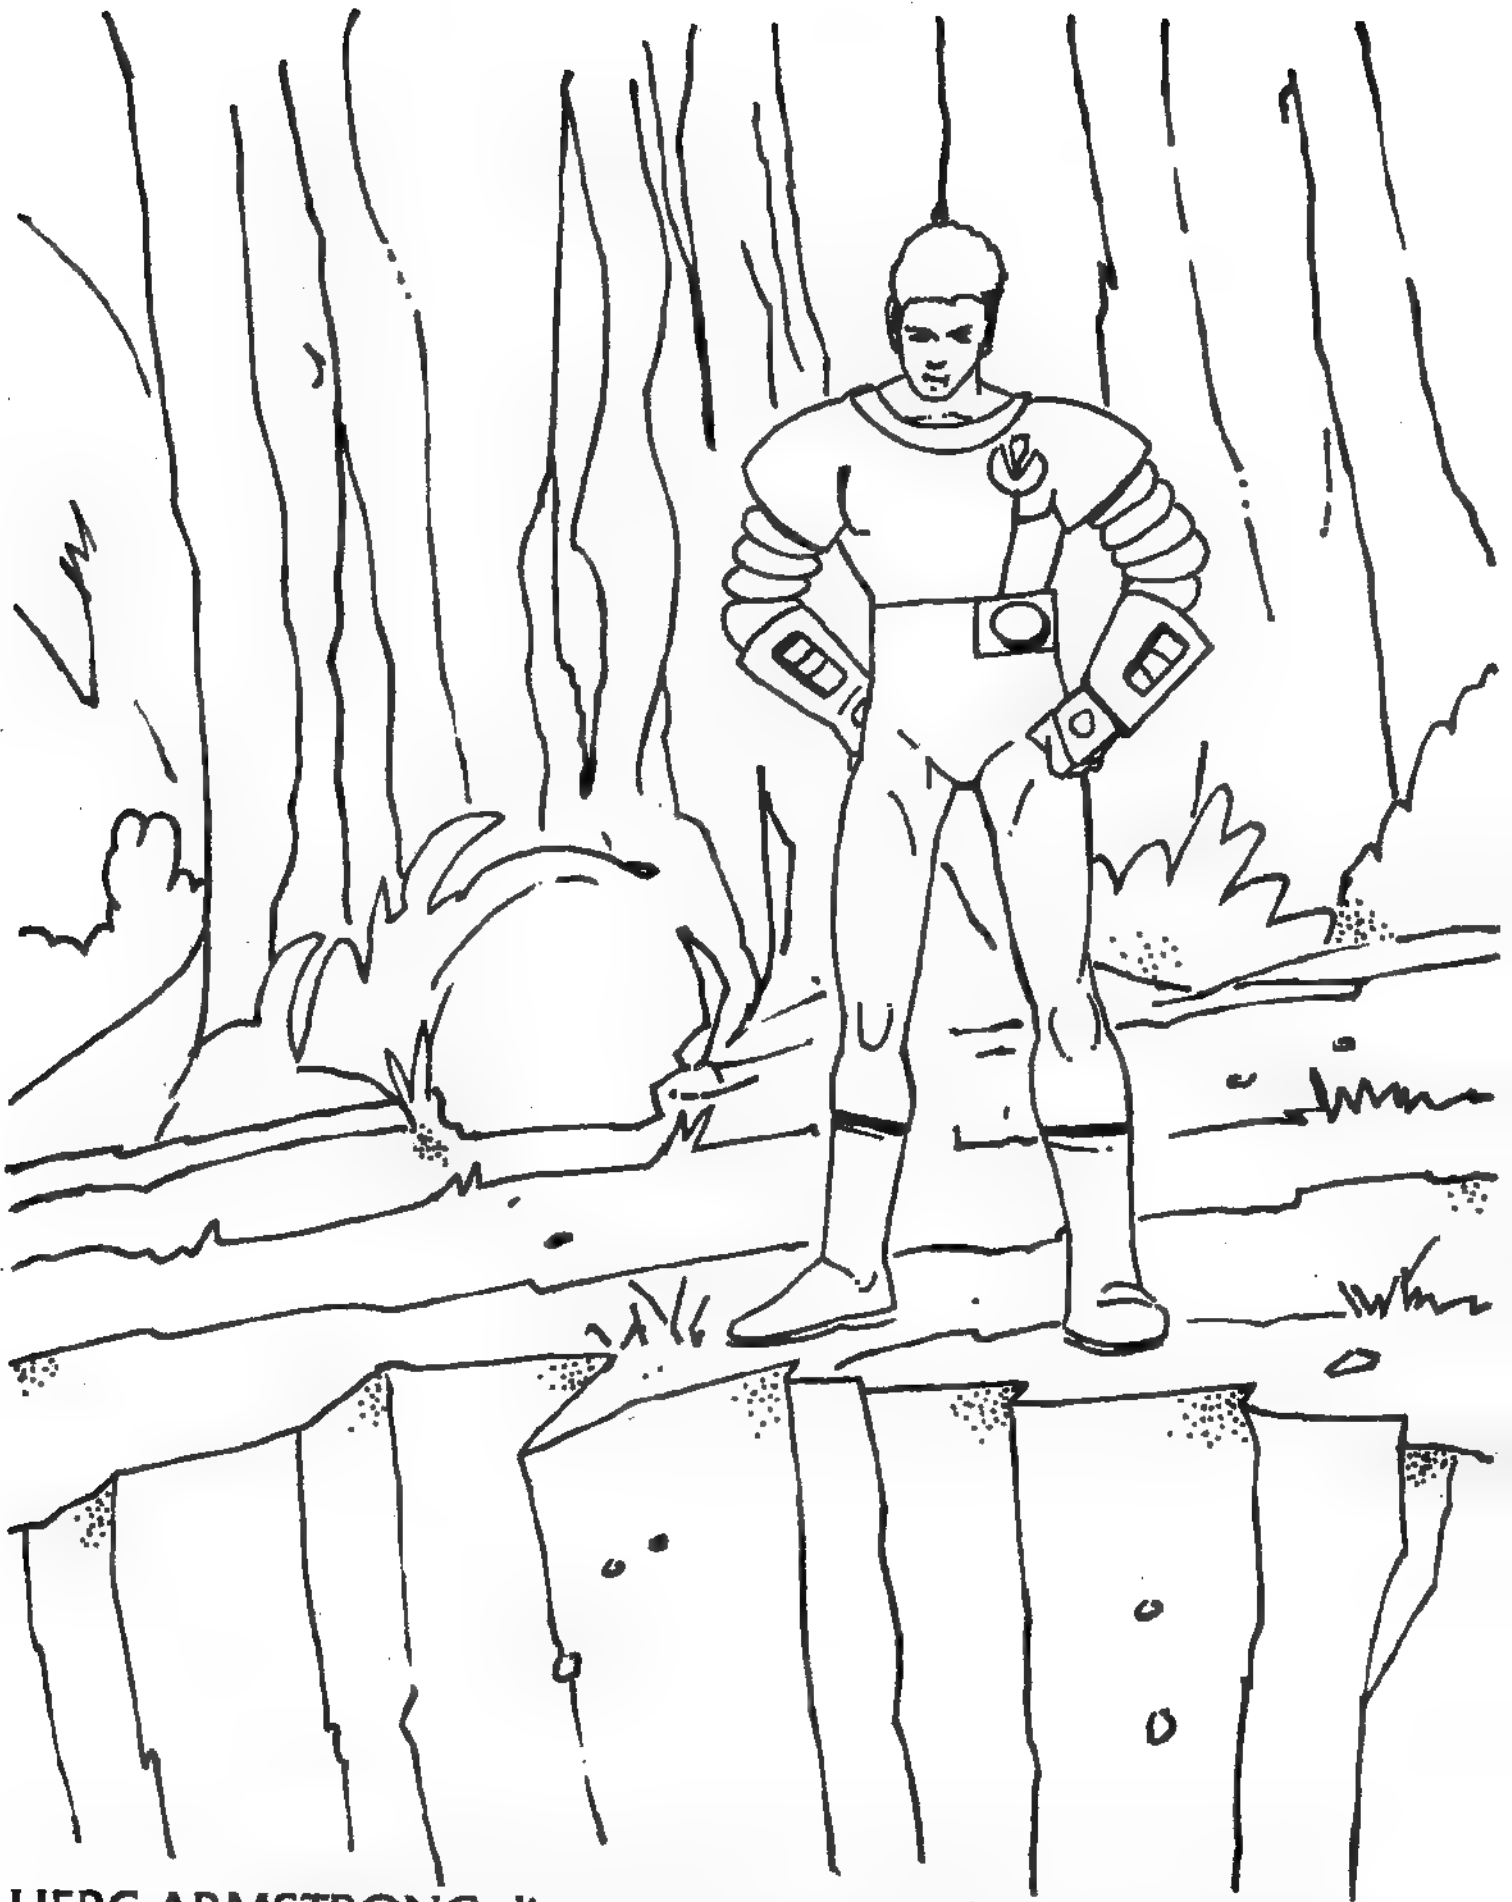

A hideous monster, D.COMPOSE, is unleashed from this statue of amber inside the museum.

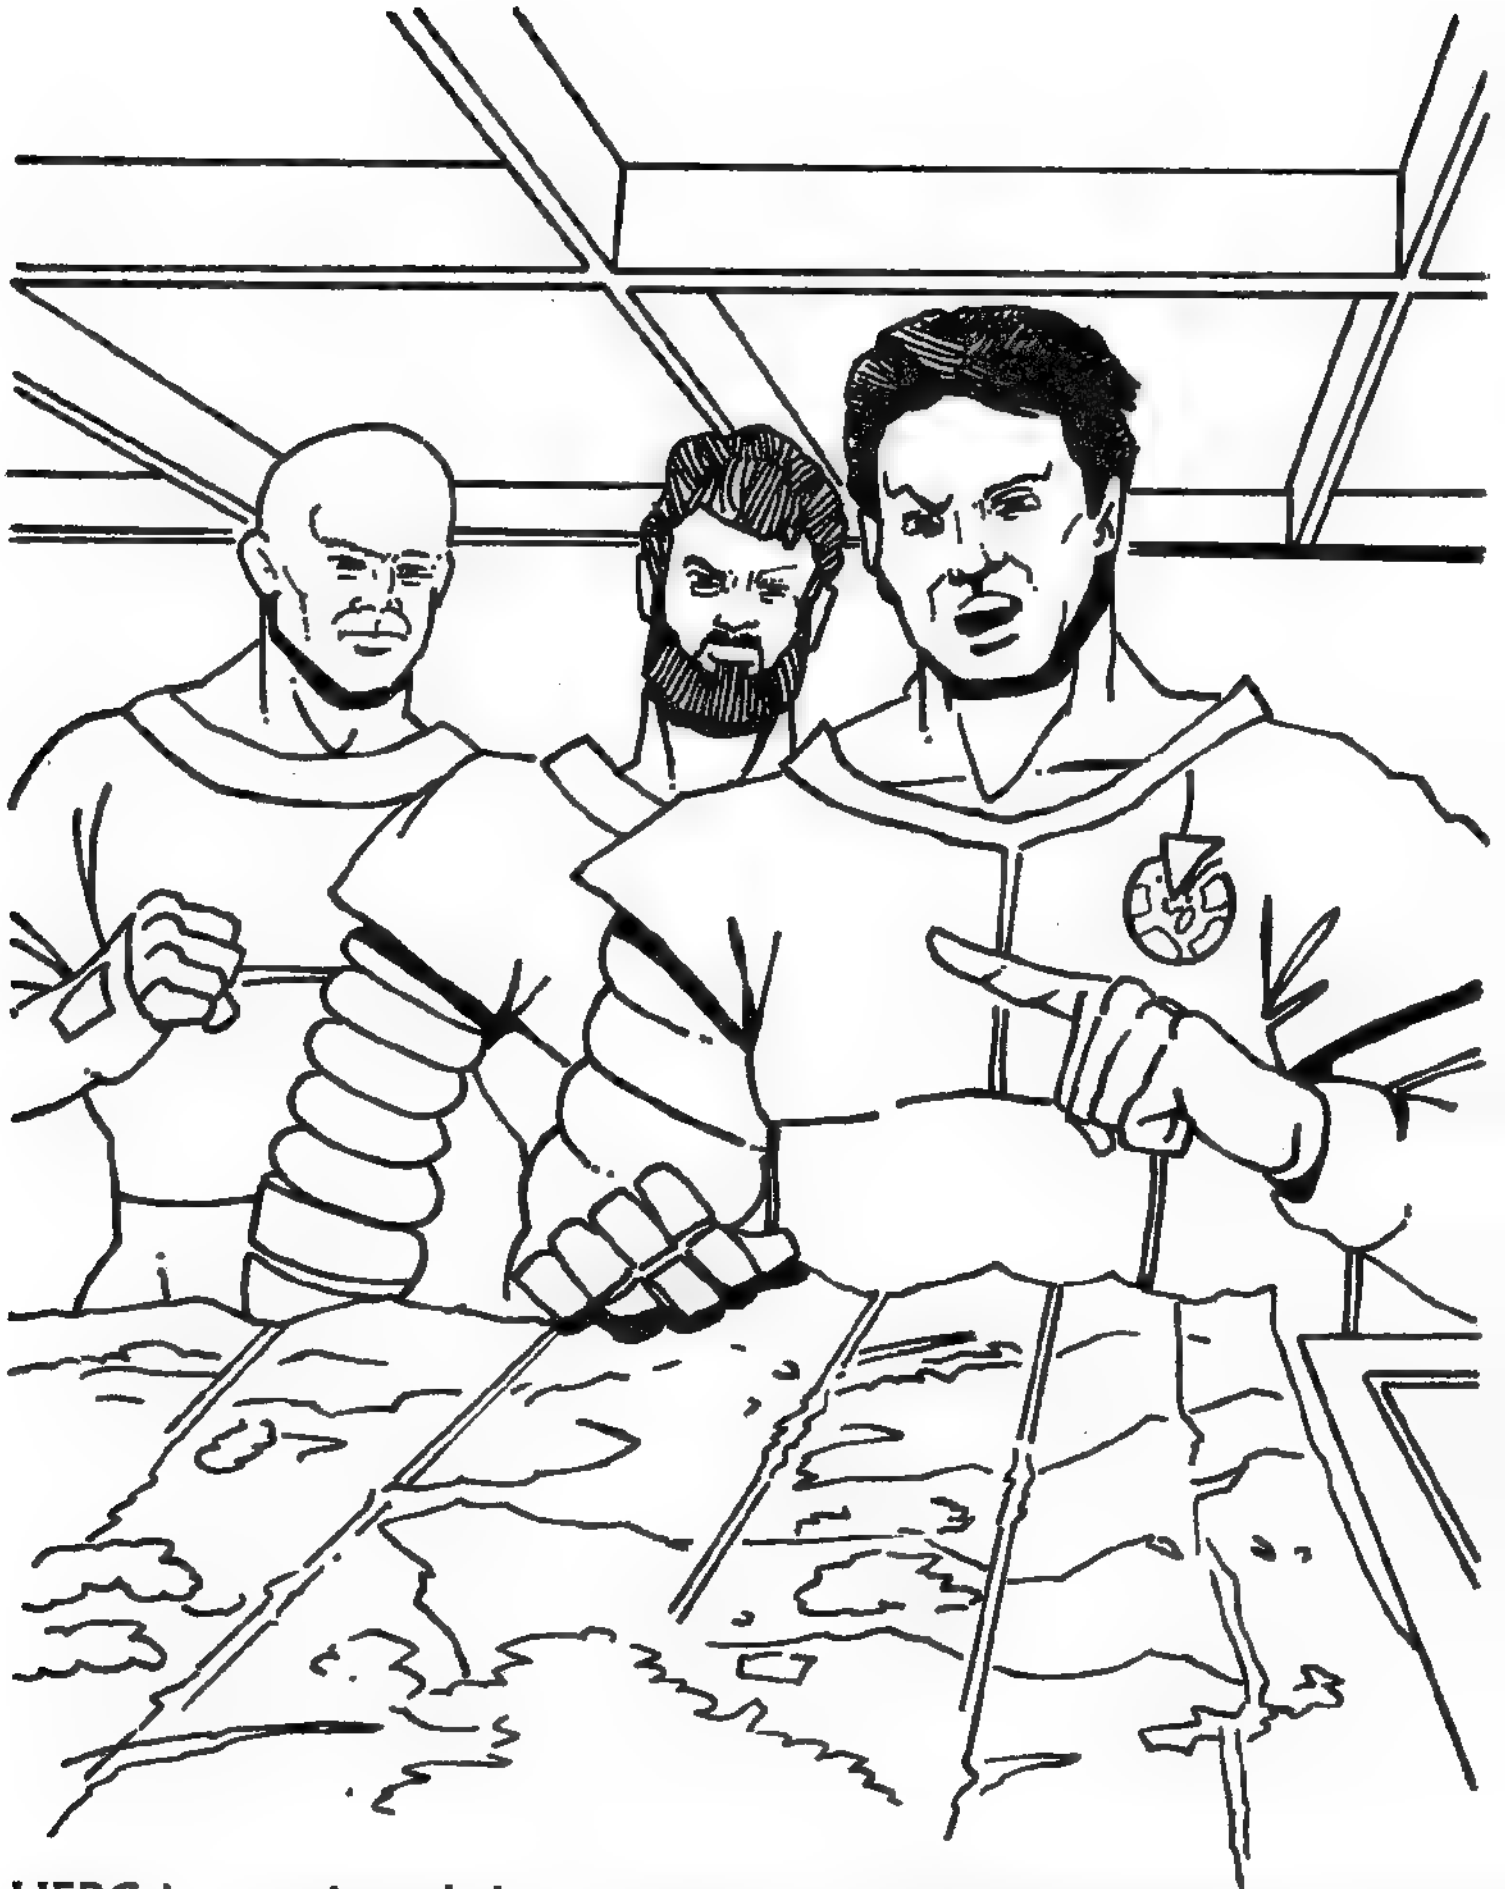

Together they flee the city...

...leaving it in total destruction.

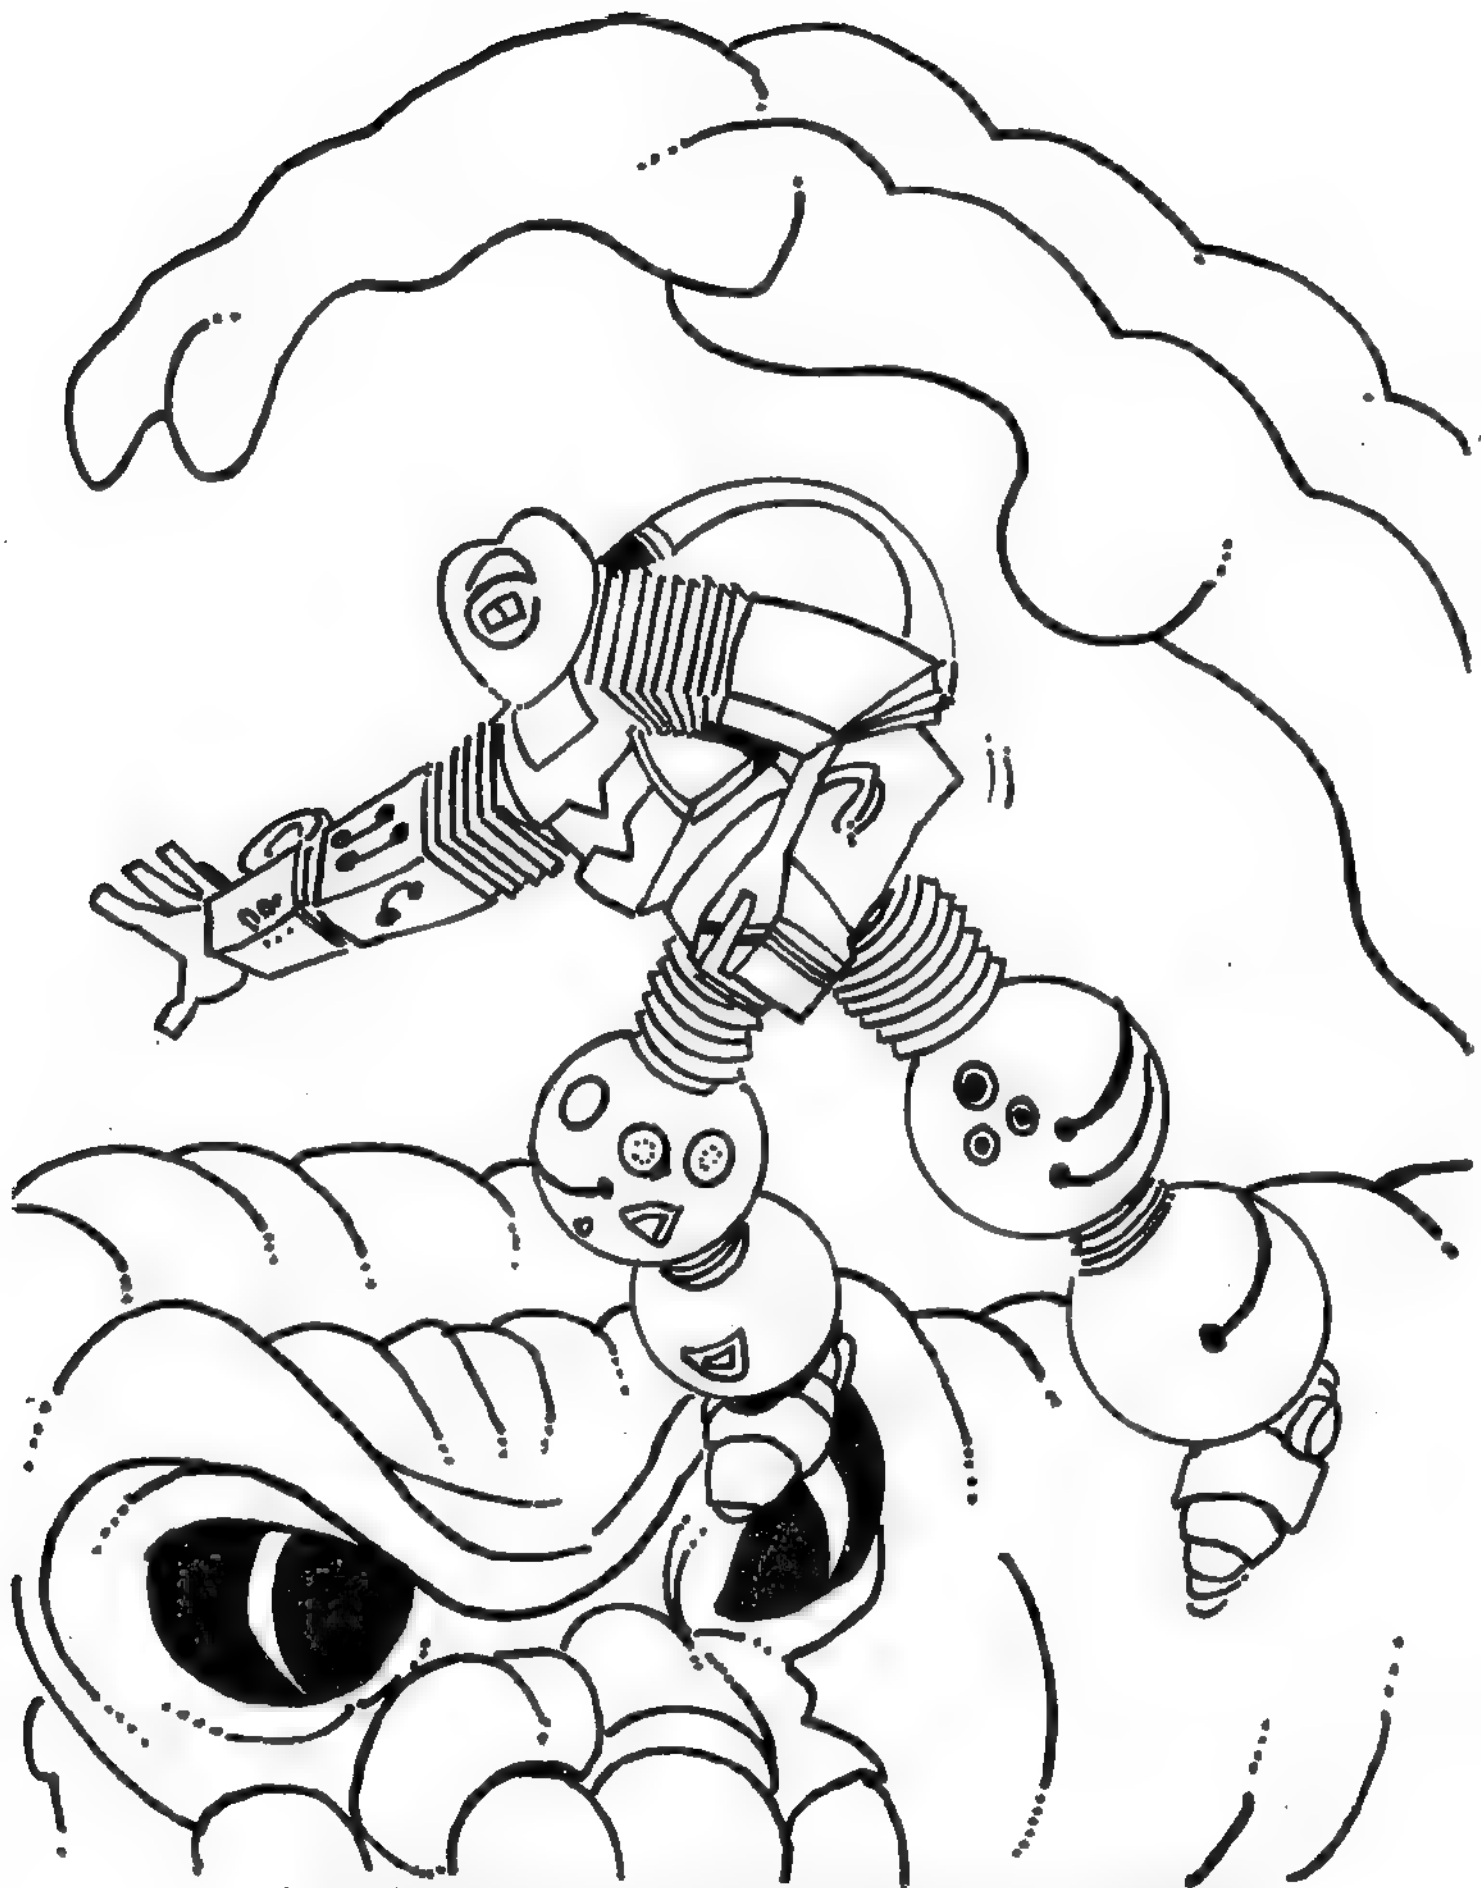

HERC ARMSTRONG discovers a massive hole at the sight of the earthquake.

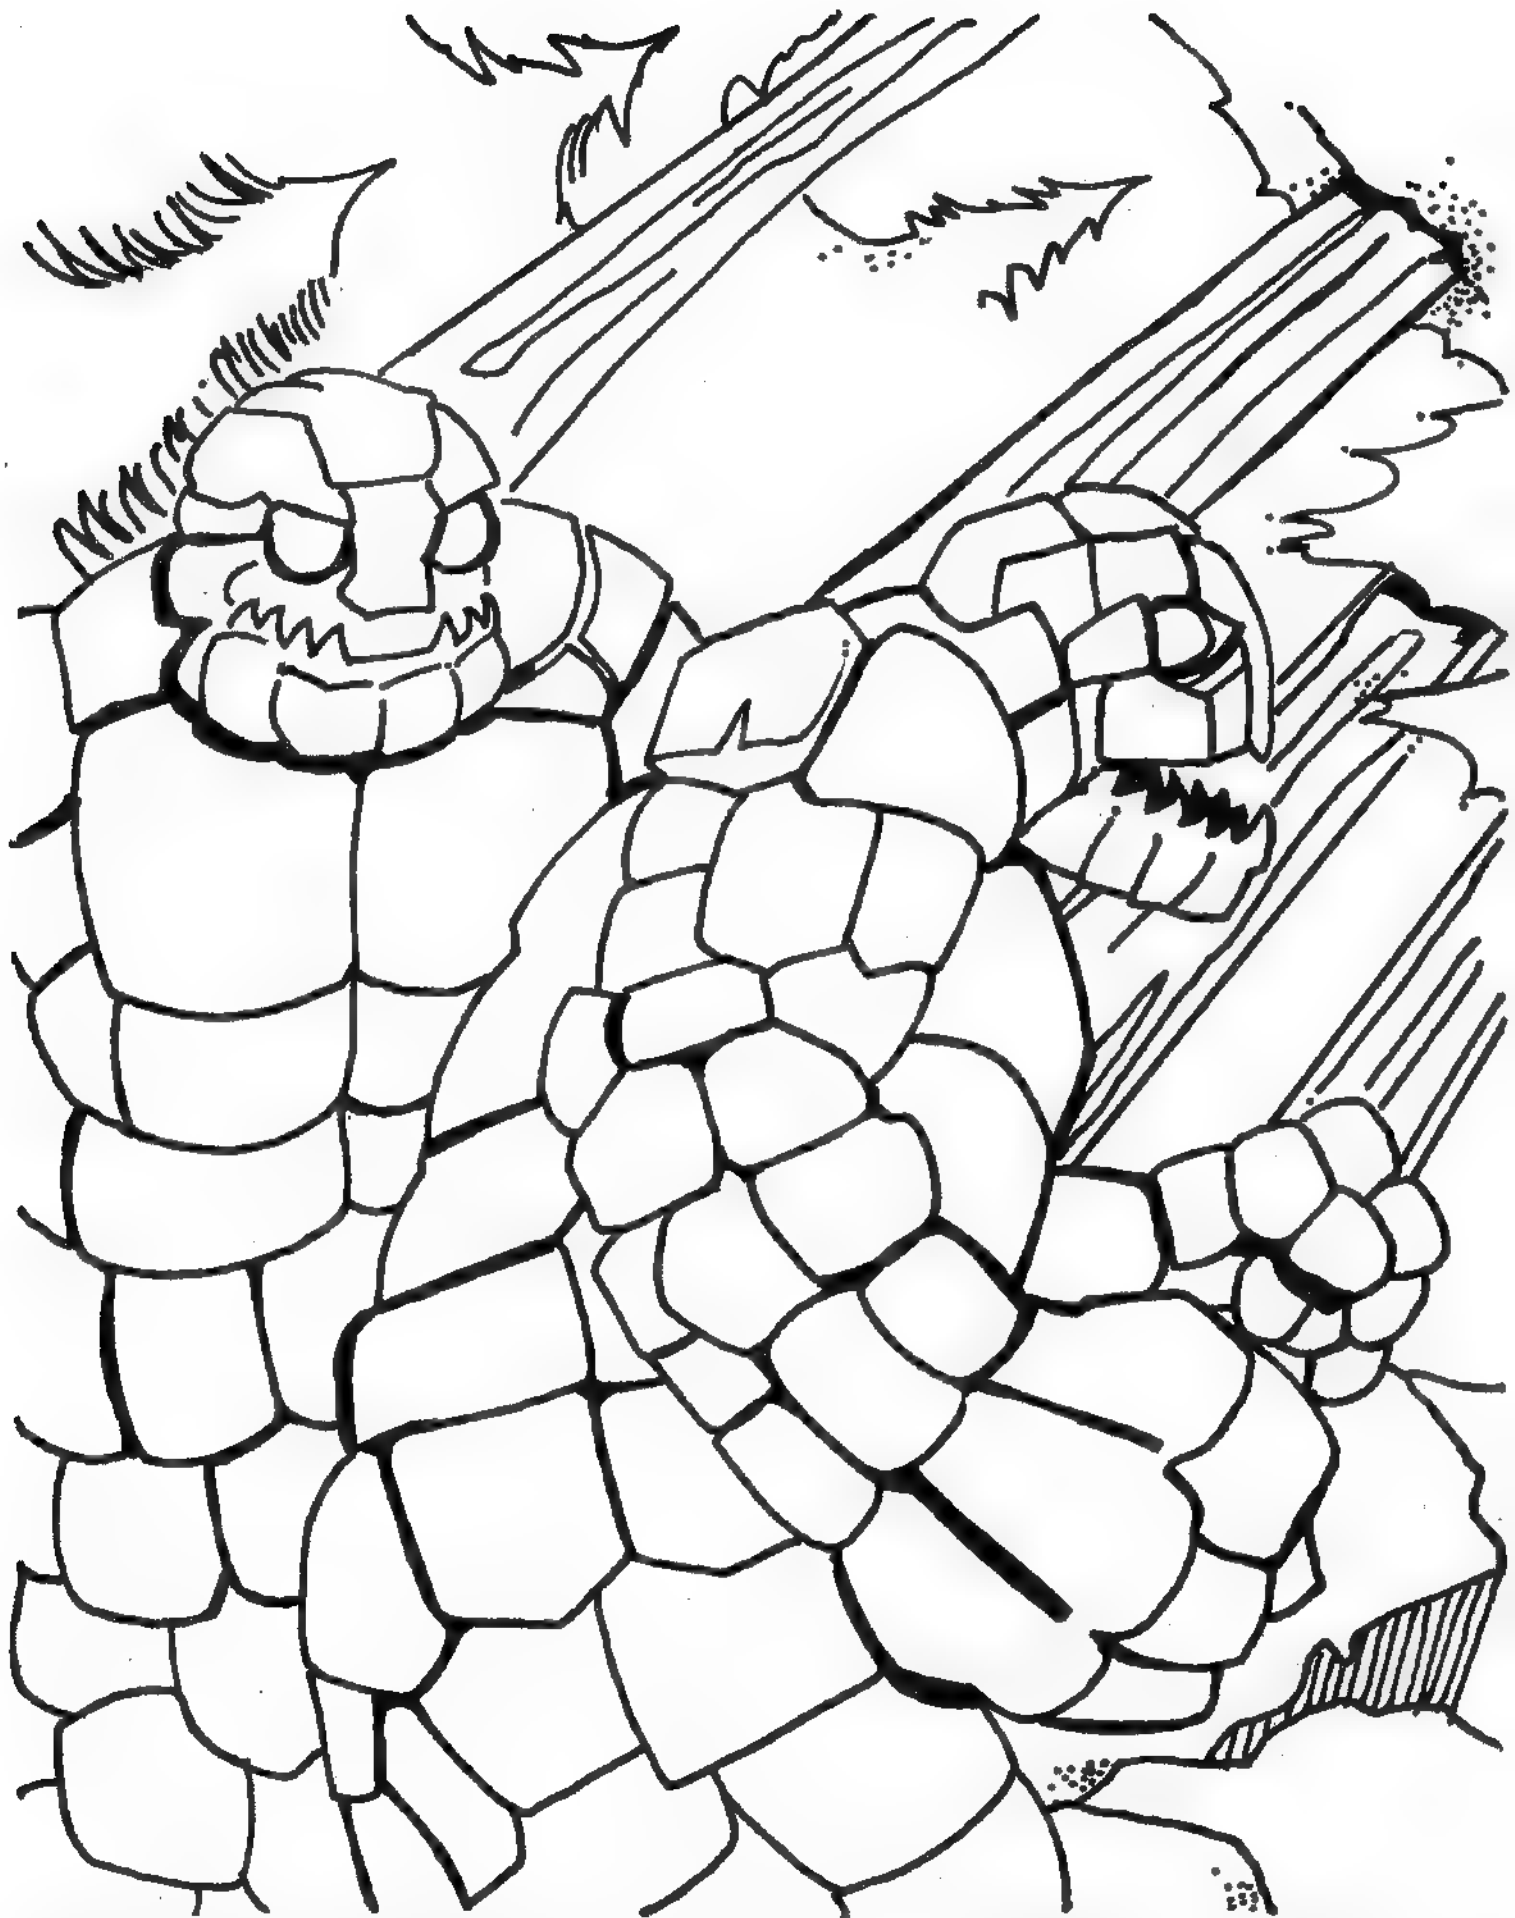

HERC is convinced the monsters came from below the Earth's surface and makes plans to investigate.

Members of the Earth Corps wear special suits...

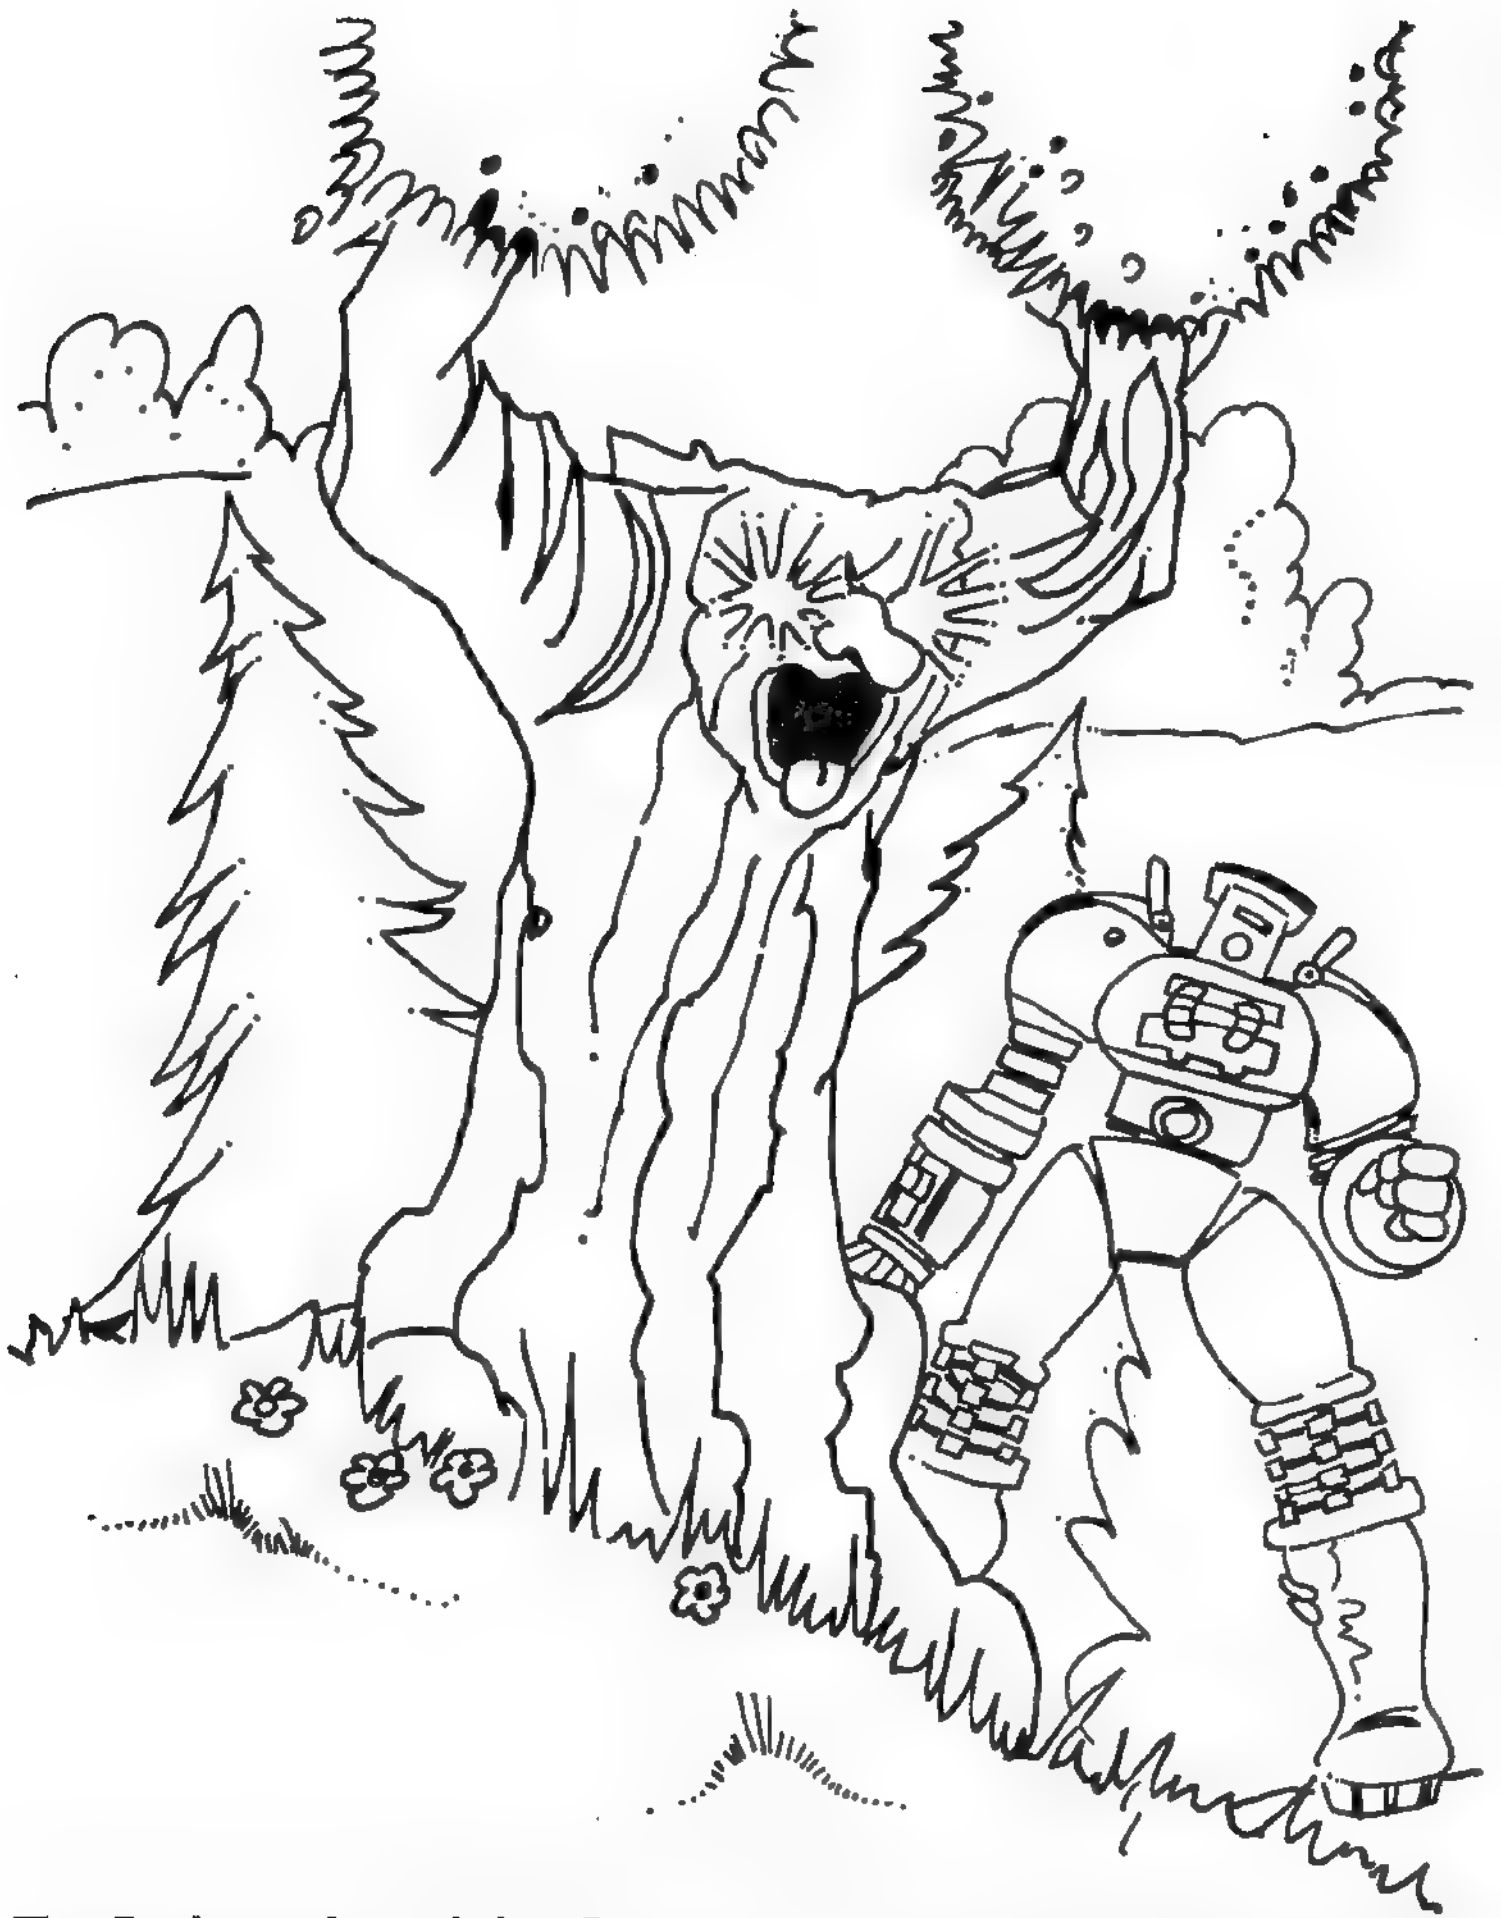

...but they are almost destroyed by TENDRIL.

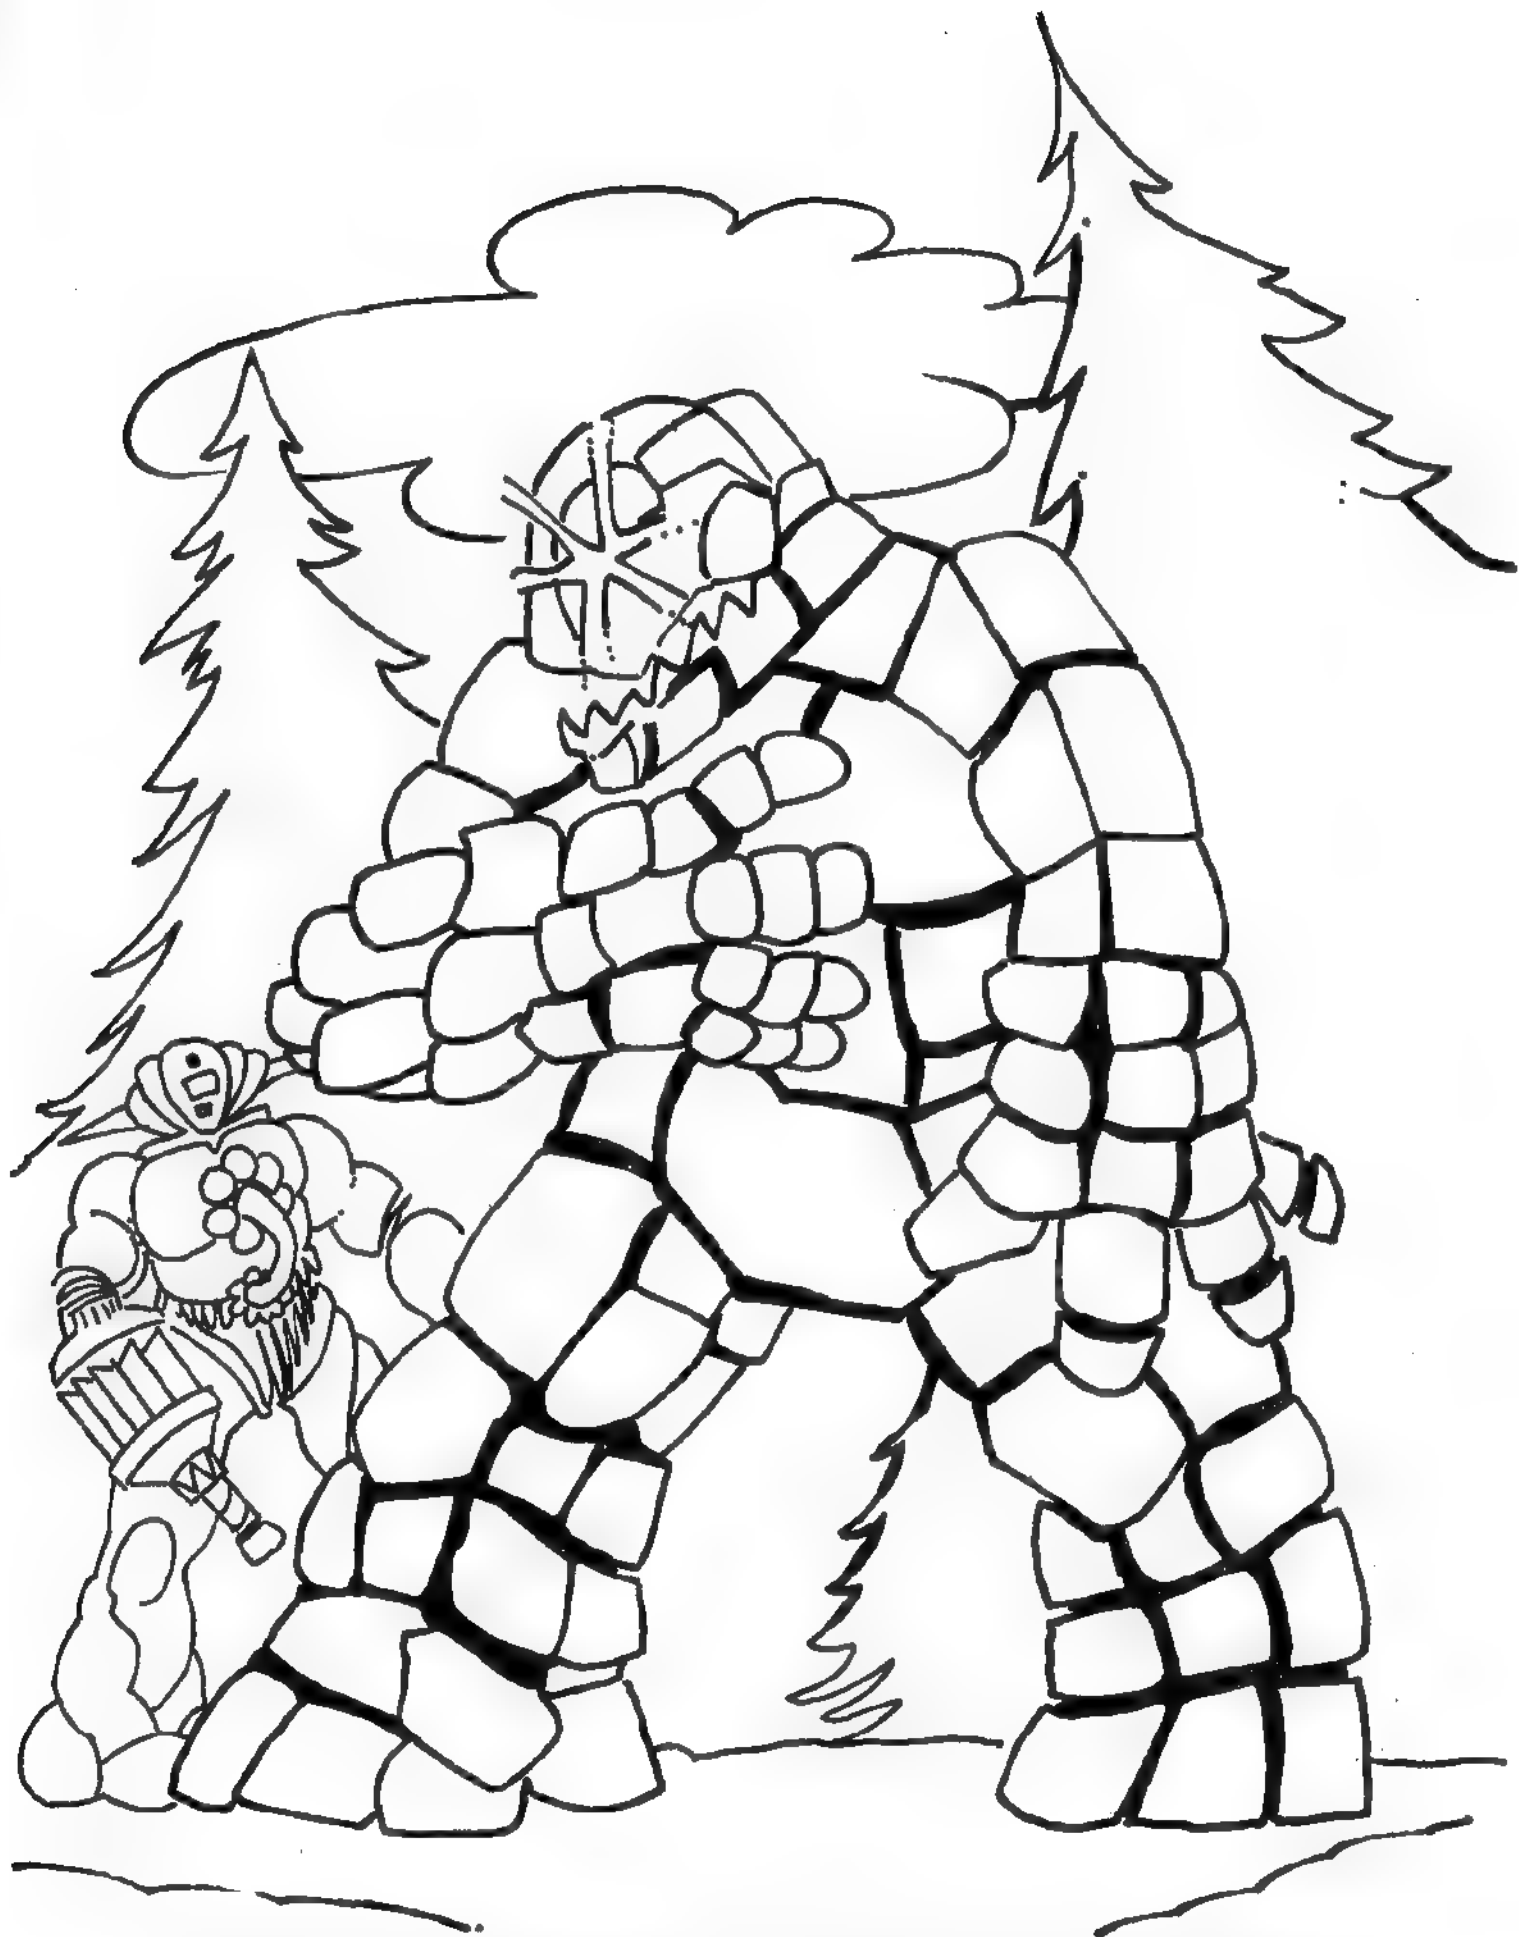

Granite Scouts set out to make contact with the Redwoods and make a counter attack!

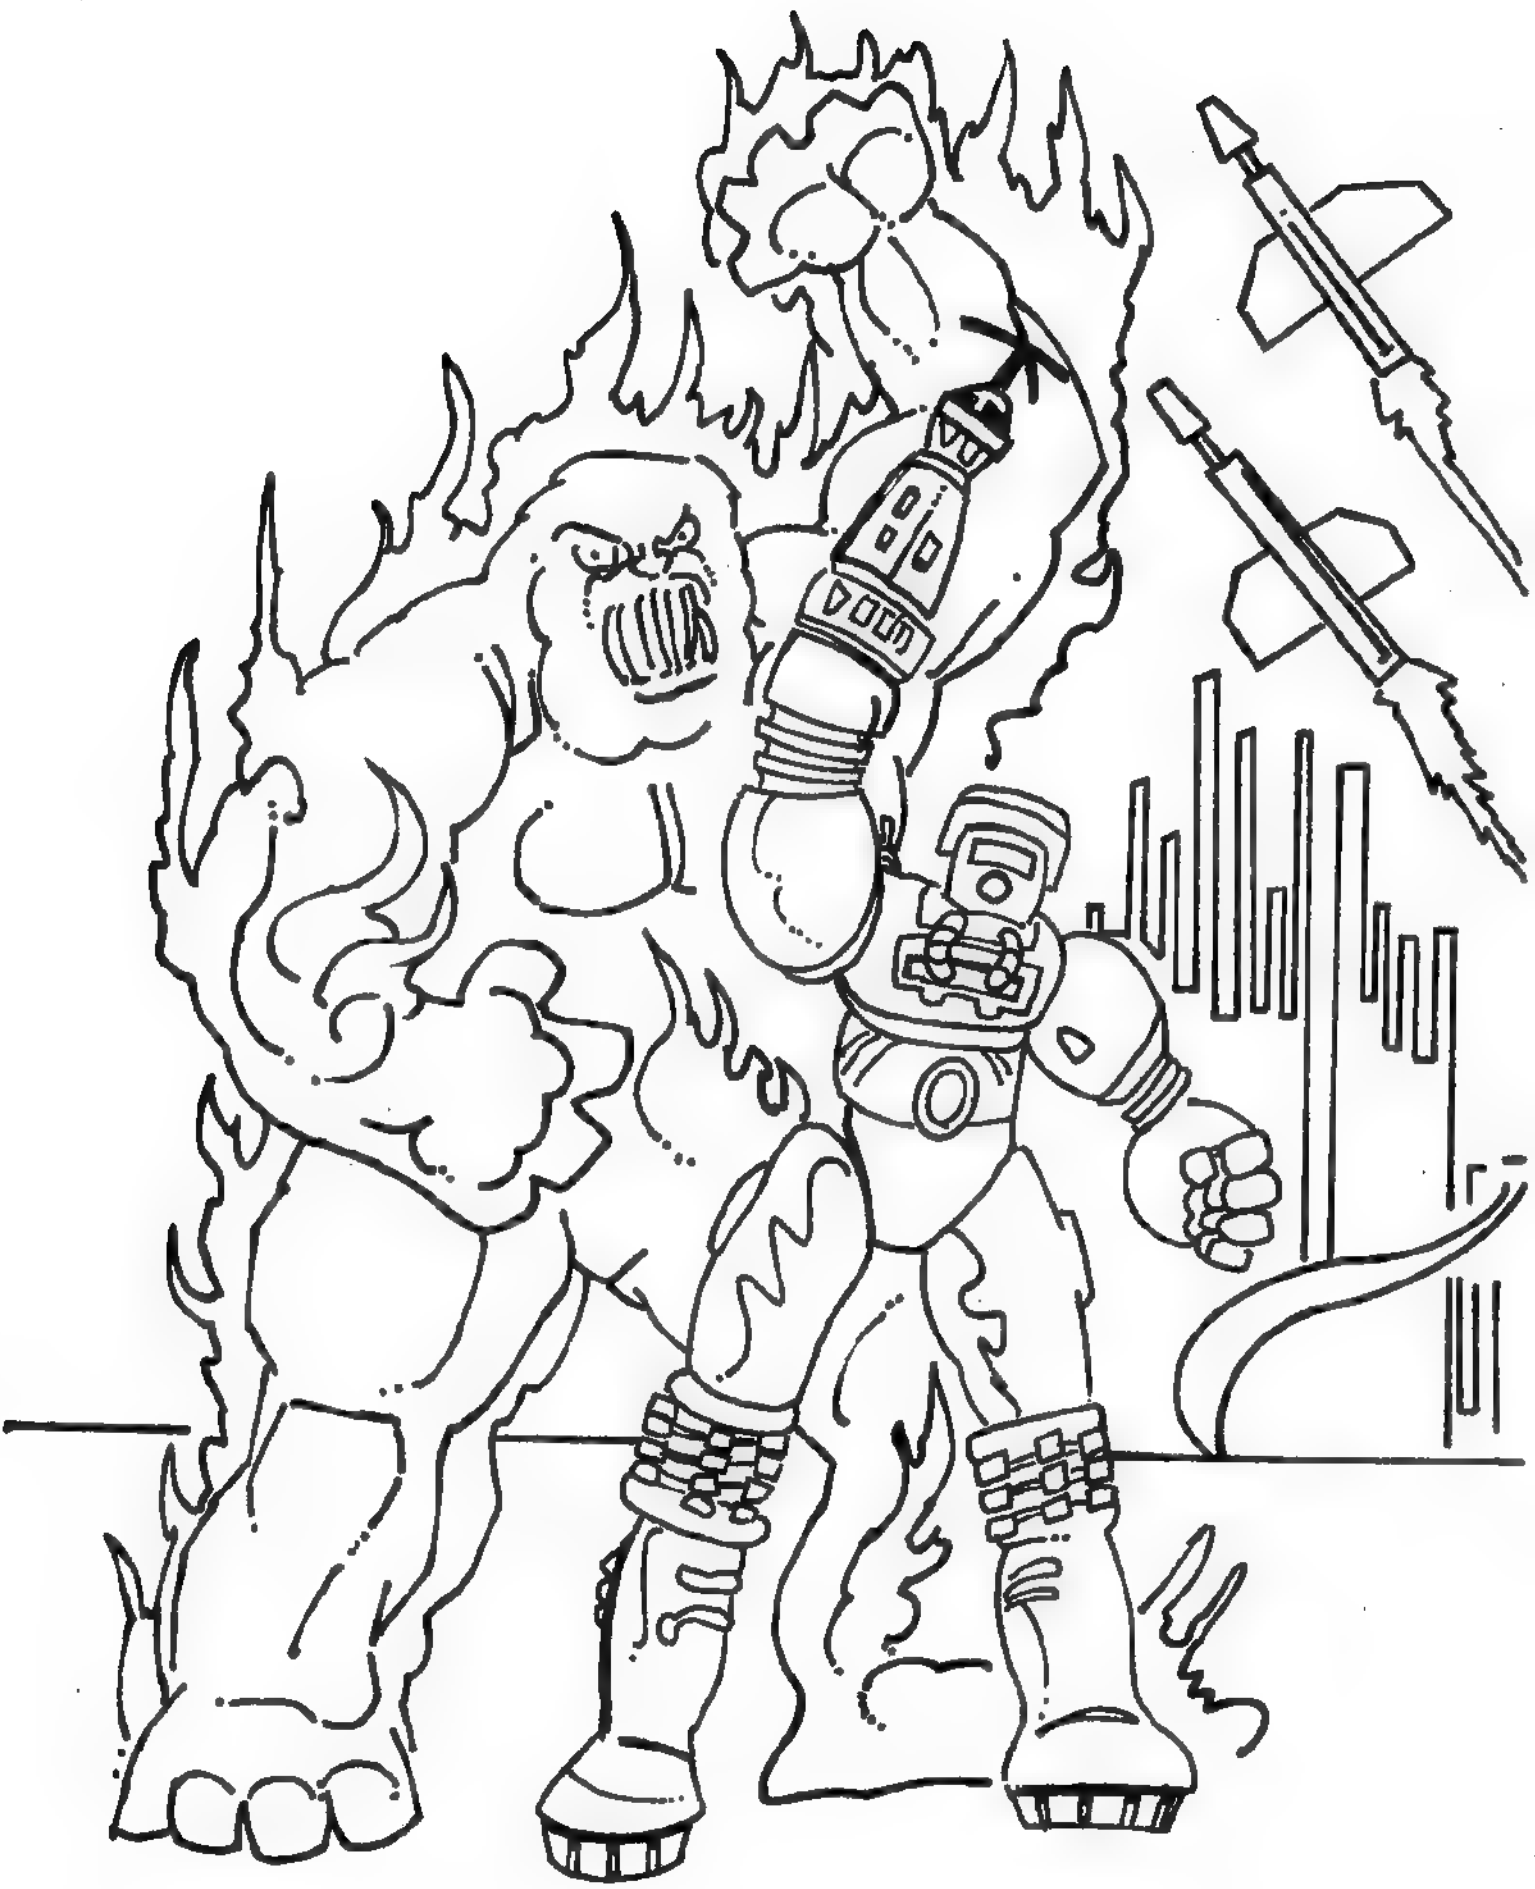

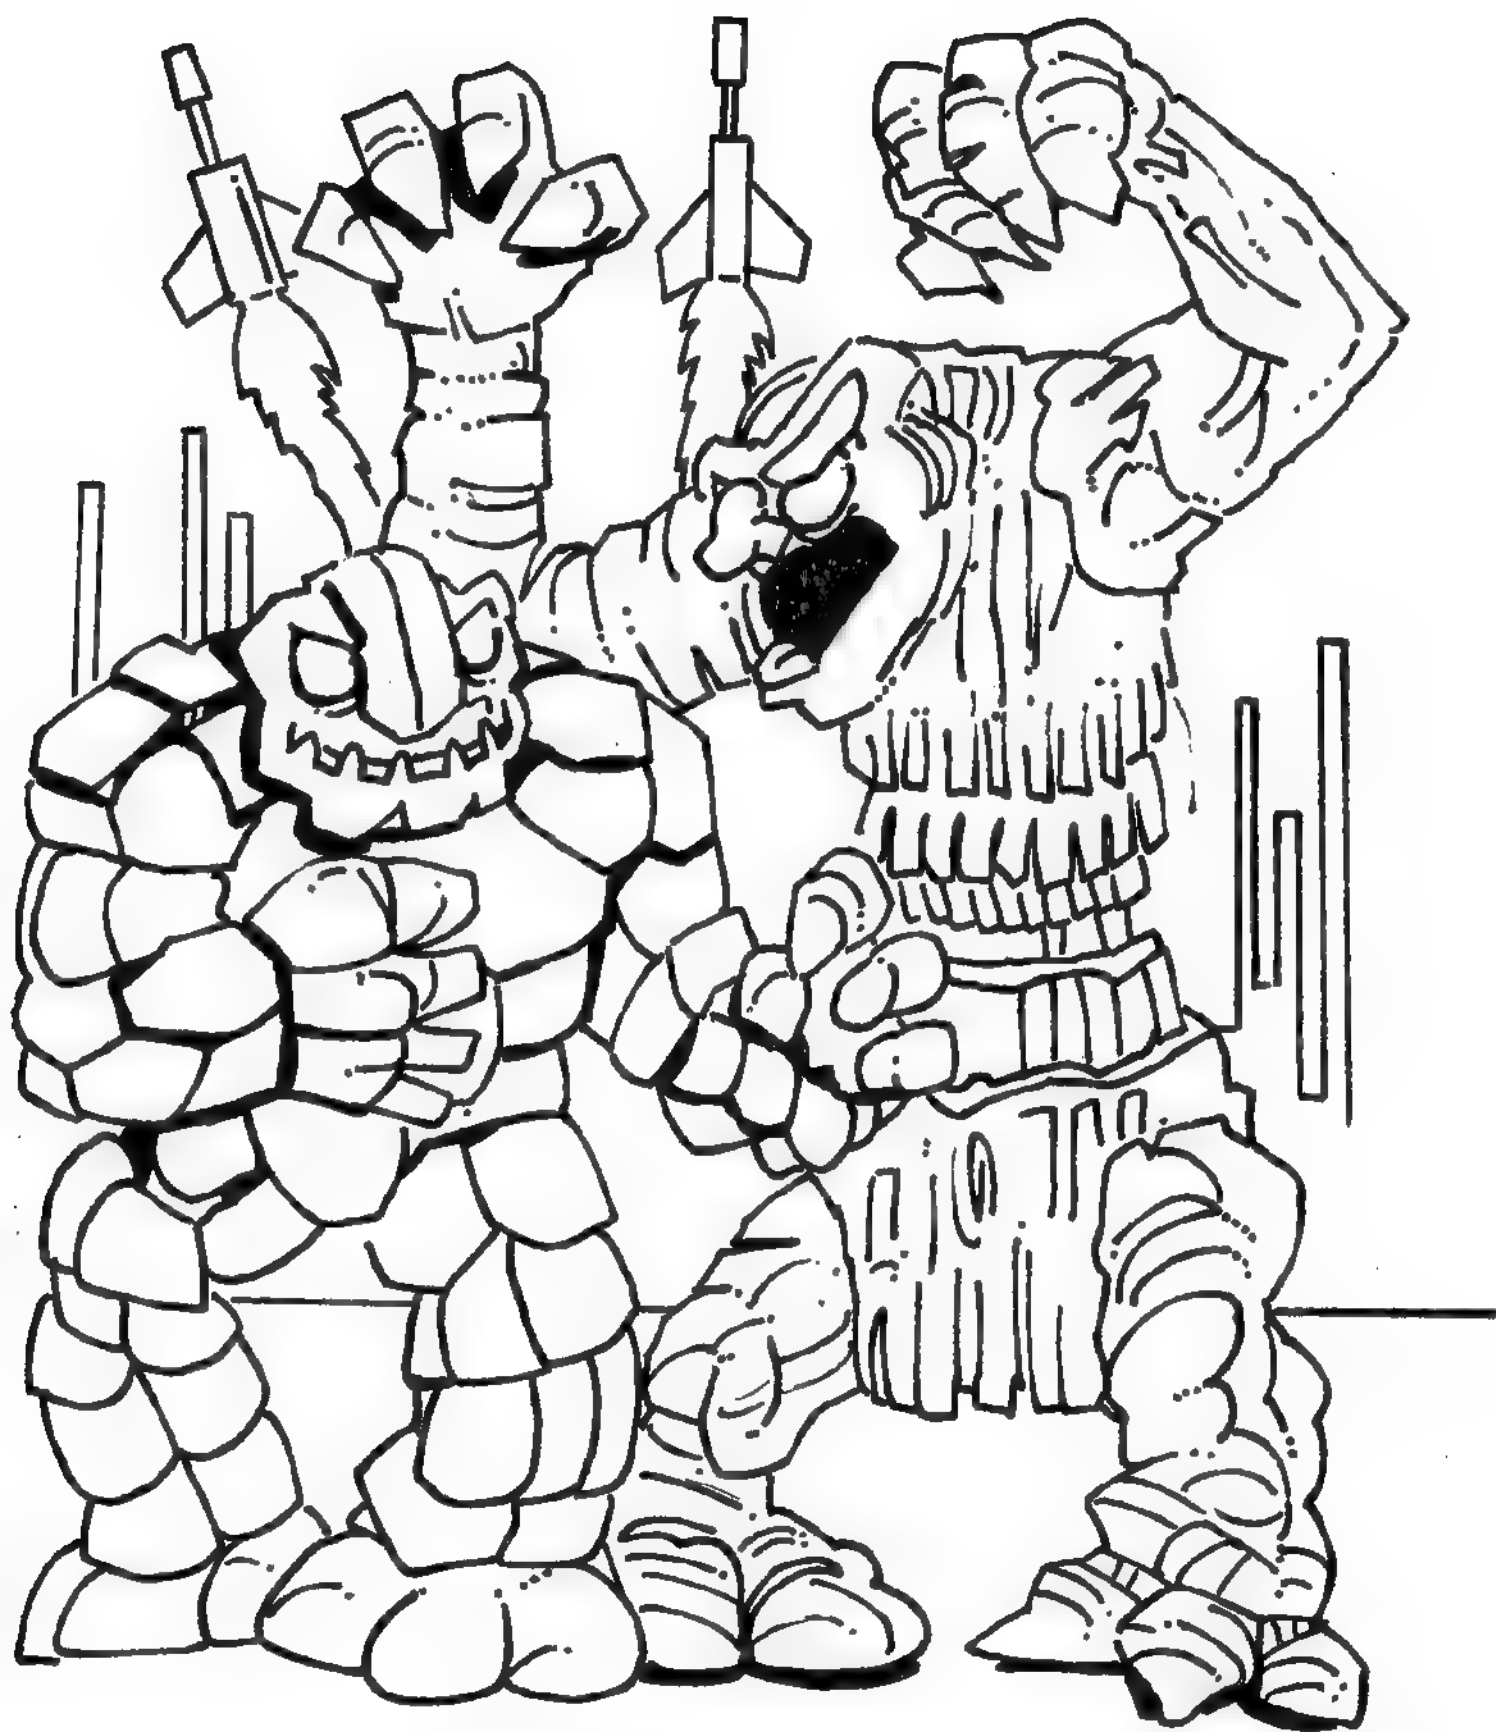

The Redwoods and the Granites are involved in a war below the Earth's surface.

The Mutores are fearful that METLAR will be released.

The Mutores and the Earth Corps promise to work together.

They create weapons and vehicles to fight the INHUMANOIDS.

METLAR is released and the battle begins!

The INHUMANOIDS stalk the Mutores and set out to destroy them.

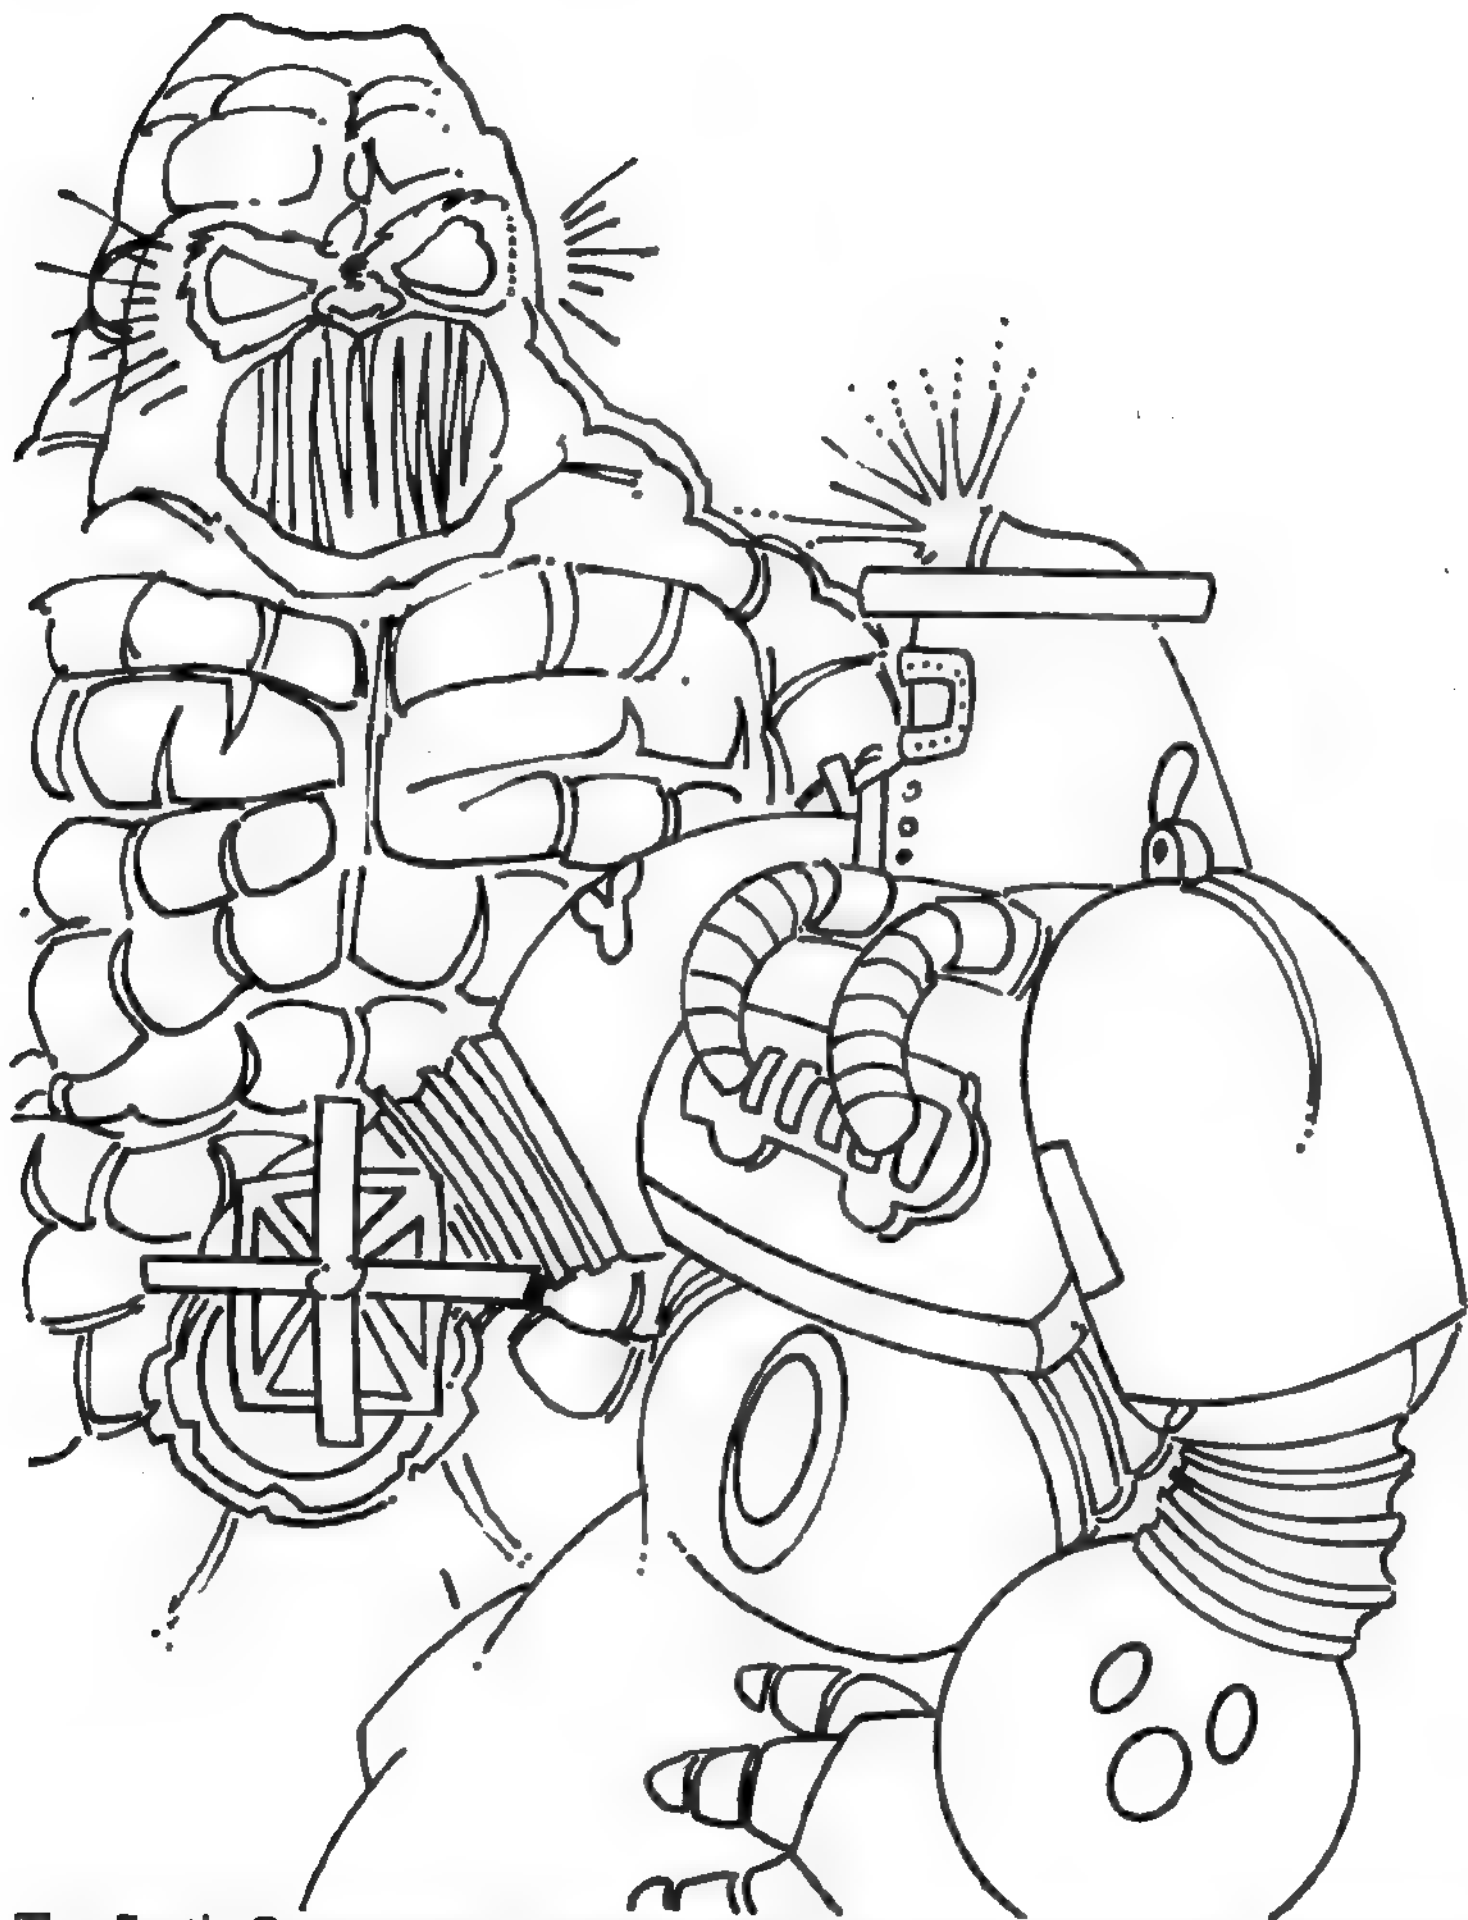

HERC uses a special weapon to melt a path...

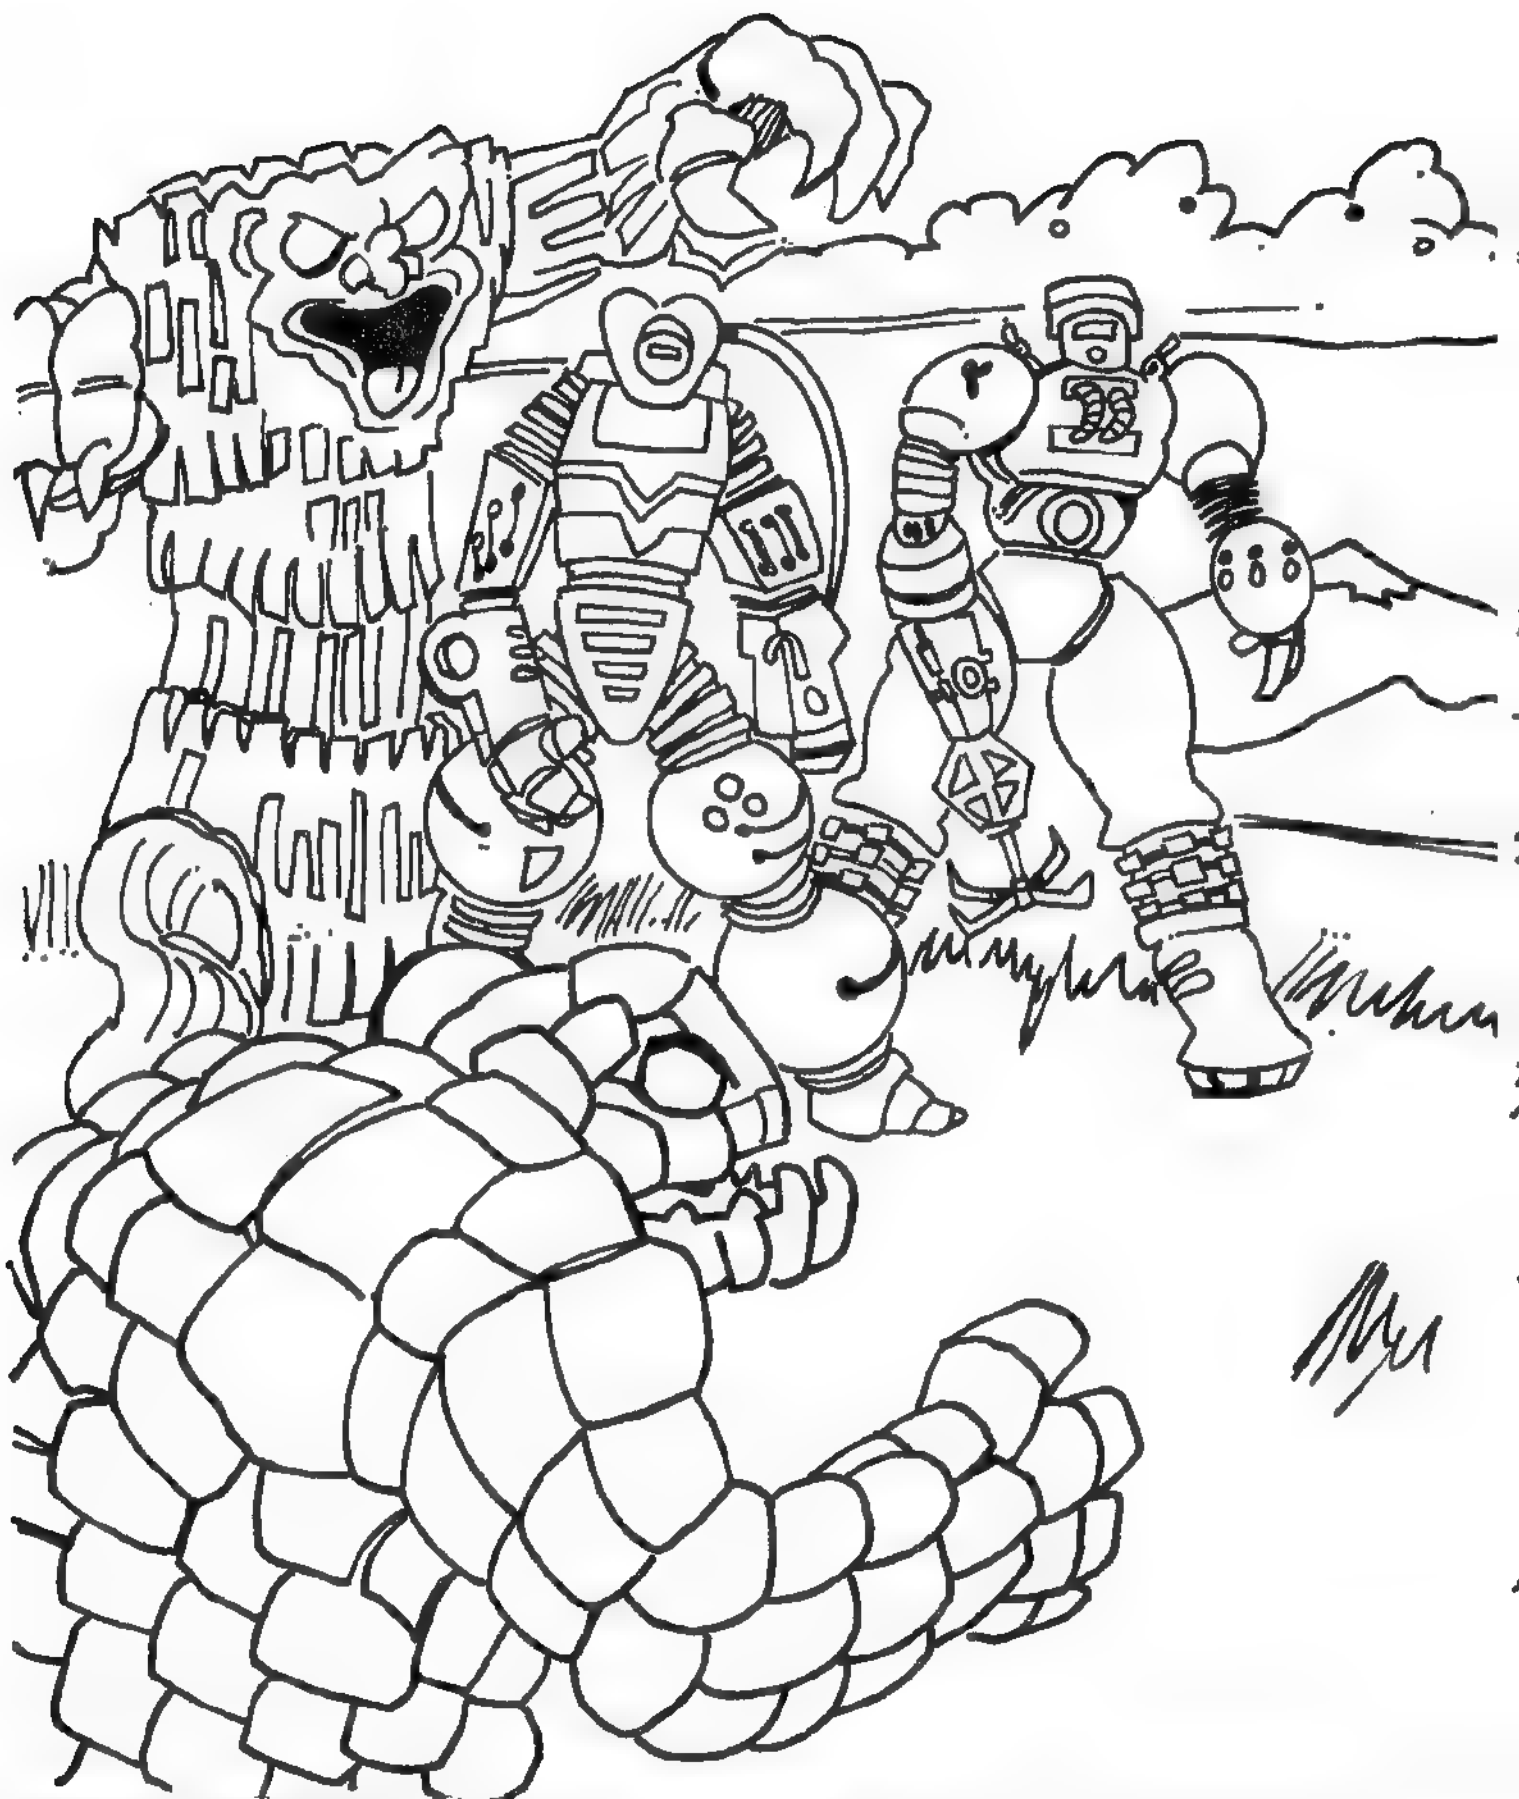

...too narrow for the INHUMANOIDs to follow.

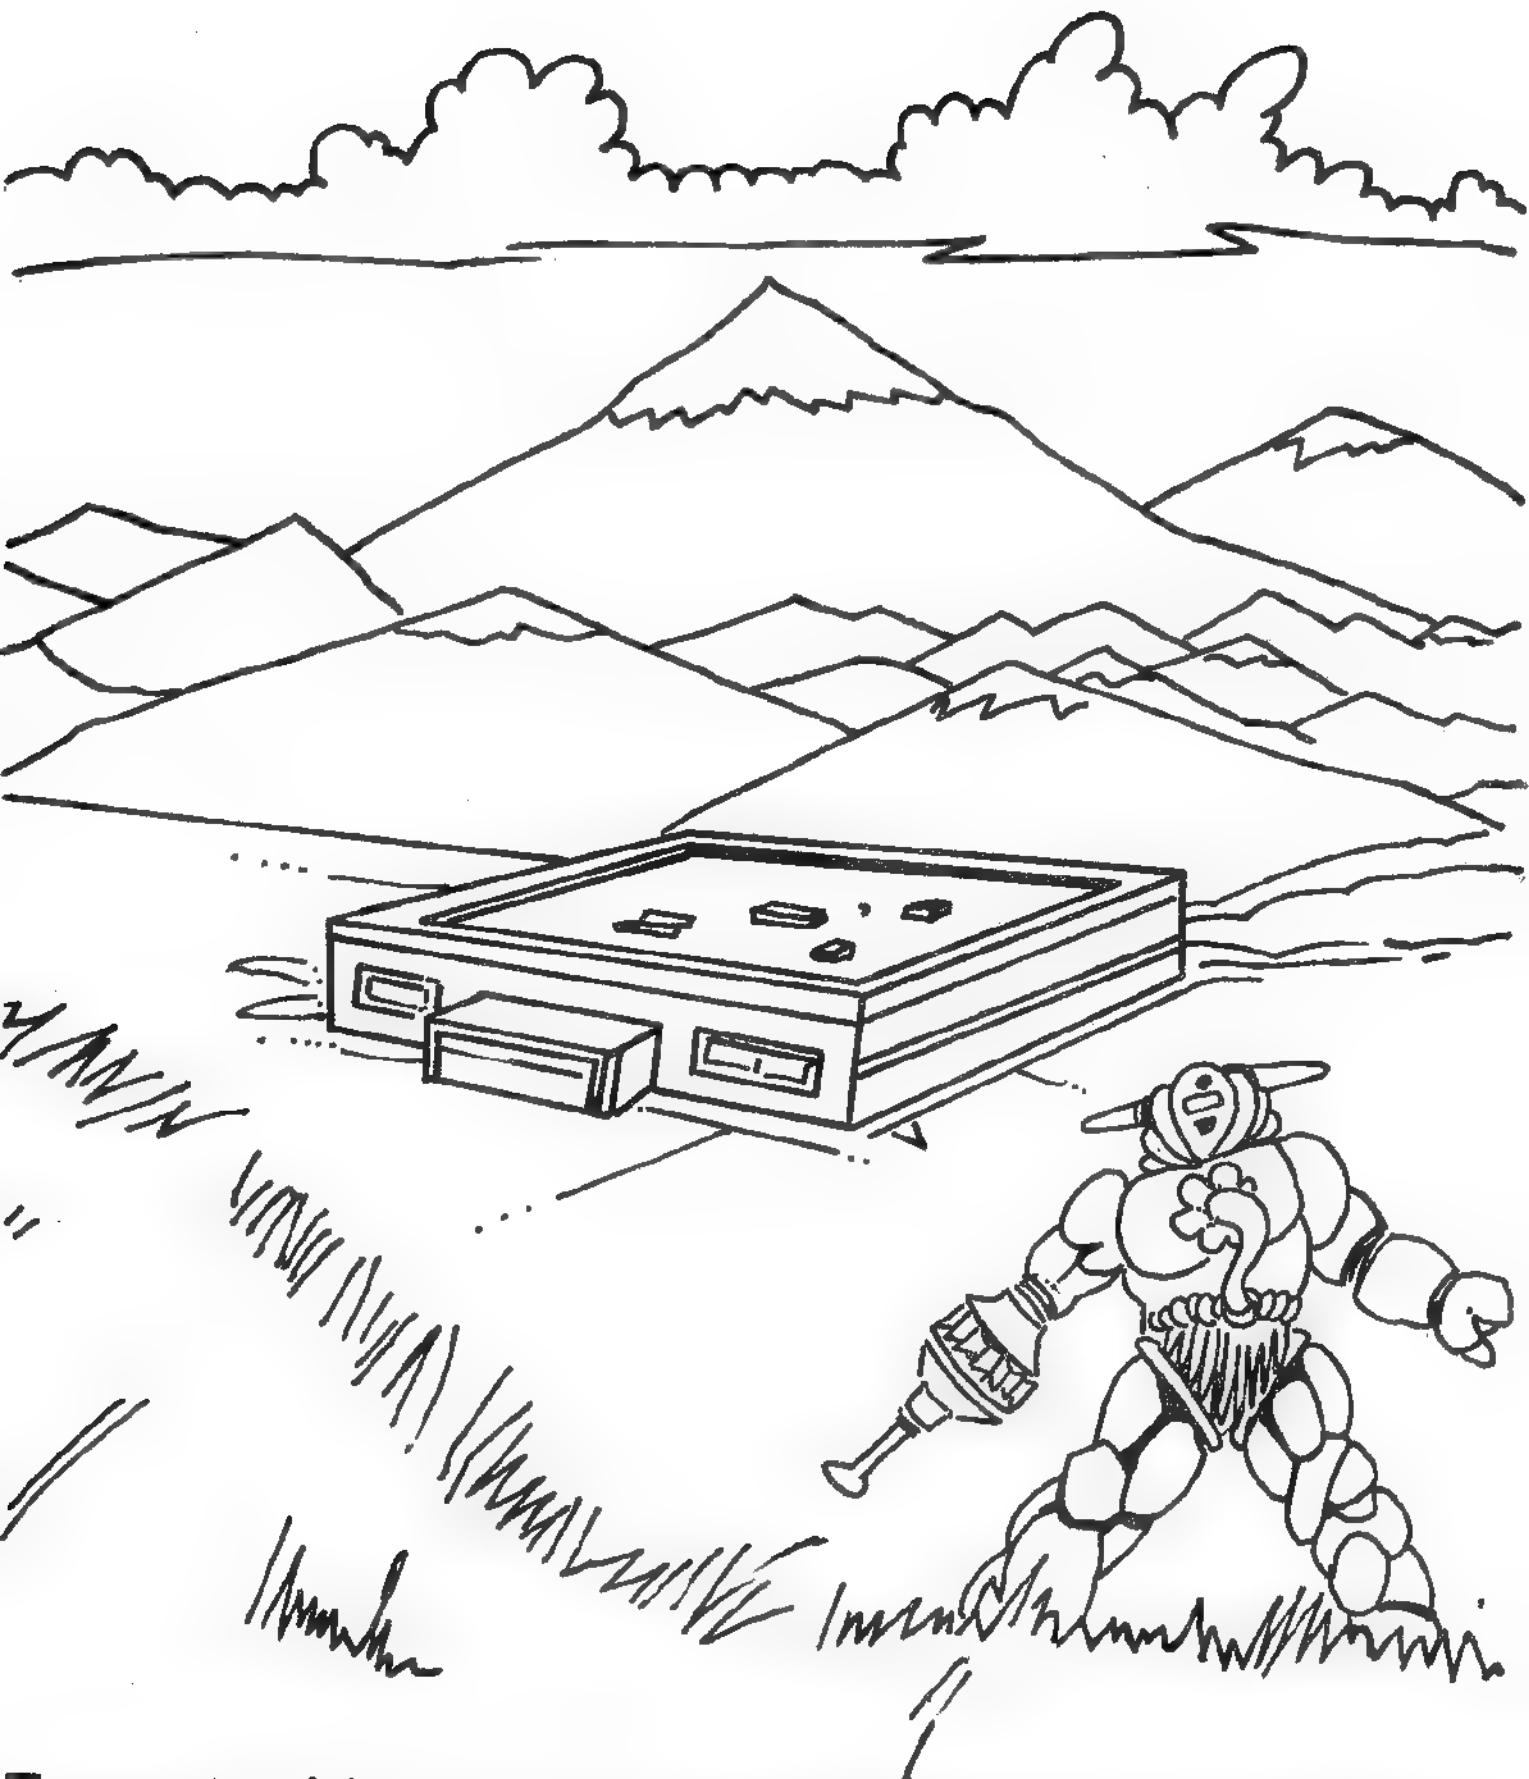

The Mutores can communicate by flashing their eyes.

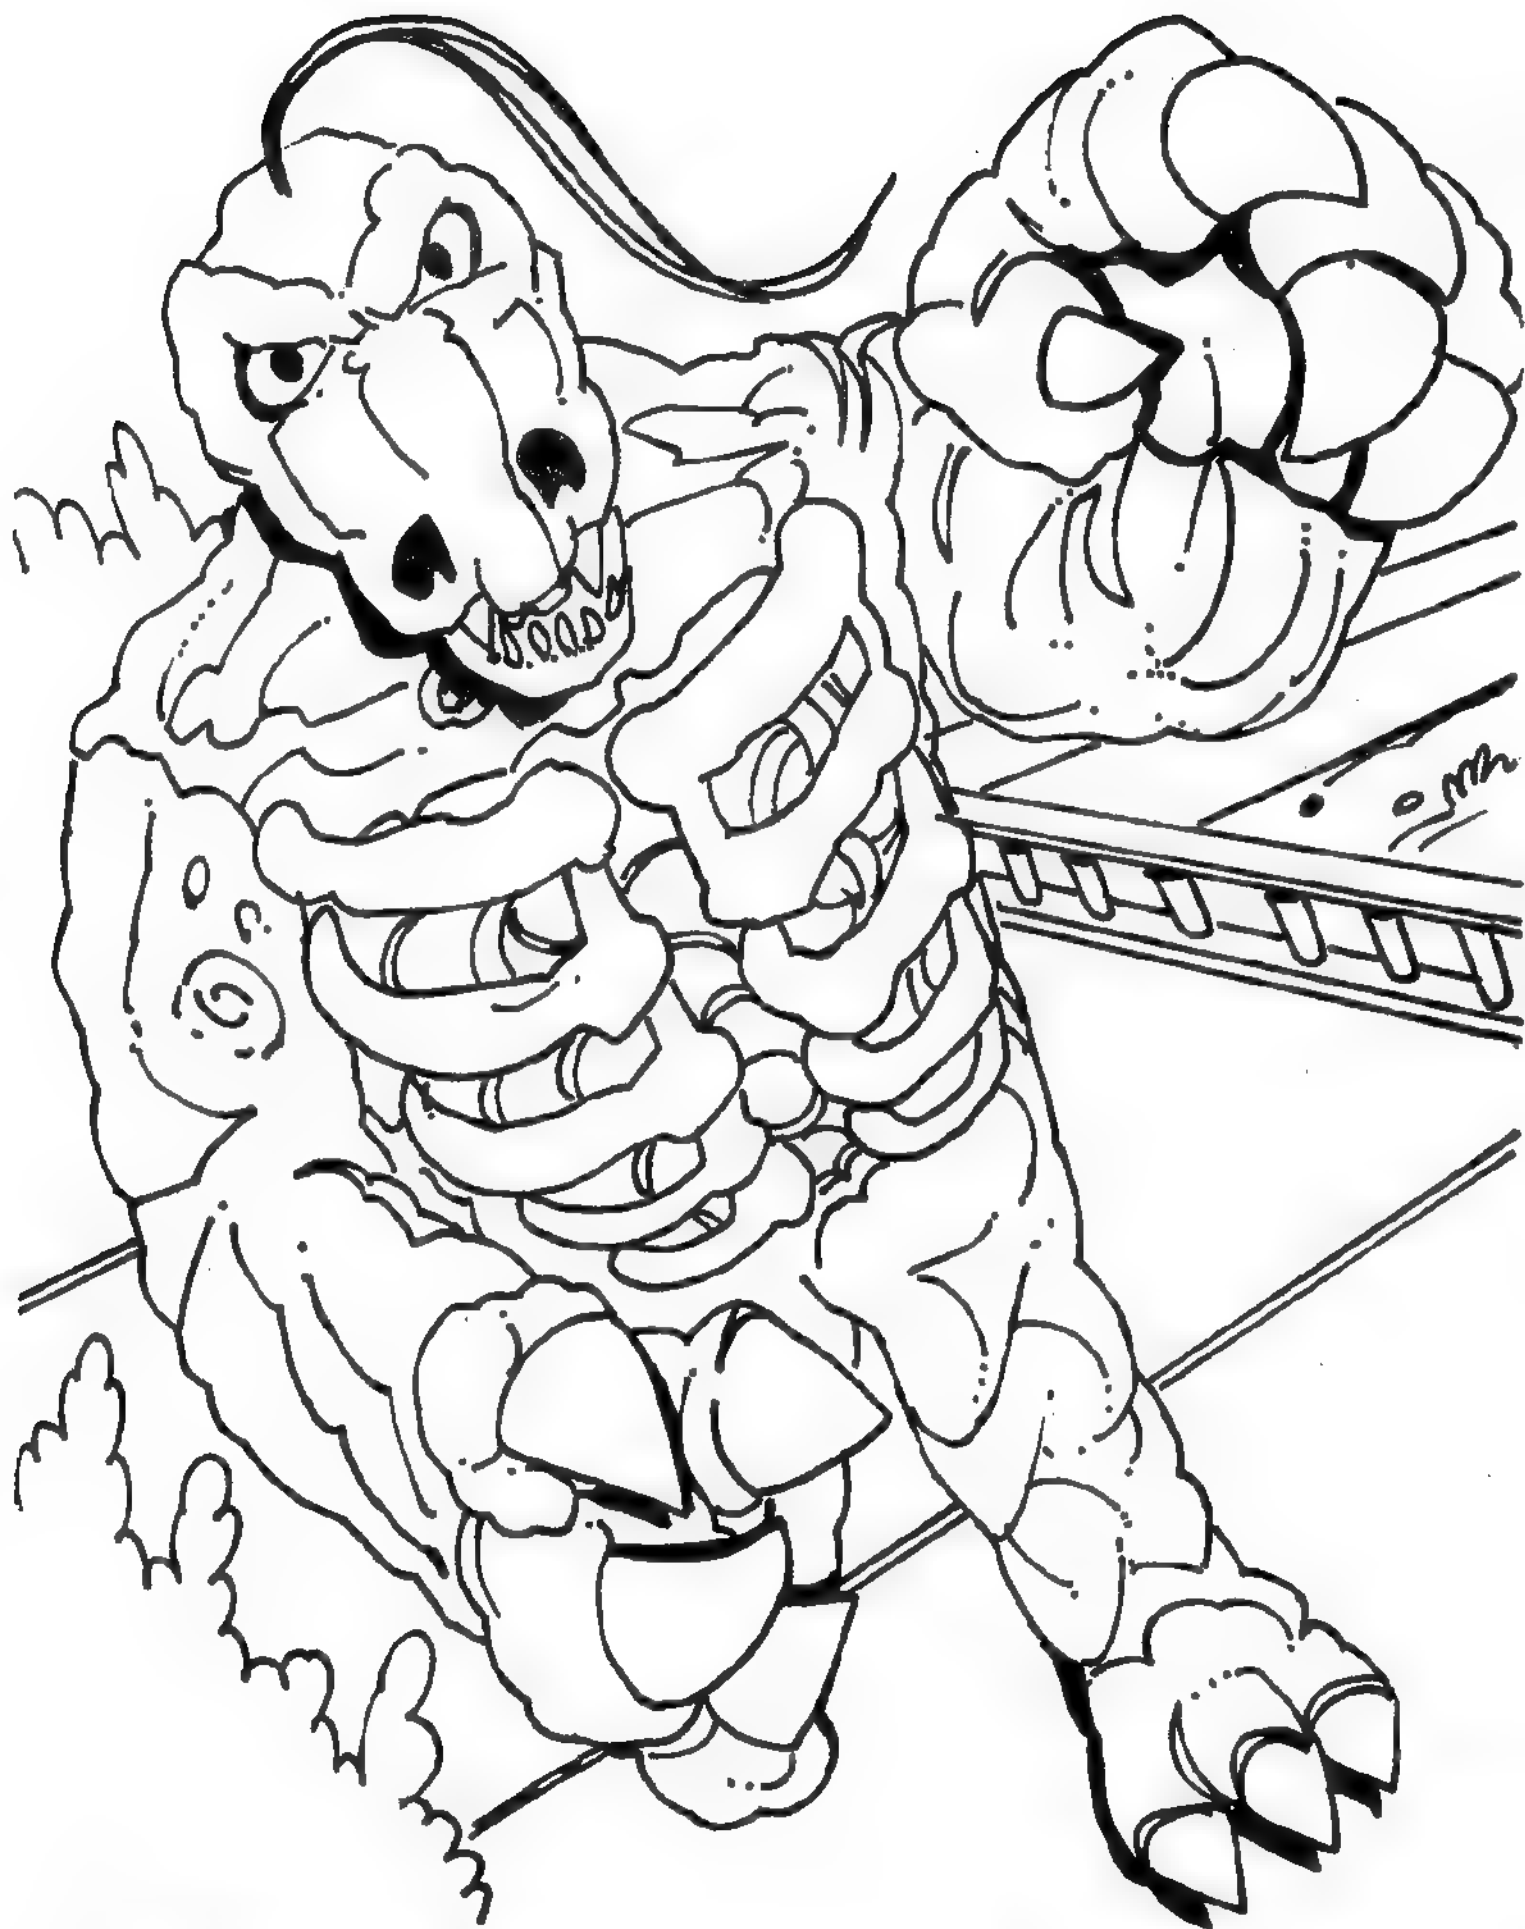

The Earth Corps can communicate with the Mutores by flashing lights generated by their special suits.

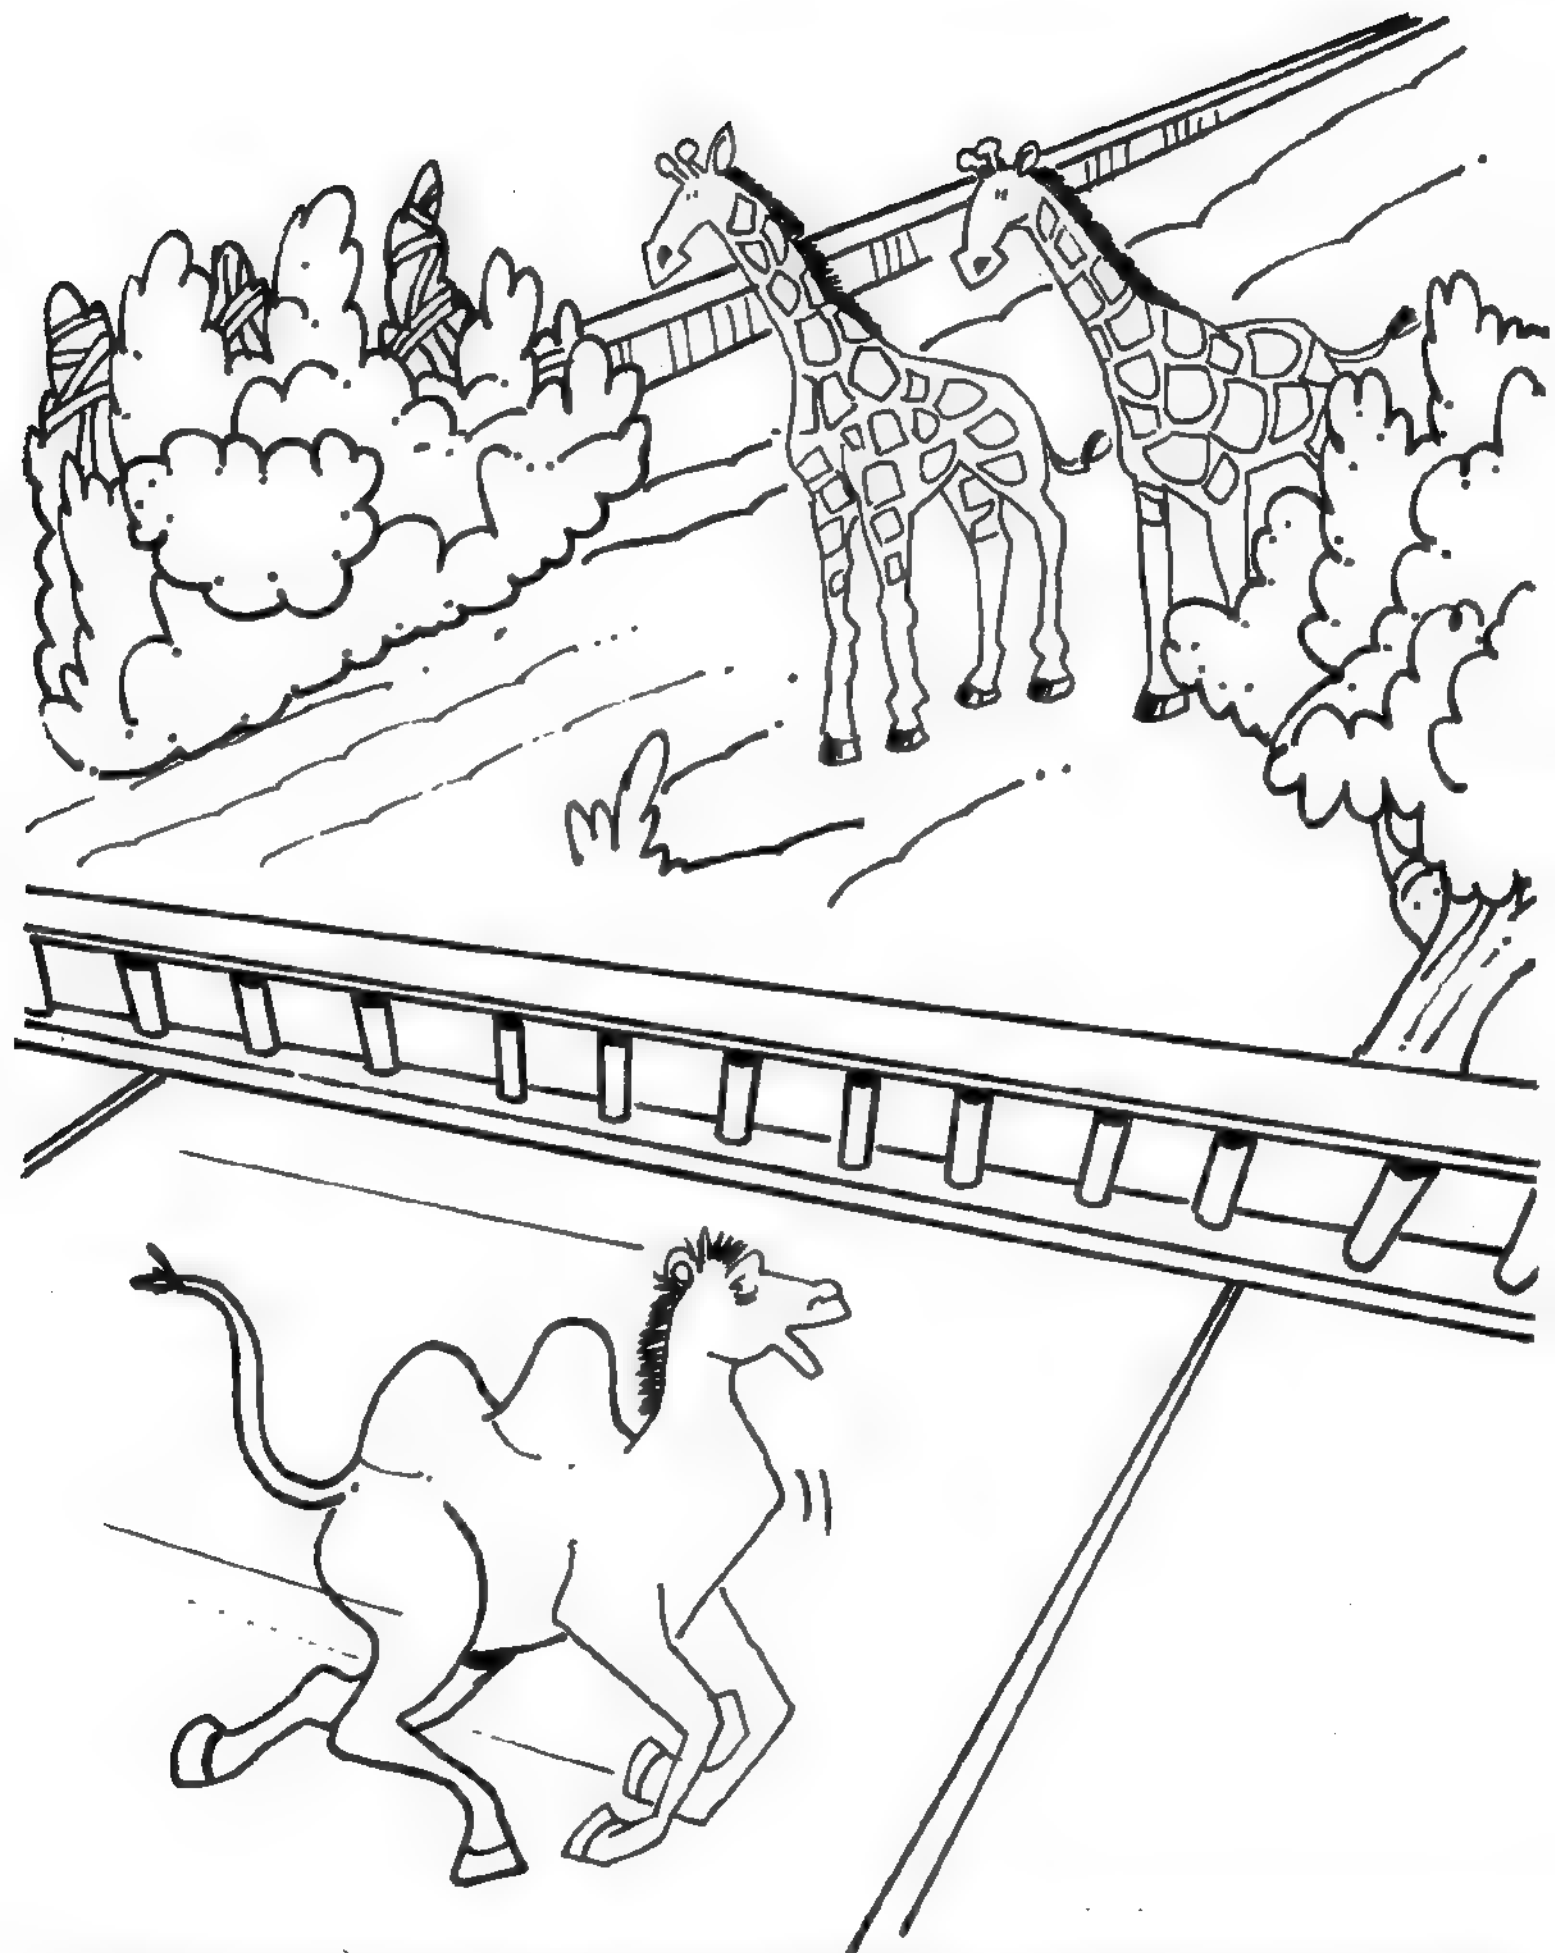

Feeling defeated, Earth Corps members and some Mutores go back to the Earth's surface.

They go to a lab convinced that there they can find some solution to their problems.

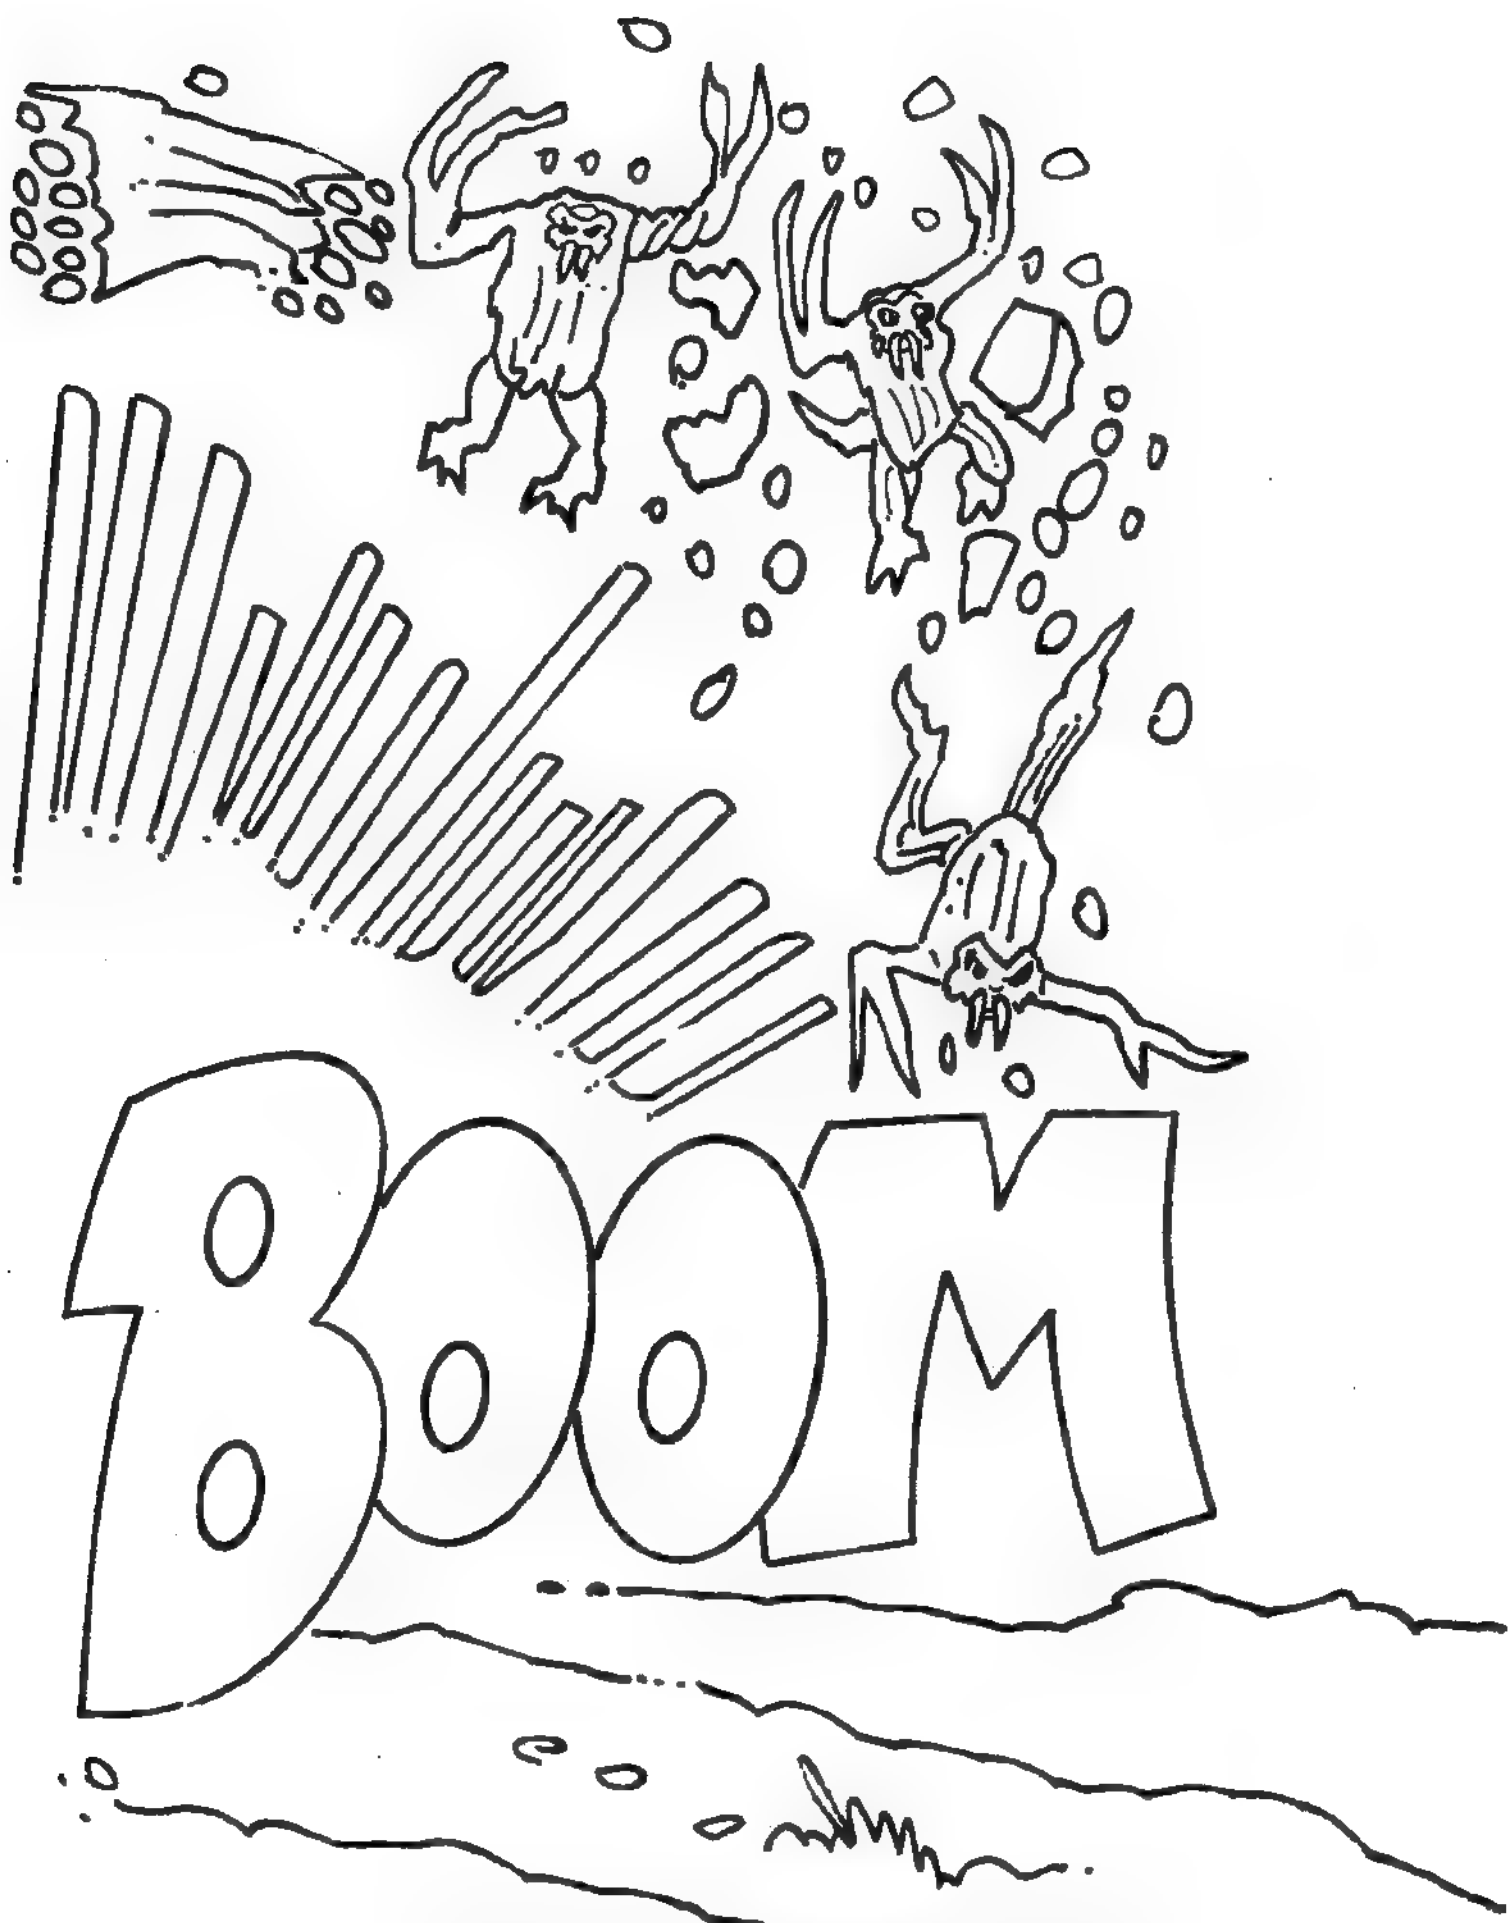

D.COMPOSE will change the animals into creatures like himself.

Meanwhile, the INHUMANOIDS launch an attack on the Earth's surface to drain resources.

TENDRIL has stepped on a land mine, losing his limbs...

...only to create clones of himself.

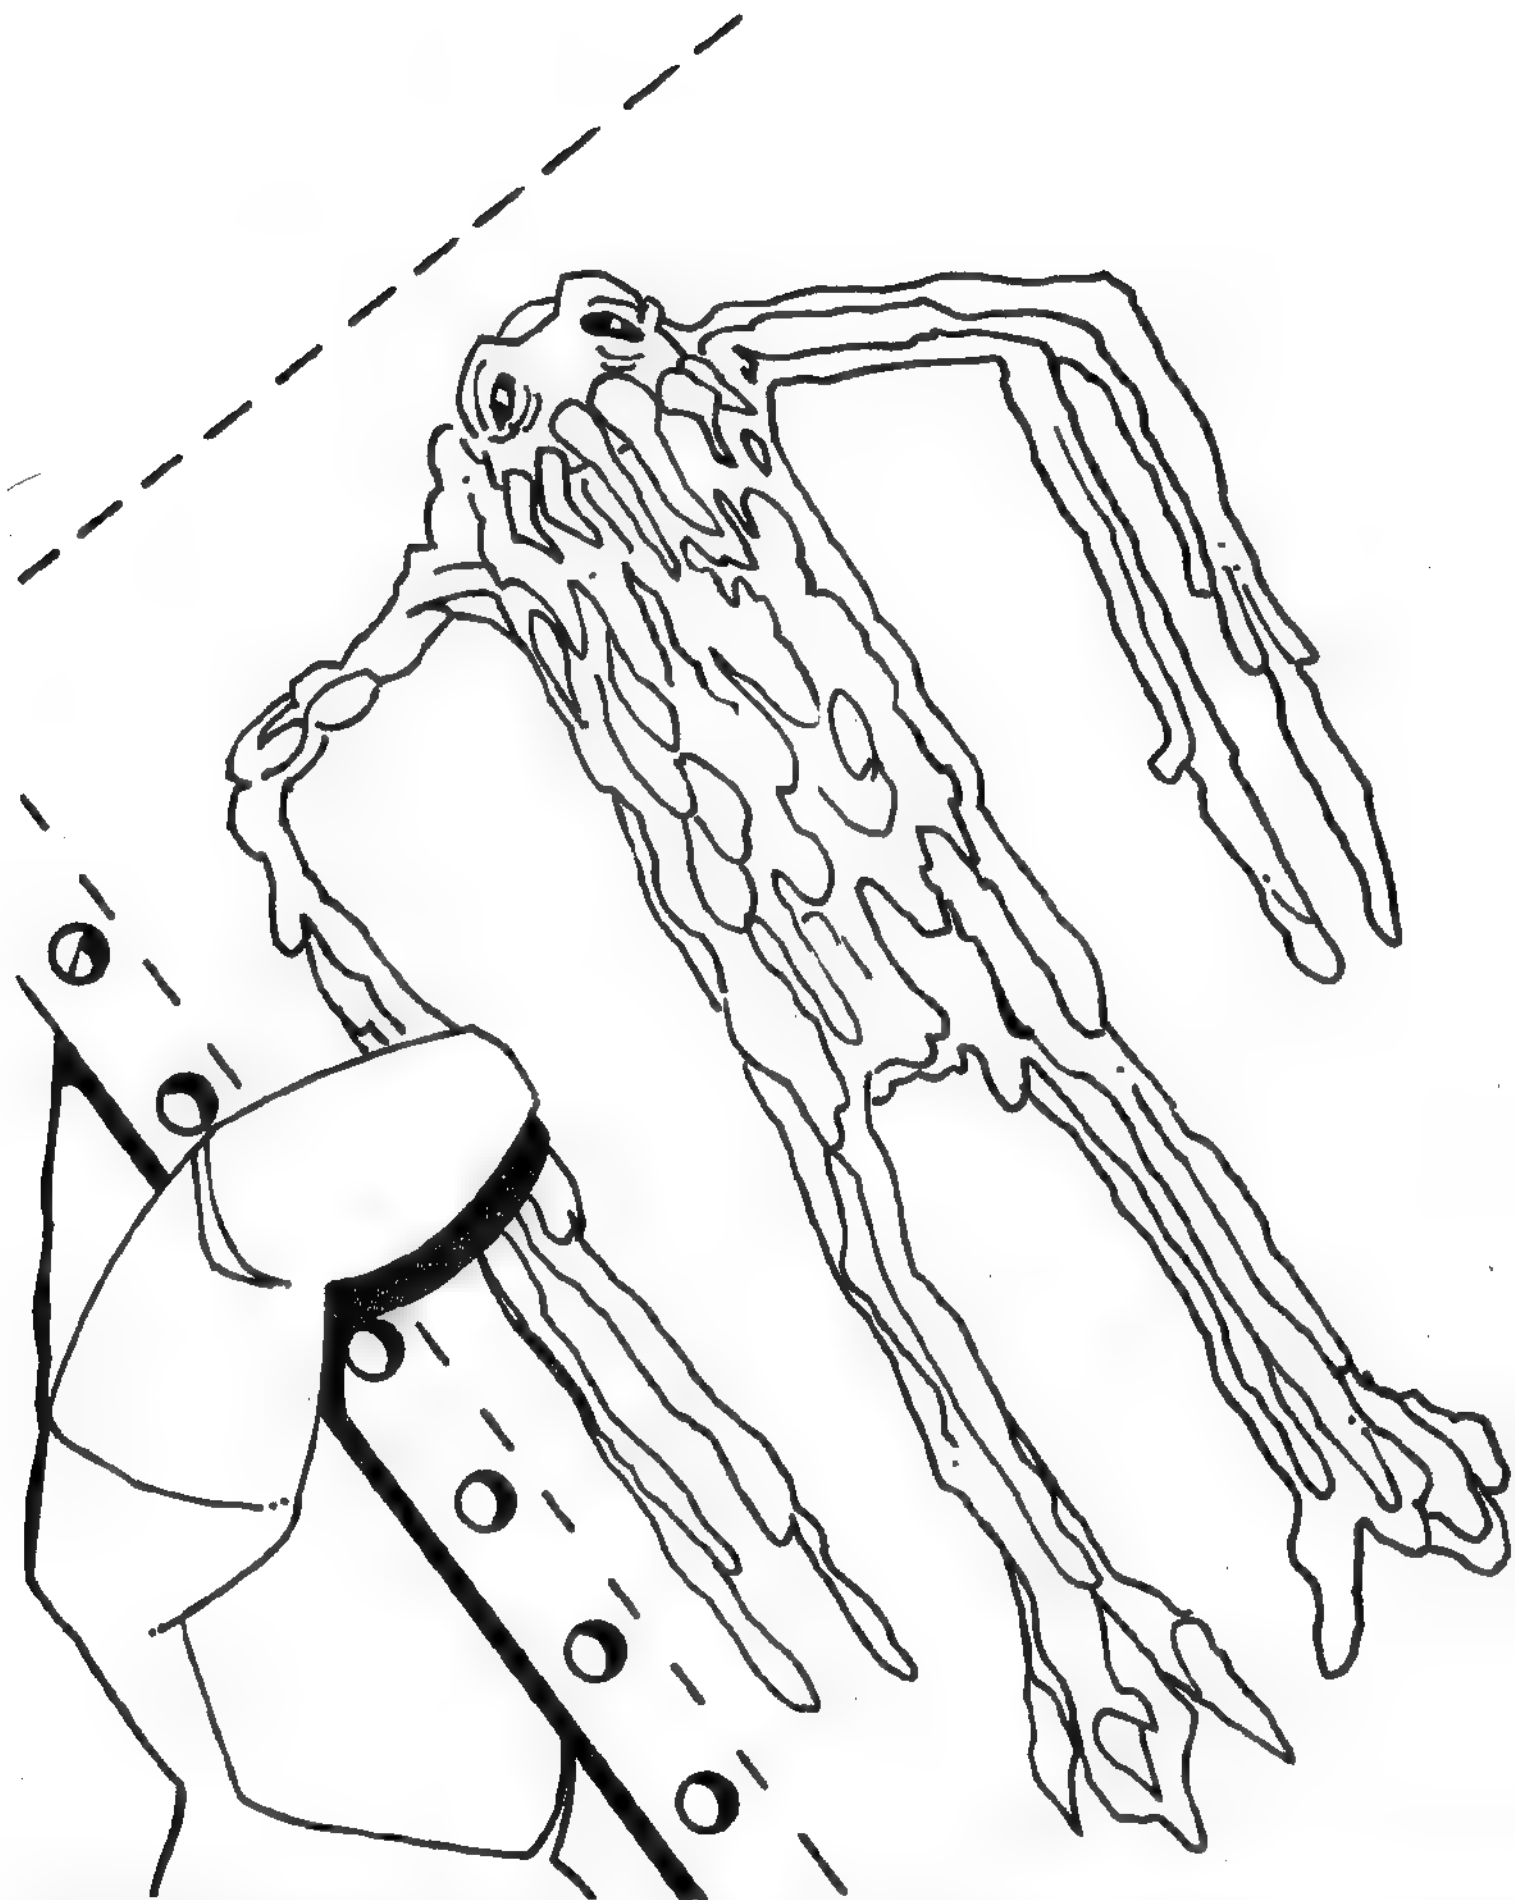

METLAR trashes the metal in this iron yard.

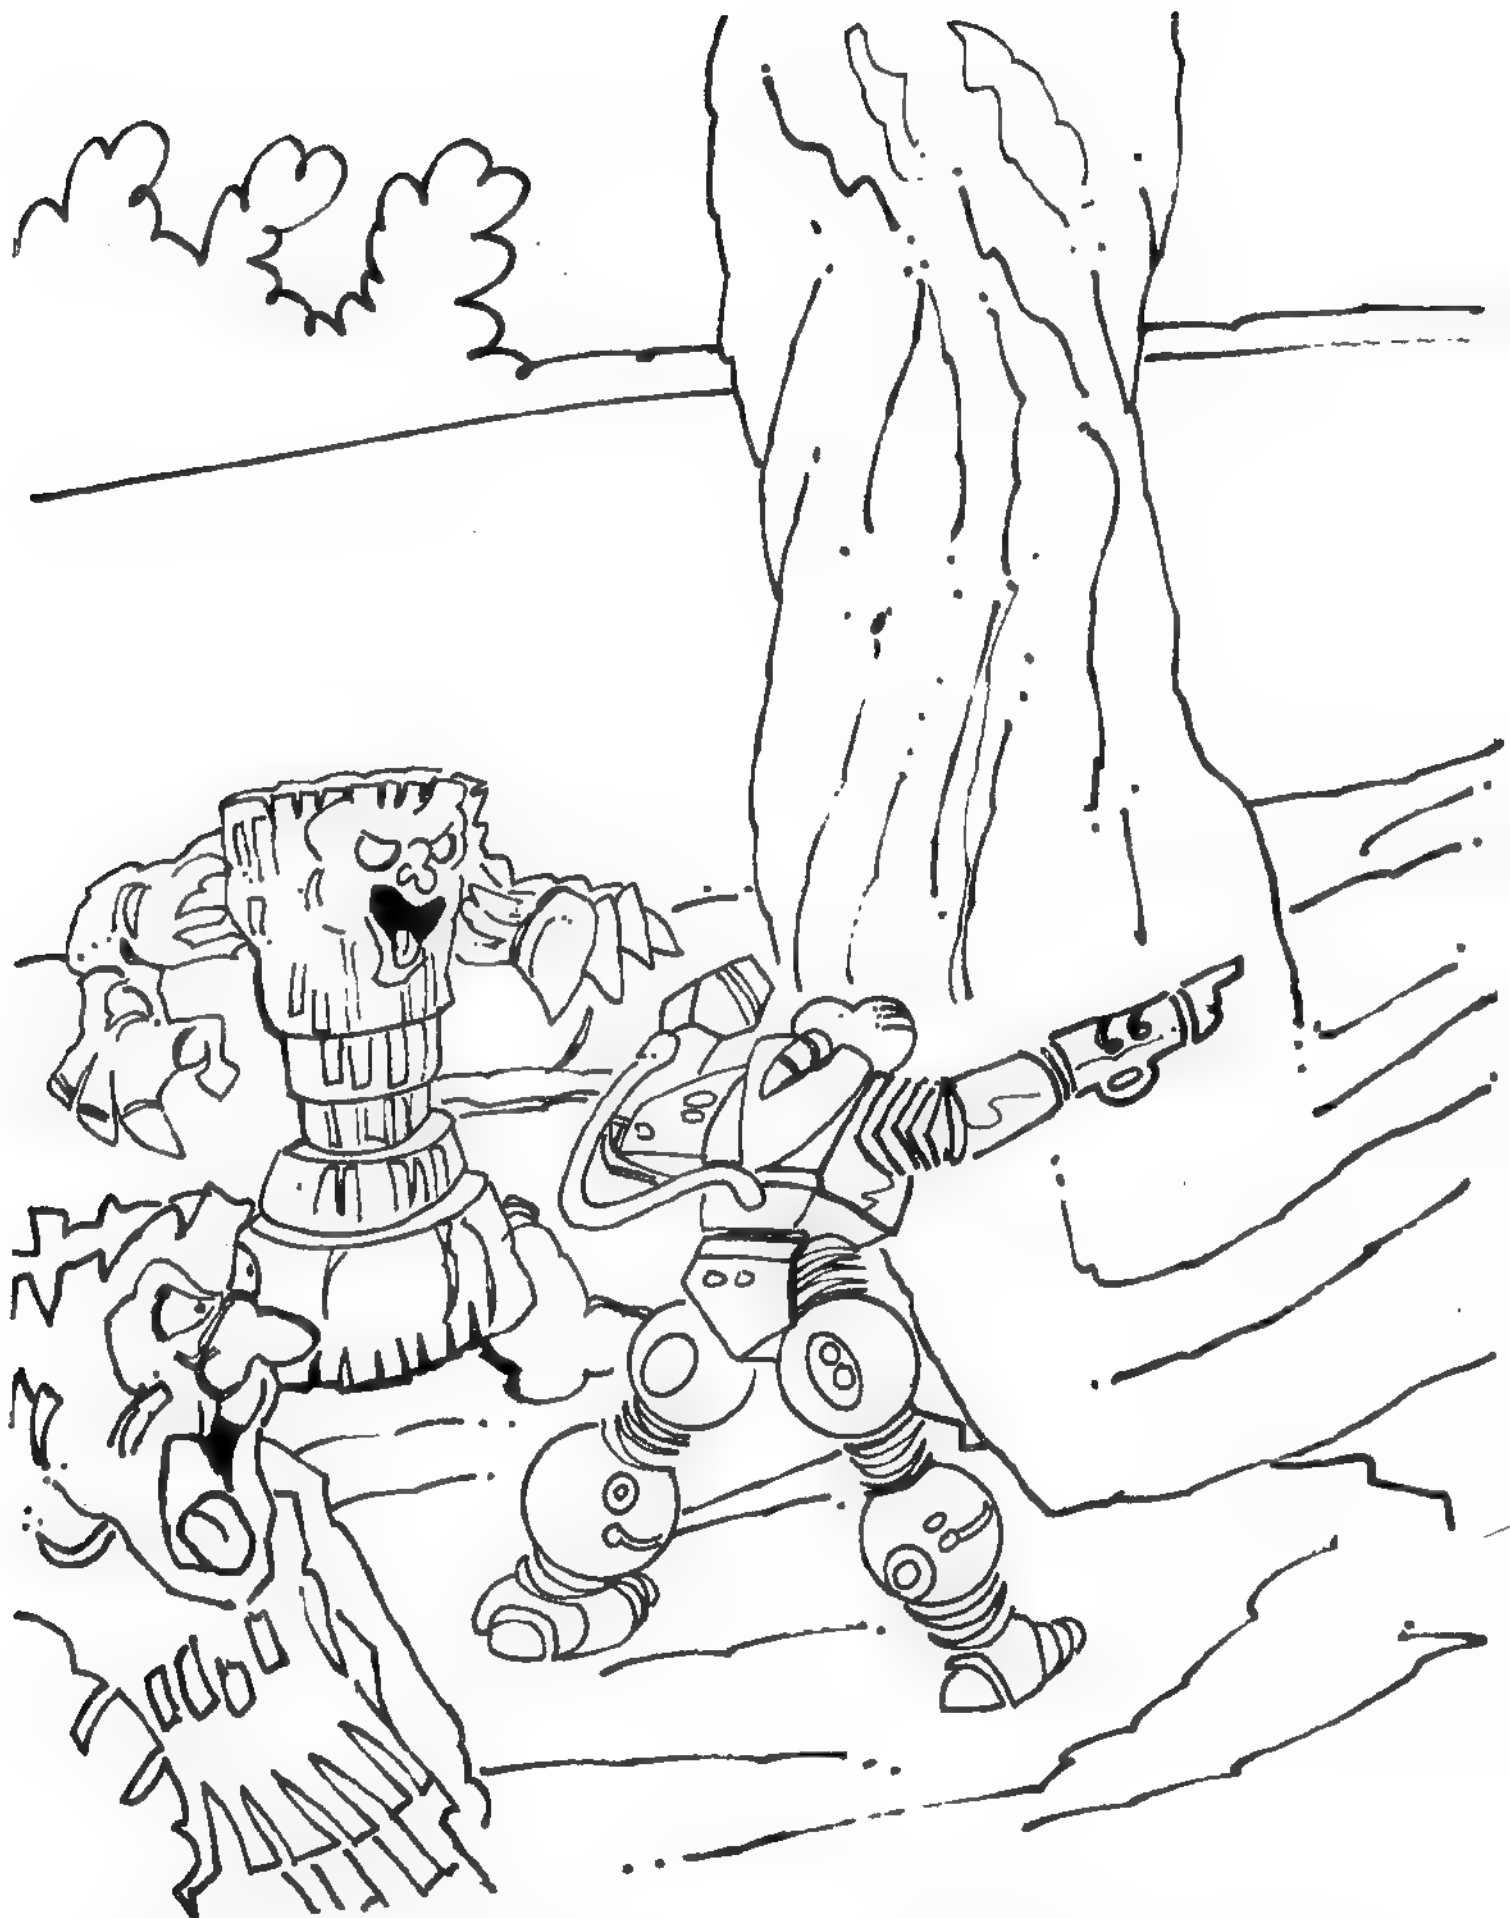

He will form his stolen goods into hideous creatures like himself.

The Earth Corps puts together data they have on the INHUMANOIDS and develop a master plan.

TENDRIL'S limbs become weaker the farther they are stretched from his body.

LIQUIDATOR and the Redwoods head into the mantle...

...to assault TENDRIL in his lair.

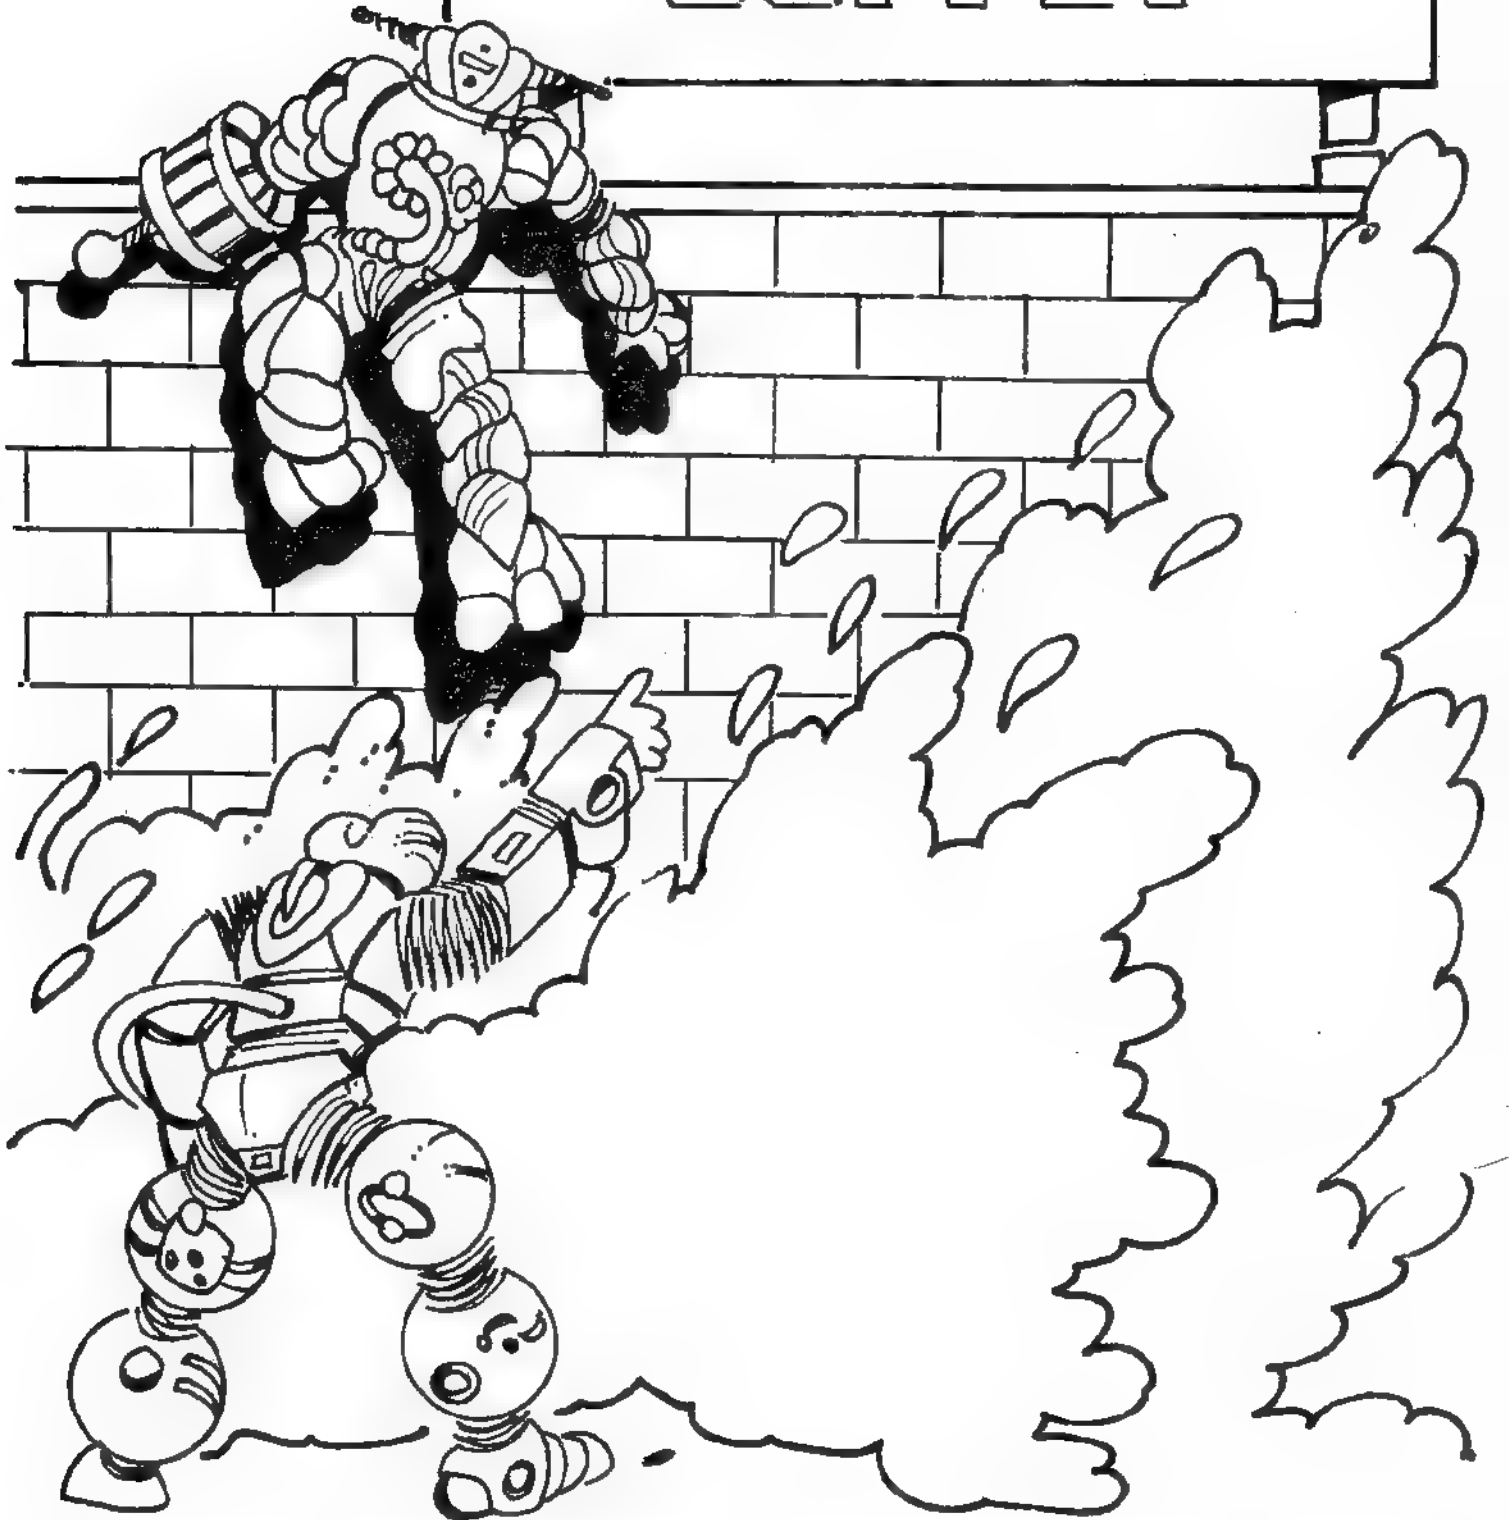

D.COMPOSE can be stopped if exposed to light.

D.COMPOSE wipes out a complete crop of corn in just minutes.

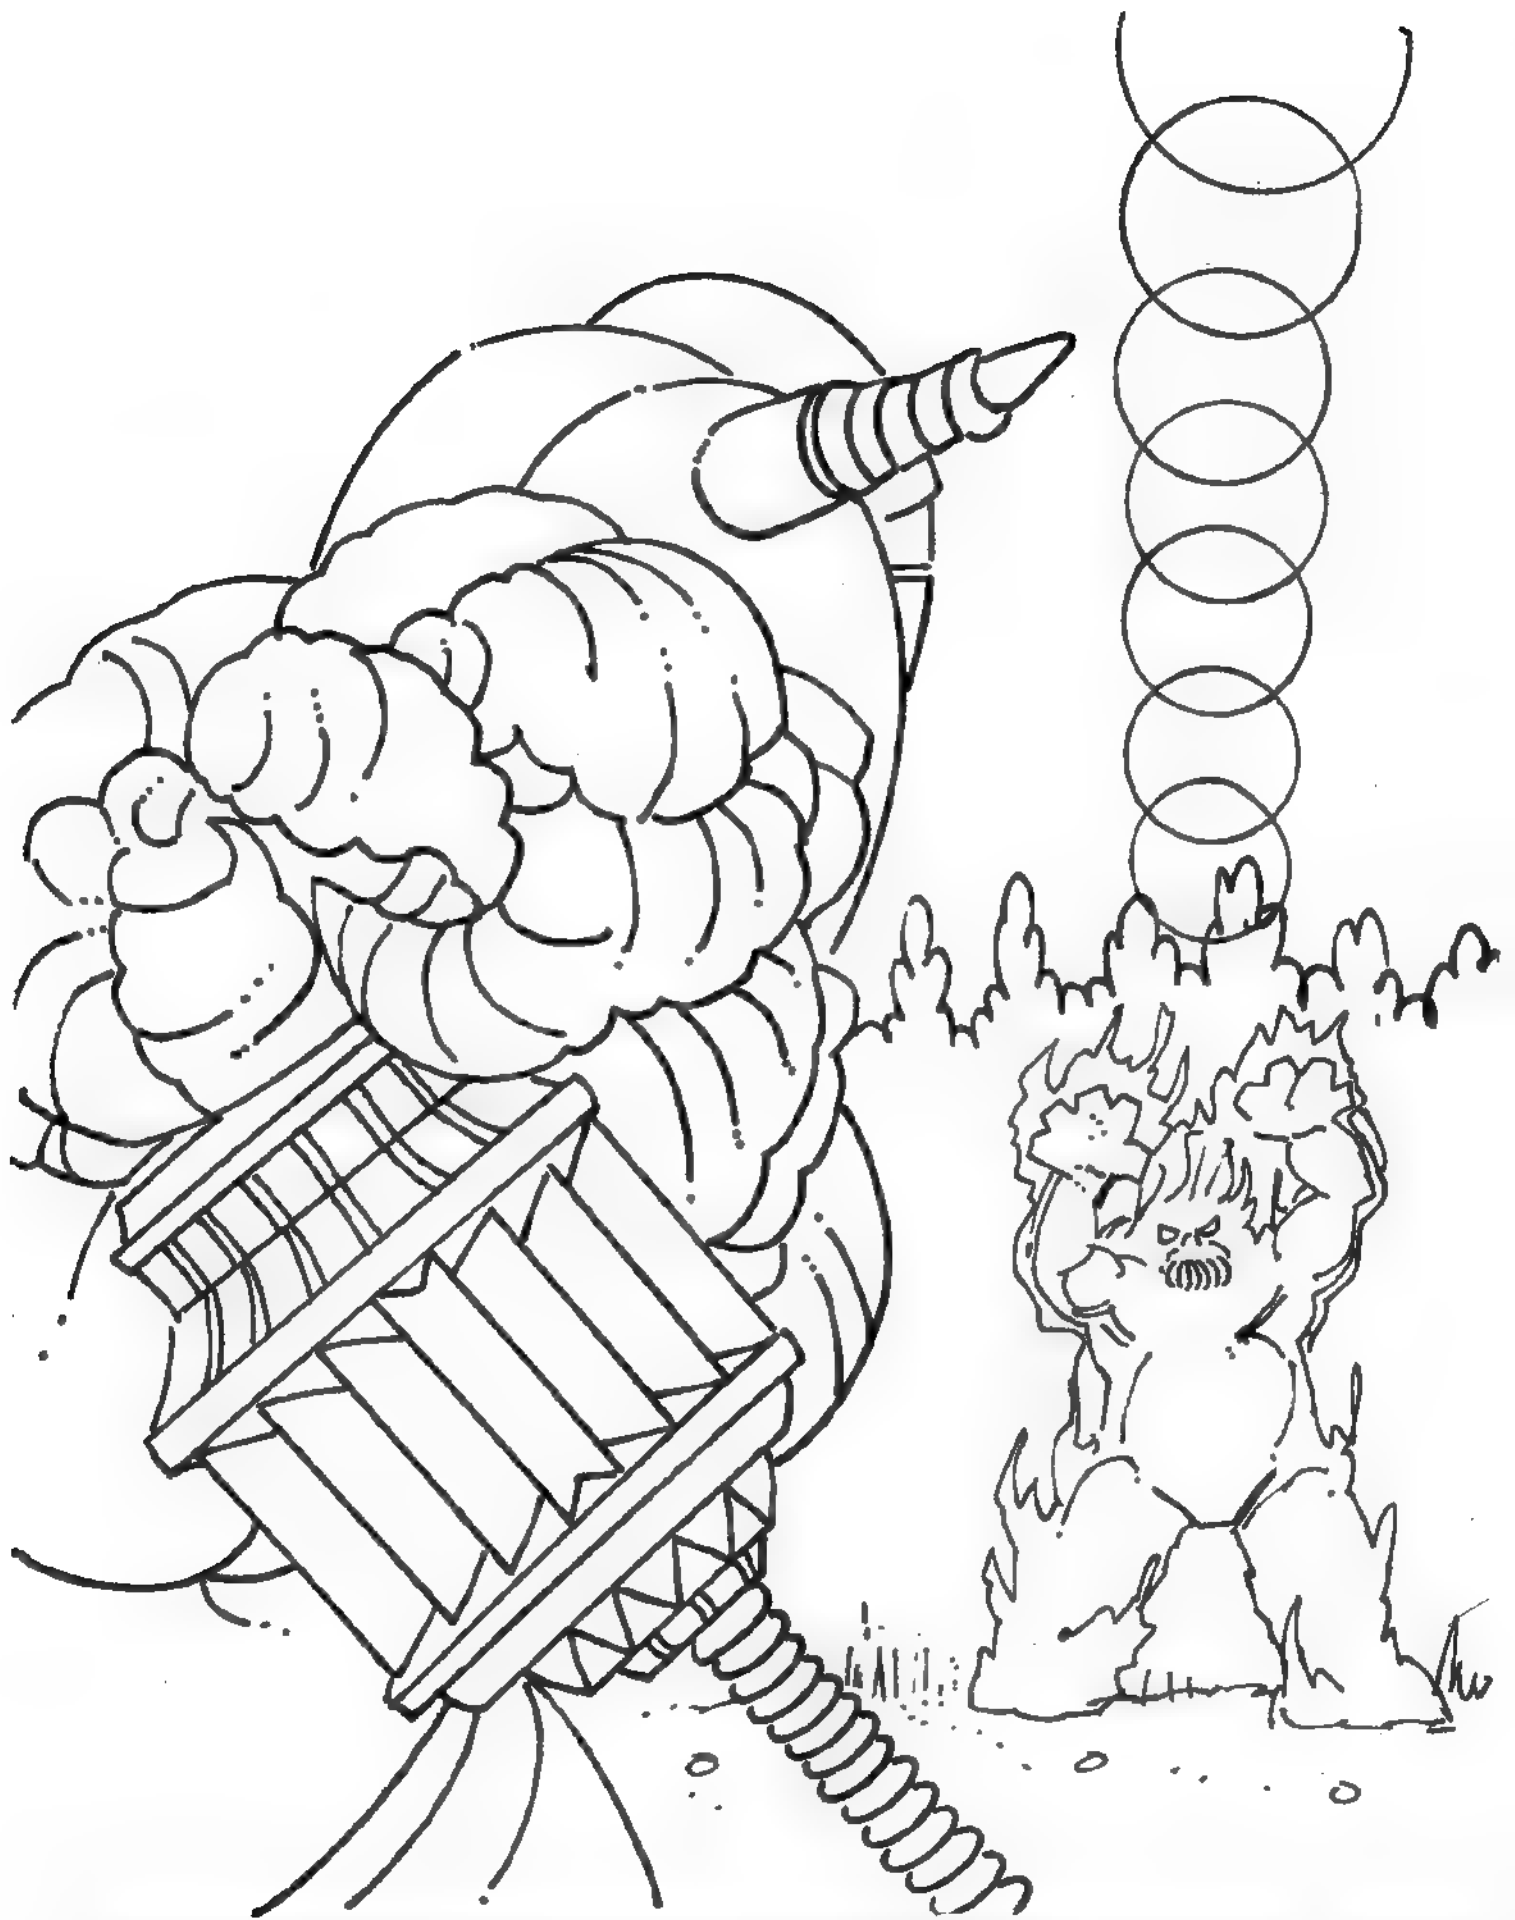

MAIN WATER SUPPLY

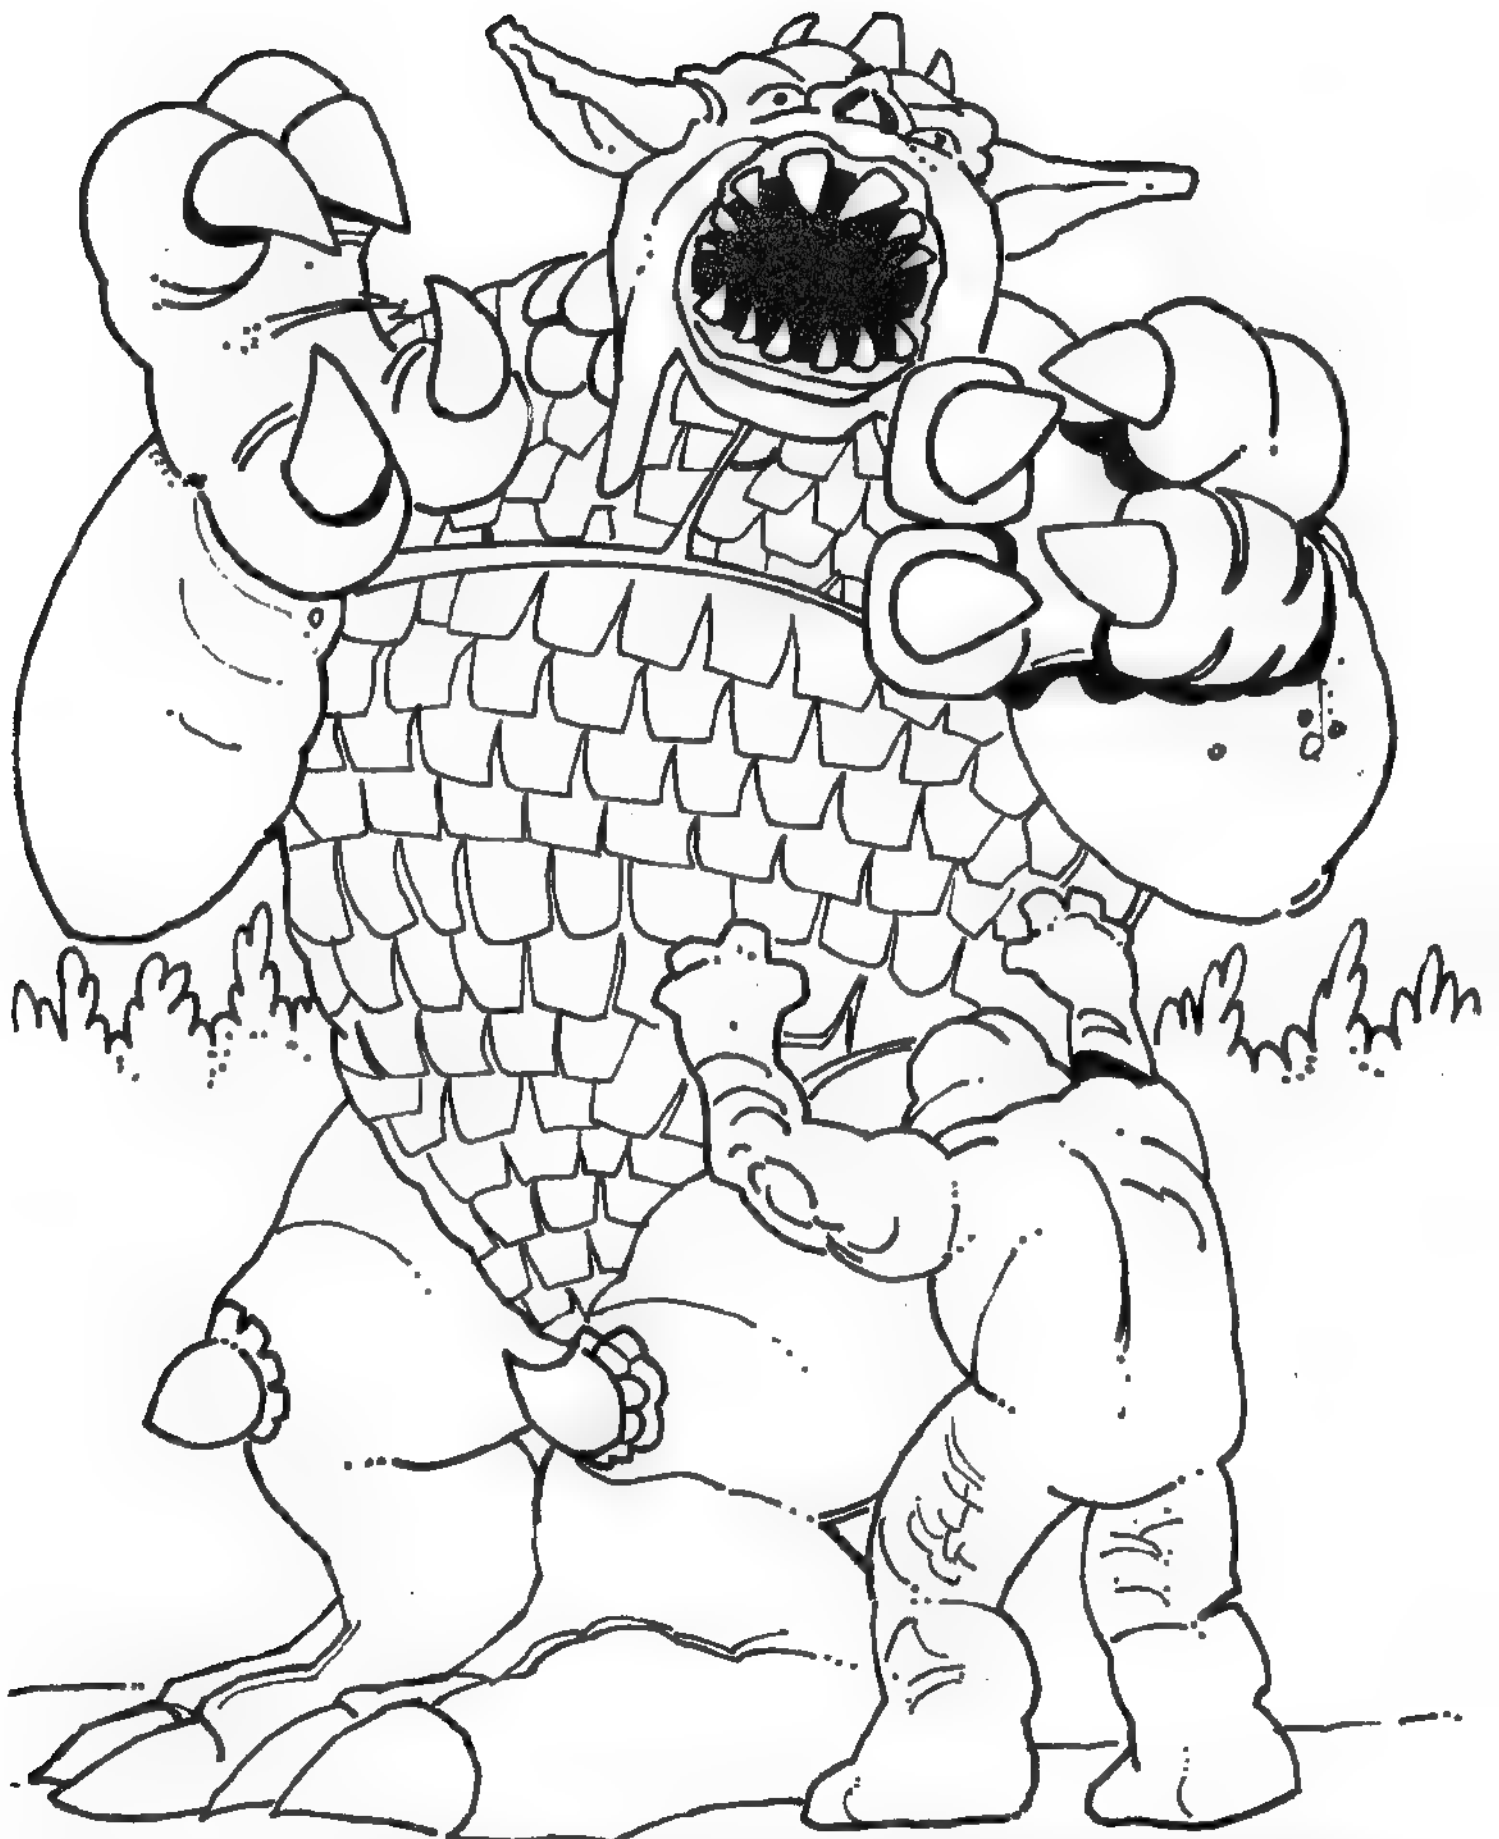

The Earth Corps shoots out a small dam causing a flood.

METLAR deathly fears water because he can't swim and will rust.

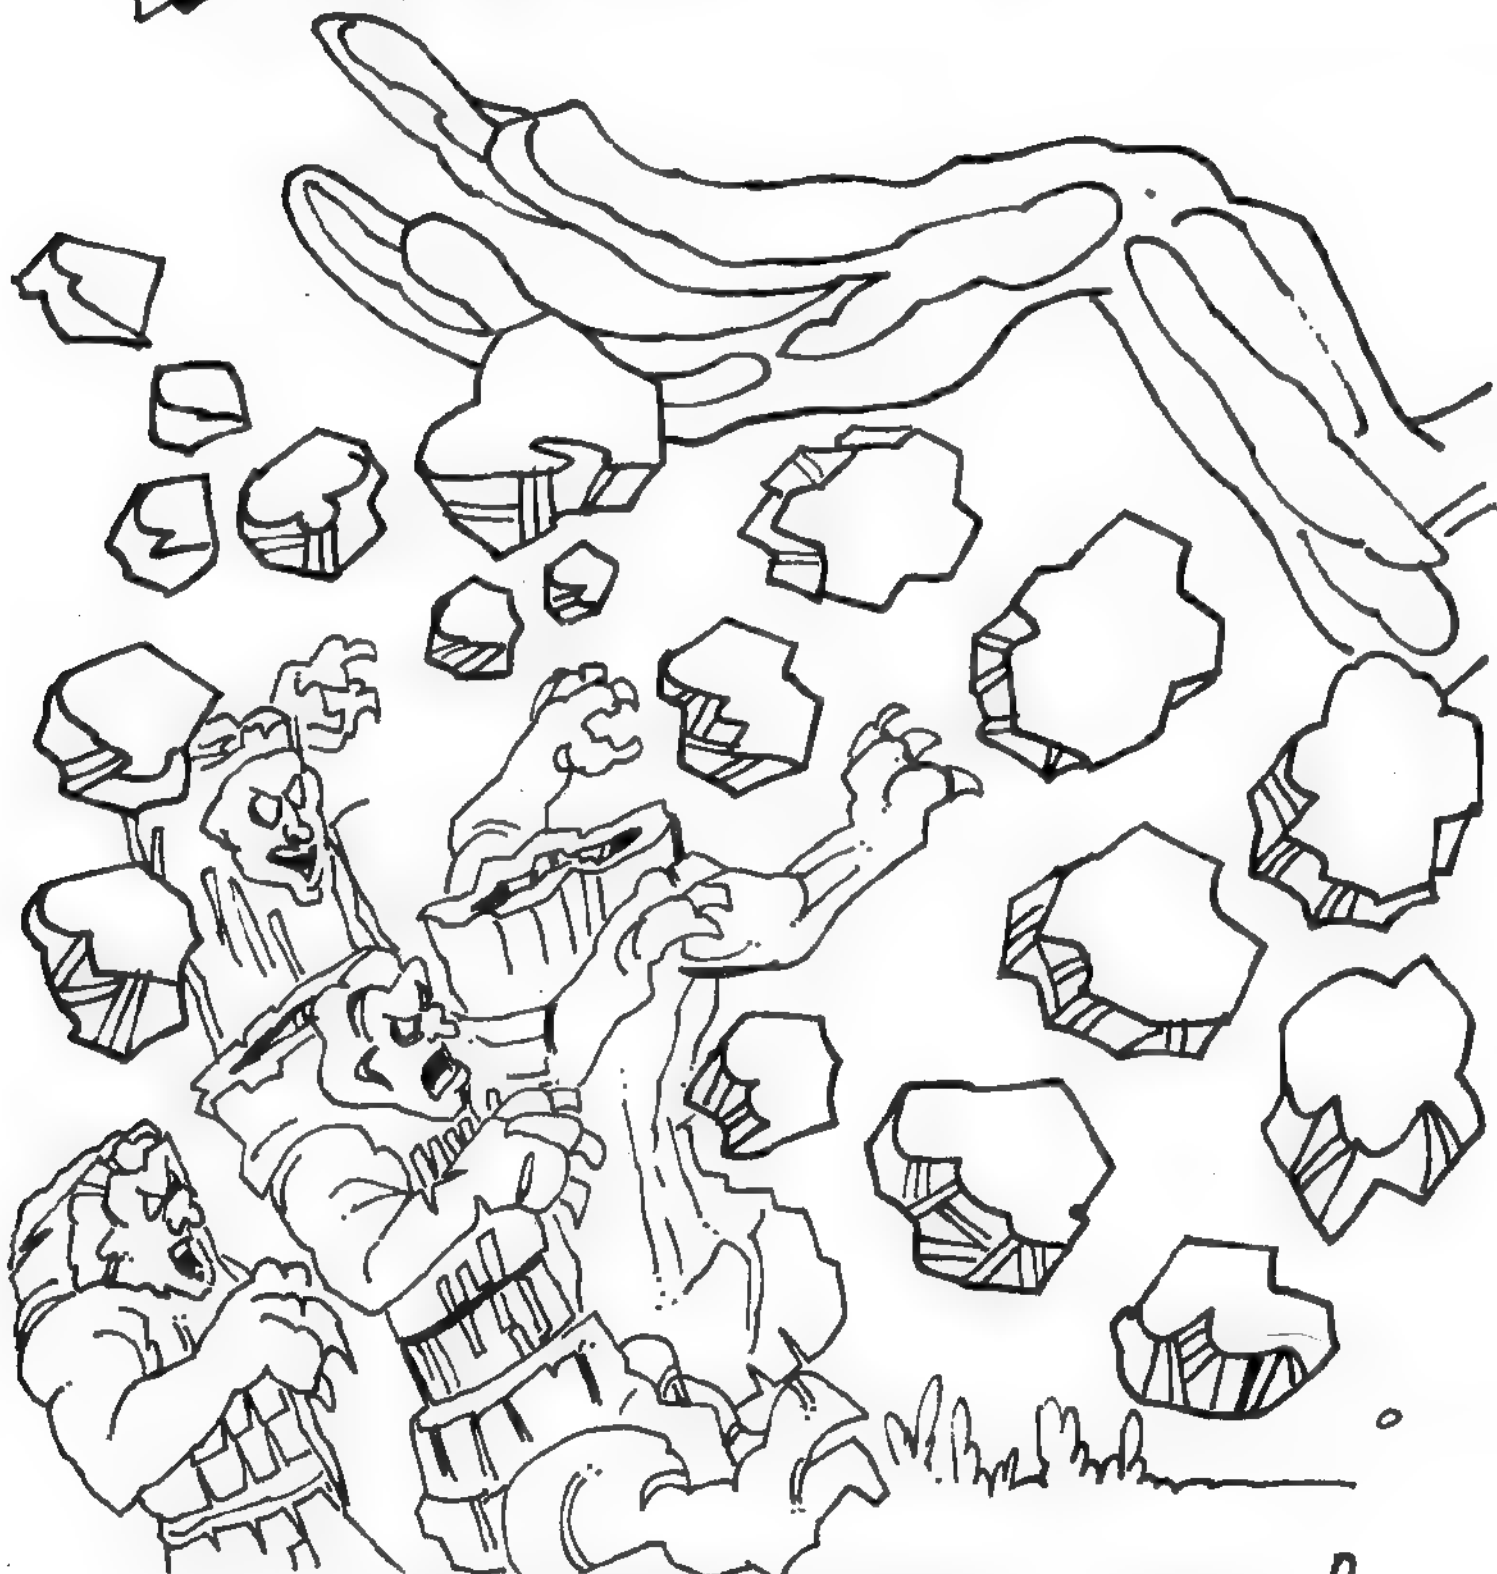

AUGER and MAGNOKOR lead a commando raid to lay a trap for METLAR.

METLAR can be stopped if positioned between the magnetic poles of MAGNOKOR.

RRRRRR

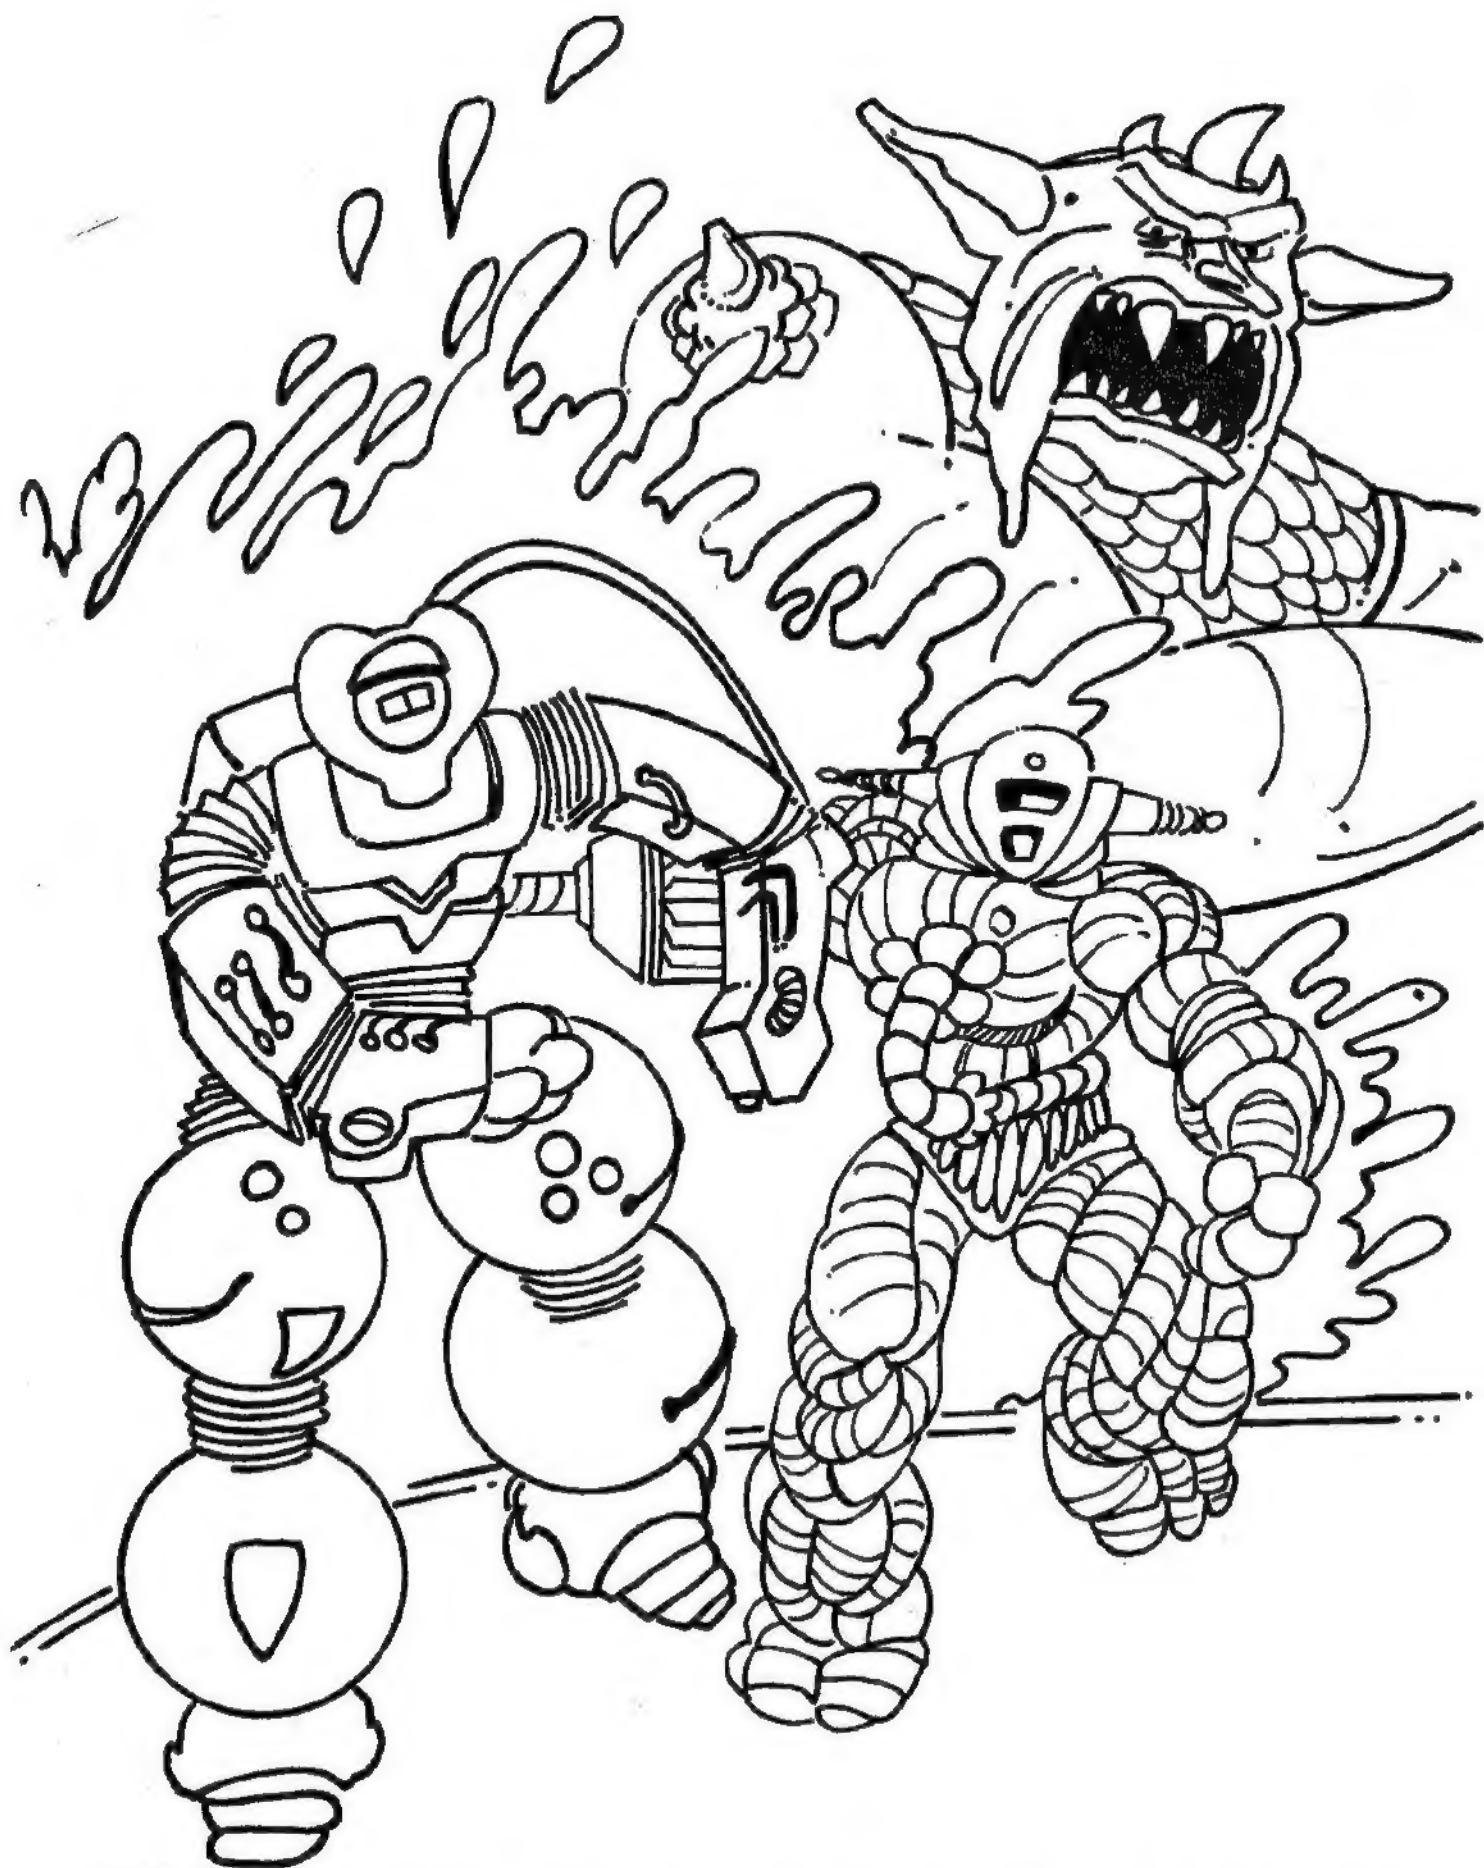

The strong arm of TENDRIL creates an avalanche...

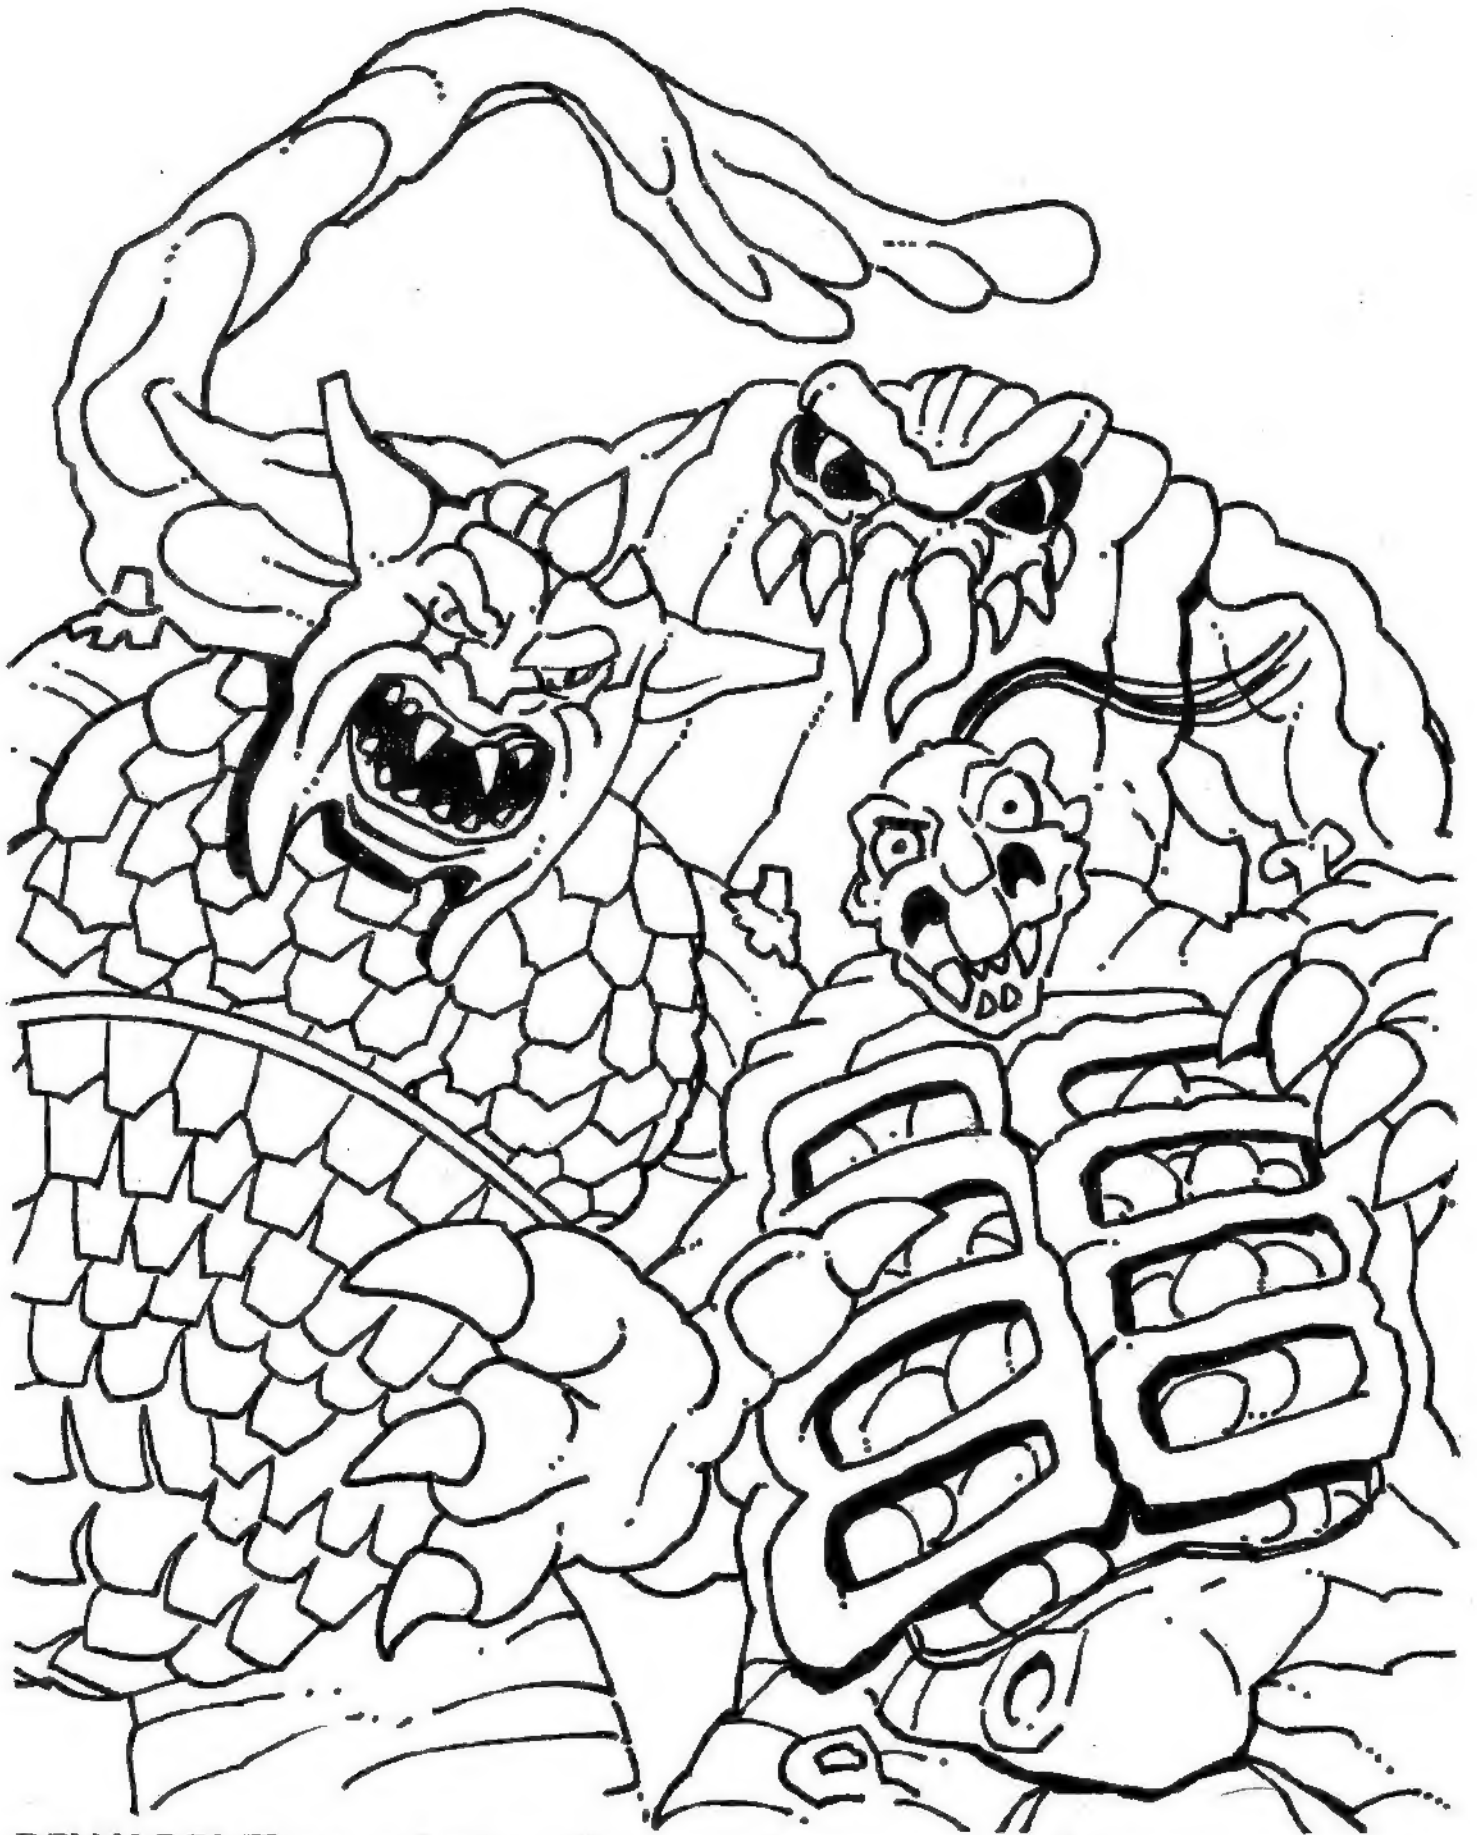

...stopping any plans for his destruction.

Will HERC escape D.COMPOSE who threatens to mutate him?

HERC and AUGER are no match for the fiendish METLAR.

BEWARE! These destructive creatures are at this very moment planning to return to the Earth's surface!
